ARRESTED IN PITTSBURGH

"See What We Did in Wall Street," Quoted as His Boast.

"NEXT MOVE TERRIBLE"

Suitcase in His Room in Hotel Contains Explosive and Percussion Caps.

TRAPPED BY TALK ON TRAIN

News Rushed to Federal Agents Here, Who Search His Room in Brooklyn.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3.—Found in a room of a downtown hotel with a suitcase containing dynamite, percussion caps and fuse, a man who is said to have admitted membership in radical societies was overpowered tonight by police after a terrific struggle.

On the way to the police station and after he had been placed in a cell, the prisoner is alleged to have remarked: "See what we did in Wall Street. Next time it will be bigger and more terrible. The last was only a start." The man registered as Florean Zelenska, aged 29, of 470 Cleveland Street, Brooklyn.

Government agents interviewed the suspect and communicated with the New York authorities, who are investigating the New York disaster of Sept. 16. Officers say they have obtained a clue which may lead to the solution of the Wall Street crime, and the arrest of those responsible. Government agents assert that a score of arrests will follow in Brooklyn.

Zelenska said, according to the police, that he came to this country from Russian Poland almost seven years ago; that he had never taken out his first papers and had no intention of becoming a citizen of the United States, and added that all that could be done with him would be to "send me back to Russia."

Aroused Suspicion on Train.

Zelenska arrived here from Cincinnati shortly after 5 o'clock. While he was a passenger on the train, in earnest conversation with an unidentified man, he was first suspected by another passenger, who had formerly been in the service of the Government as an investigator. When the train arrived here Zelenska bade his companion good-bye and left the train. His companion continued on his way. As the two men were parting Zelenska, it is alleged, was heard to remark in a foreign tongue: "Tell them I will have the stuff there tomorrow."

Zelenska was followed from the station by the former Government man, who, after seeing him take a room in the St. Charles Hotel, reported to the police. As the policemen, with drawn revolvers, forced their way into the room Zelenska made frantic efforts to reach the suitcase, but, seeing that this plan was thwarted, picked up a large pitcher and hurled it at Lieutenant John Callen, who was in the lead. It missed its mark.

Zelenska fought for almost ten minutes before he was rendered unconscious. It was then that the dynamite caps and fuses were found. His first words on recovering consciousness, it is said, were "The Soviet will rule."

Zelenska is said to have made the remarks about the Wall Street explosion in his hotel room while, with the police, he awaited a police patrol. Questioned in his cell, Zelenska at first stated that he was a coal miner, and used the dynamite in the mines. His hands, however, are soft as a woman's. He later admitted that he had never worked in a mine, but said that he was a tailor, a member of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Zelenska said that since arriving in this country he has traveled extensively. He admitted he left his home in Brooklyn Sept. 24. At the time of the Wall Street explosion and up until Sept. 24, Zelenska said, he did not leave Brooklyn or New York.

When he left home on Sept. 24, the officers found from letters and other documents in his suitcase, he went to Whitman Junction, W. Va. He stayed there several days and then went to Cincinnati.

A description of Zelenska's companion was wired to the New York authorities and messages were sent to police along the route in an effort to apprehend him. Police Commissioner John C. Calhoun, after he had been closeted with the prisoner for almost an hour, announced that additional information was obtained as to how Zelenska obtained the dynamite, but added that the prisoner refused to say to whom he was to deliver it in Brooklyn. What this additional information was Mr. Calhoun refused to divulge, but he declared it was most valuable and would be turned over to Government officials.

Facts Disclosed Here Associating Pittsburgh Suspect With the Disastrous Wall Street Explosion

Following the arrest of Florean Zelenska in Pittsburgh last night as a suspect in the Wall Street explosion Federal agents here learned:

1. That Zelenska left his home in Brooklyn on Sept. 16 an hour or so before the bomb exploded in Wall Street.
2. That when he left he was carrying a reddish-yellow bag.
3. That he had once been employed by the Hercules Powder Company.
4. That he had in his room a large quantity of radical literature.

ONCE POWDER CO. WORKER

Room Full of Red Literature—Passport Contradicts Story of When He Left Russia.

Word promptly came to William J. Flynn, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice last night of the arrest of Florean Zelenska in Pittsburgh. He dispatched Federal agents to 470 Cleveland Street, Brooklyn, the address the Wall Street suspect gave as his. Under Special Agent Callahan the operatives unearthed two facts which they regarded as of vital importance.

The first was that Zelenska left his Brooklyn rooming place two weeks ago last Thursday, the day of the explosion, carrying a large reddish-yellow bag. He left some time between 10 and 11 o'clock that morning. The explosion occurred at noon. The second coincidence which the Federal agents brought out in a search of the man's effects was that he had been an employe of the Hercules Powder Company at one time, seemingly about two years ago.

It was not until shortly after 11 o'clock that the Federal operatives drew up in front of the Cleveland Street house, which is located one-quarter of a block south from Pitkin Avenue, and in the heart of the foreign quarters of East New York. The building is a six-family three-story structure, and it was necessary for Callahan's men, accompanied by a TIMES reporter, to rouse all of the families before Michael Terkasky, tenant on the top floor front, was located.

Went Away on Day of Explosion.

Terkasky, a tailor, readily admitted that he had had at one time a roomer by the name of Zelenska. He said that the man came to him about six months ago and left two weeks ago last Thursday. It was Terkasky who told the Government detectives that his one-time roomer had departed, carrying a large bag, and it was also he who placed the time of his departure. The tailor, who was almost speechless with excitement due to the arrival of the Department of Justice men, said that he had asked Zelenska where he was going, and that the man had replied that he was merely going out to look for a job.

Under questioning by the agents Terkasky said that he had never regarded his roomer as possessed of radical views, and that during the six months he had lived at the home he had never given evidence of any mania. According to Terkasky the man under arrest in Pittsburgh appeared to be merely a "worker," and so far as the tailor-landlord recalled he had not held membership in any radical organizations.

Satisfied that Terkasky could shed no further light on the antecedents, habits or views of his one-time roomer, Callahan began a minute search of the room which Zelenska had occupied. This was the "parlor" room, and, besides a cot, contained a dresser and a large foreign-made trunk. Going through the drawers of the dresser Callahan came across a motorman's badge numbered 5150 and issued by the B. R. T. By further questioning he learned that Zelenska had been employed as a motorman several years ago on the Church Avenue-Rockaway Avenue line of the B. R. T. system.

Callahan also was informed that Zelenska had been a butcher at one time, owning a small shop in Morris County, N. J. Later in rummaging through the drawer, the Federal agents found a draft classification card issued by a Morris County, N. J. draft board to "Floryan Zielanker." This card classed the man as in Class 5C, which was the grade into which were put physical or mental defectives, those who were utterly unable to bear arms.

Find Papers in Trunk.

The contents of the trunk, however, gave the most information to the Government detectives, according to their statement. The trunk was crammed with Russian literature. Circulars and newspapers, one a copy of The Russky Golos, a local Rusian newspaper often mentioned in connection with Soviet agitation, were piled high in it.

LENIN FACTION WINS ITALIAN SOCIALISM

Executive Council Adheres to the Moscow Internationale by Vote of 7 to 5.

BIG SPLIT NOW INEVITABLE

National Congress to be Held in December Will Have Final Decision on Party's Course.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Oct. 3.—Italian Socialism has now reached the severest crisis in its checkered history. Since 1892 this best organized of Italian political parties has had a right wing known as the Reformists, who, instead of aiming straight at violent revolution, are striving to get legal possession of the reins of the State coach through a gradual but incessant amelioration of the workers' lot. Their leader is the able veteran parliamentarian, Filippo Turati of Milan. The left wing, known as the Official Socialists, are Maximalists and revolutionists, who control the party Executive and dominate its activities in Parliament.

Quite recently Lenin, acting as the sovereign pontiff of the European proletariat, demanded from the Socialist Party of Italy formal subscription to the twenty-one articles of the Bolshevist creed as drawn up at the second Congress of the Third Internationale at Moscow. Opportunist pleas from Italy were unavailing. Lenin angrily refused to listen to any arguments about differences of environment necessitating difference in tactical methods. "He who is not with me is against me. Whoso bringeth not this gospel, let him be anathema." And, true to his word, Lenin proceeded to excommunicate Turati and Modigliani and other Italian Reformist leaders, and, furthermore, directed the Italian Executive to cut off from communion all their camp followers.

The Socialist Executive, which has been sitting here throughout the week to consider its action, finally passed a majority vote last night in which it "makes its own the twenty-one articles of Moscow"; that is, relating to the constitution of Communist parties, in virtue whereof the Italian directorate is bound to proceed with a radical weeding out by thrusting the opportunist and reformist elements outside the party, according to ways and means to be submitted for discussion at the forthcoming Christmastide congress.

Immediately after the promulgation of this decision the well-known Communist leader, Serrati, who had supported the minority vote in favor of a cautious middle course reserving excommunication sentences for grave public breaches of discipline, resigned the head directorship and editorship of the official Socialist newspaper Avanti.

Turati, whose name has been bandied about during the stirring events of these last weeks as the prospective first President of a Socialist republic in this country, is resolved to challenge the Leninist bull in the conviction that it will prove inacceptable to the Italian working class in general, and therefore has summoned his legionaries to a congress at Reggio Emilio next week. Seeing that the Maximalist triumph in the Socialist Party Executive was achieved only in a ratio of seven votes against five, and that the Italian Labor Party has lately recorded a preponderate vote in Turati's favor, it is quite possible the Turatian propaganda may materially alter the relative strength of the opposing wings before the National Socialist Congress assembles in December at Florence. Nevertheless, whichever side gains the mastery, a great split, for good or evil, consequences of which none can foresee, is looked upon as inevitable.

Startling confirmation of the report about the proposed conversion of the world-famed F. I. A. T. Company into a big workmen's co-operative undertaking is conveyed to the Milanese press in a declaration from its head administrator, Commendatore Agnelli. For a week past Agnelli has been negotiating with the Turin Socialist Deputy, Romita, and a workmen's delegation for the introduction of a system of collective management. He declared—I quote from Il Secolo—that he was actuated by motives quite easy to explain and be understood.

16 Red Divisions Routed by Poles; 42,000 Prisoners and 166 Guns Captured

WARSAW, Oct. 3.—President Pilsudski is at the northern front personally commanding the drive which it is announced has resulted in the complete defeat of sixteen Russian Bolshevist divisions.

The staffs of the 3d and 4th Bolshevist Armies have been captured, and the staffs of the 21st, 41st, 55th and 57th Divisions and of several brigades and regiments also have been taken prisoner. The total number of prisoners is given at 42,000.

Guns to the number of 166 have been captured, and in addition 900 machine guns, 1,800 armored cars, 7 armored trains, 3 airplanes, 21 locomotives, 2,500 wagons, 10 motor cars and great stores of ammunition and other materials which the Bolsheviki had assembled for a Fall drive against the Poles have been taken.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—Press dispatches reaching Stockholm from Finland, according to the correspondent of The London Times, continue to represent that a state of great anxiety prevails in Soviet circles. Reports conveyed across the Russian frontier say that the Red forces are in full retreat on both the Polish front and the Crimea, demoralized, suffering from hunger and surrendering and deserting in large numbers.

The Soviet Government has instituted forced contributions of clothing for the troops. The order says: "Let every one who has two coats, two pairs of boots, two fur caps, give one and save the soldiers from perishing from cold."

Trotzky's efforts to recruit new forces in Siberia and the eastern provinces, the reports say, have failed, the peasants in the agricultural districts and the workmen in the towns equally revolting against further recruitments.

TOKIO FEARS SPREAD OF EXCLUSION SPIRIT

Anxious Lest British Dominions Follow America in Intensifying Movements

BUT WAR IS "IMPOSSIBLE"

Despite Our "Blocking Japan's Progress" in China and Far East Generally.

TOKIO, Oct. 3 (Associated Press).—An inquiry into the situation between Japan and the United States by persons in high position, who follow the course of events in modern Japan but may not be characterized as official, has evolved the following, as summarizing the situation growing out of the anti-Japanese measures proposed by the California Legislature:

First—A genuine feeling of apprehension pervades responsible Japanese quarters over the anti-Japanese movements in the United States, because of the fear that it may lead to intensified exclusion movements against the Japanese elsewhere, especially in the British dominions.

Second—The Japanese contend that if the Japanese question in California is left alone it will settle itself, because when the present settlers, who cannot be naturalized, either die or return to Japan, only their legal American posterity will remain, who in the course of generations will be assimilated.

Third—The Japanese contend that Americans are confusing the present negotiations, which are aimed at protecting the acquired rights of the Japanese now in California, with the general question of immigration, which is not involved.

Fourth—The Japanese maintain that adoption of the Californian measure would add fuel to the anti-American sentiment created by America's blocking what the Japanese call their legitimate and necessary expansion in the Far East, especially in China and Siberia. This sentiment is being steadily fostered by anti-American articles in the Japanese newspapers.

Fifth—While genuinely alarmed at the anti-Japanese movements abroad, the leading Japanese are secretly disturbed at the growth of the individualist movement at home, arising from the dissatisfaction of the people over the economic and political conditions and poverty in large cities, the discontent of laborers resulting from the absorption of social ideas from the West, hostility to capitalism, lack of suitable opportunity for personal progress, and a tendency to blame the nation's leaders for inability to check what they term Japan's moral isolation from the rest of the world.

Sixth—China remains Japan's greatest hope and her greatest problem. Japanese leaders assert that the Americans are blocking Japanese progress in China and in the Far East generally. "Japan must find an outlet and opportunities for her population, which is increasing at the rate of 700,000 yearly," said one official.

Seventh—To a direct question, put by the correspondent, whether war was a possibility, the reply of this official and of leading Japanese civilians was unvaryingly that war with American was, of course, an impossibility, but that it was regretable that an estrangement in friendly relations was within the range of possibility. The replies were unanimous that the Japanese believed the time had arrived when they must "speak out frankly in defense of our interests and say what we want to in the world."

Another person in an interview added to this:

"You Americans should remember that, if you have a political situation at home, we also in Japan have one."

The importance that Japan gives to China is evidenced in a review of Japanese and American relations appearing in the Herald of Asia, a conservative weekly of Japanese thought. After maintaining that the California measure are based on prejudices, born of differences in race, religion and culture, this journal declares that these prejudices and the resultant attitude towards Asiatics are not confined to Americans, but are common to all the white peoples. Closer contact of Americans with the Japanese and other Asiatics only accentuates the points of difference and

TRAIL OF CRIMSON REVEALS A MURDER

Reformed Gangster Shot, Carried Into Dark Corner and Left to Die.

WOUNDED FRIEND IS SILENT

Taken to Hospital in Newspaper Delivery Wagon Under Mysterious Circumstances.

A line of crimson spots showing dimly under the rays of an electric light and extending from the curb across the sidewalk at West Broadway and Park Place early yesterday morning led Patrolman Gallagher to the body of a man, which was pressed against timbers forming a dark corner of an inclosure to an excavation. Apparently the man had died just as the policeman reached him, from a bullet wound in the breast. In a pocket of the slain man's clothing was a loaded revolver. He was identified by detectives of the Beach Street Station as Thomas McGrahan, a stevedore, of 17 Pike Street.

They said that McGrahan, who was 28 years old, was a former member of a west side gang, but he had reformed, and for several years had conducted a prosperous business along the North River waterfront. The police said that McGraham had been carried in a vehicle to the place where his body was found. His death was attributed to enmity or a feud that had some connection with his former associates among the gangsters.

Soon after McGrahan had been identified word came from the Broad Street Hospital that Joseph Burns, 23, of 1,265 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, had been treated for a pistol wound in the abdomen, and was likely to die. He had long been a friend of McGrahan. According to the hospital attendants a newspaper delivery wagon had taken Burns to the door and had immediately speeded away.

Burns, who was not told that McGrahan was dead, said he had been with McGrahan at Sixtieth Street and North River, and the latter was uninjured when they parted shortly after midnight. To Captain Arthur Carey of the Homicide Bureau Burns insisted that his own wound had no connection with the shooting of McGrahan. According to Burns an unknown assailant had attacked him on Chambers Street, near North William Street. He said he was unconscious until revived at the hospital.

"Do you know that McGrahan is dead?" questioned Carey.

"No, I didn't know that," replied Burns. "McGrahan was my best friend. I was best man at his wedding three weeks ago."

"Well, won't you tell who shot you? You know that he is dead and you have been told that you are likely to die."

"I wouldn't tell you if I knew," was the reply.

Three men were arrested at 2:30 o'clock this morning after detectives had been working twelve hours on the case. Detectives traced a wagon to a newspaper handlers' agency at 14 Duane Street and arrested the men there on the charge of acting in complicity in committing homicide. The men were Joseph Kajura of 25 Washington Street; Joseph Lenahan of 22 Rector Street, and Joseph Kiernan of 101 West Six-

SHOTS IN STREET FIGHT HIT 2.

Detective, Attacked at Door of His Home, Uses Pistol.

Shots fired during a fight between several men and Detective John F. Rein of the Special Service Division, who said he was attacked while he was entering his home at 128 West Sixty-third Street, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning, wounded Arthur Brannigan of 148 West Sixty-seventh Street and Thomas Waters, a neighbor of Rein. They were taken to Bellevue Hospital with abdominal wounds, and both were charged with felonious assault. Michael Waters, brother of one of the wounded, was held in bail of $1,000 by Magistrate Schwab in the West Side Court pending examination tomorrow on a similar charge.

According to Mrs. Rein, wife of the detective, she saw her husband fighting with his assailants at Sixty-third Street and Columbus Avenue. The shots attracted 300 persons, and when the sidewalk was cleared the wounded men were found. Policeman Doyle told the Magistrate that Rein was semi-conscious when he reached him, and he arrested Michael Waters, who, he said, was kicking the detective and trying to seize his revolver. Waters said he and his brother, who live in the same apartment building with Rein, were in the hall, and he did not know who had fired the shots.

WILSON ISSUES APPEAL FOR LEAGUE; DECLARES AMERICA MUST KEEP FAITH AND DENIES WAR PLEDGE IN ARTICLE X.

Text of Wilson Appeal for League of Nations

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Wilson's appeal to the public in behalf of the League of Nations, issued tonight, reads as follows:

My Fellow-Countrymen:

The issues of the present campaign are of such tremendous importance, of such far-reaching significance for the influence of the country and the development of its future relations, and I have necessarily had so much to do with their development, that I am sure you will think it natural and proper that I should address to you a few words concerning them.

Every one who sincerely believes in government by the people must rejoice at the turn affairs have taken in regard to this campaign. This election is to be a genuine national referendum. The determination of a great policy upon which the influence and authority of the United States in the world must depend is not to be left to groups of politicians of either party, but is to be referred to the people themselves for a sovereign mandate to their representatives. They are to instruct their own Government what they wish done.

The chief question that is put to you is, of course: Do you want your country's honor vindicated and the Treaty of Versailles ratified? Do you in particular approve of the League of Nations as organized and empowered in that treaty? And do you wish to see the United States play its responsible part in it?

You have been grossly misled with regard to the treaty, and particularly with regard to the proposed character of the League of Nations, by those who have assumed the serious responsibility of opposing it. They have gone so far that those who have spent their lives, as I have spent my life, in familiarizing themselves with the history and traditions and policies of the nation, must stand amazed at the gross ignorance and impudent audacity which have led them to attempt to invent an "Americanism" of their own, which has no foundation whatever in any of the authentic traditions of the Government.

Americanism, as they conceive it, reverses the whole process of the last few tragical years. It would substitute America for Prussia in the policy of isolation and defiant segregation. Their conception of the dignity of the nation and its interest is that we should stand apart and watch for opportunities to advance our own interests, involve ourselves in no responsibility for the maintenance of the right in the world or for the continued vindication of any of the things for which we entered the war to fight.

The conception of the great creators of the Government was absolutely opposite to this. They thought of America as the light of the world, as created to lead the world in the assertion of the rights of peoples and the rights of free nations; as destined to set a responsible example to all the world of what free Government is and can do for the maintenance of right standards, both national and international.

This light the opponents of the League would quench. They would relegate the United States to a subordinate rôle in the affairs of the world.

Why should we be afraid of responsibilities which we are qualified to sustain and which the whole of our history has constituted a promise to the world we would sustain?

This is the most momentous issue that has ever been presented to the people of the United States, and I do not doubt that the hope of the whole world will be verified by an absolute assertion by the voters of the country of the determination of the United States to live up to all the great expectations which they created by entering the war and enabling the other great nations of the world to bring it to a victorious conclusion, to the confusion of Prussianism and everything that arises out of Prussianism. Surely we shall not fail to keep the promise sealed in the death and sacrifice of our incomparable soldiers, sailors and marines who await our verdict beneath the sod of France.

Those who do not care to tell you the truth about the League of Nations tell you that Article X. of the Covenant of the League would make it possible for other nations to lead us into war, whether we will it by our own independent judgment or not. This is absolutely false. There is nothing in the Covenant which in the least interferes with or impairs the right of Congress to declare war or not declare war, according to its own independent judgment, as our Constitution provides.

Those who drew the Covenant of the League were careful that it should contain nothing which interfered with or impaired the constitutional arrangements of any of the great nations which are to constitute its members. They would have been amazed and indignant at the things that are now being ignorantly said about this great and sincere document.

The whole world will wait for your verdict in November as it would wait for an intimation of what its future is to be.

WOODROW WILSON.

COX RETURNS HOME, SEES WEST AWAKE

Says League Facts Are Being Withheld from Voters, Who Realize It.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 3.—Governor Cox returned home tonight from his 10,000-mile campaign trip and on arrival expressed confidence that the tide had turned against the reactionary leaders who, he charges, nominated Senator Harding at Chicago in defiance of the will of the people, and declared that they would find themselves repudiated at the polls in November.

Governor Cox returned to Trail's End thoroughly tired out but more determined than ever to get into the fight again in a few days and make a whirlwind finish in the Middle West and East.

Dayton gave Governor Cox a rousing welcome. Several thousand people were at the station to greet him when his train arrived. The police were powerless to hold back the throng which swept down upon the Governor, shaking his hand and slapping him on the back. Cheers for "Jimmy" resounded again and again. The Governor finally fought his way through the crowd, jumped into an automobile and hurried away to his home.

Governor Cox has been receiving reports from leaders in many parts of the country that the effect of his campaign is being felt and that the crest of the sentiment, which Republican leaders contended would carry them to victory, had passed.

One of those to bring this message in person was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

HARDING APPROVES JOHNSON'S VIEWS

Declares He Is Satisfied Also with Borah's Past and Present Support.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Oct. 3.—In a formal statement issued this afternoon Senator Harding expressed himself as satisfied with the attitude toward himself and the Republican platform of Senator Johnson and Senator Borah, both of whom have been reported as disagreeing with the Presidential nominee on the League of Nations issue.

"I am perfectly satisfied with Senator Borah's support, with what he has said and with what he will say," said the Senator.

"I have just received a full stenographic report of the address of Senator Hiram Johnson, made at Los Angeles, Sept. 25. It dissipates conclusively any notion that Senator Johnson is out of harmony with the platform and the candidate. Among other things he says:

"'Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Why forego the advantages so peculiar to the situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign soil? The Republican Party re-echoes those words in the campaign: "Why quit our own to stand upon foreign soil?"

"'Jefferson, whose policy we indorse in our platform—the greatest of Democrats, not of the sort today, but of those days—stated his policy thus: "I am for free commerce with all nations and

PRESIDENT ENTERS FIGHT

League Appeal Is the First of a Series in Campaign Finale.

SAYS ISSUE IS FALSIFIED

Denies League Impairs Constitution and Charges Distortion of Americanism.

FEARS SUBORDINATE NATION

Democrats, Under President's Lead, Will Now Centre Speeches on the League.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Wilson tonight entered the campaign by issuing his first direct appeal to the voters to sustain the League of Nations in the referendum that is to be taken in the November election.

This statement, announced as the first of a series which will be issued by the President in the final month of the campaign, is addressed to "My fellow-countrymen." It forcibly attacks the arguments of the opponents of the treaty, who he says would "substitute America for Prussia in the policy of isolation and defiant segregation."

In this appeal the President deals with one phase of the League of Nations, Article X. In subsequent addresses which he plans to make to the voters, it is announced, he will discuss other vital and controverted features of the covenant. This, it is believed here, makes the League the real and only issue of the campaign, which will form the driving appeal of the Democratic speakers in the last days of the fight.

President Wilson intends to lead the way and furnish the arguments in refutation of statements made by the opponents of the League. He will virtually direct the course of the Democratic speakers in the final days and supply the chief appeal. All other issues will be subordinated from now on.

Declares the People "Grossly Misled."

After stating that the coming election will be a "genuine national referendum" in which the people are called upon to determine a great policy and instruct their Government, the President says that the people "have been grossly misled with regard to the treaty and particularly with regard to the proposed character of the League of Nations, by those who have assumed the serious responsibility of opposing it." The opponents of the treaty, he asserts, have "invented an Americanism of their own which has no foundation whatever in any of the authentic traditions of the Government."

"Why should we be afraid of the responsibilities we are qualified to sustain, and which the whole of our history has constituted a promise to the world we would sustain?" asks the President.

After declaring that under Article X. war cannot be declared except by Congress and that nothing in the article impairs the constitutional procedures of any nation, the President closes thus:

"The whole world will wait for your verdict in November as it would wait for an intimation of what its future is to be."

Centring Fight on League Issue.

The League of Nations has not been sufficiently dwelt upon in the early period of the campaign, according to some politicians here. The President has felt that it should have been placed squarely before the people and that other things which have to be discussed by the speakers should have been incidental. In the last few days the leaders, those advising Governor Cox, and, of course, the President, have found that the people were interested in only one thing, a proper and thorough exposition of the treaty.

Accordingly, the plan of the Democratic campaign will be changed. The change comes with the President's appeal, and from now on the Democratic speakers and Governor Cox will devote their time to explaining fully the League covenant and answering Republican criticism.

There will be a conference of Democratic leaders soon to discuss in detail how this campaign shall be directed. Homer S. Cummings, former Democratic National Chairman, and Isadore B. Dockweiler, National Committeeman from California, are here tonight and other leaders are expected.

Nothing that has been done in the campaign has so inspired the Democratic hosts as the entrance of the President into the fight. Leaders who have come here have advised the White House that the country expects to hear from the President, and that only his voice can bring together the forces upholding the League of Nations. They say that a dozen clearly expressed statements from the President explaining the chief articles in the covenant will be most effective.

It is understood that the President is glad to aid at the request of the party leaders. It is known that he has not liked the early trend of the campaign and some of the things that have been said by Governor Cox in criticism of members of his Cabinet. But he is reported to be willing to overlook what was said in the heat of the campaign and direct the attention of the voters toward the League issue.

Daniels Predicts Decisive Effect.

Secretary Daniels said that the League of Nations was the outstanding issue in the campaign and that the President's entrance into the fight in the closing days would clear up some of the misinformation and have a decisive effect on the election.

"Wherever I have been to speak I have found the people tremendously interested in the League," he said. "If the politicians think the people are not interested in it they are greatly mistaken. All that we need to do is to get the meaning of the League to the people in a clear and proper light.

"The President's statement will be received and accepted as giving clear information which will refute the hazy and evasive statements which a month ago a great many of the people had been accepting, but which today they are rejecting."

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK HERE.

Will Open Speakers' Class of Citizens' Committee Today.

Governor Smith will open the Speakers' Class of the Citizens' Committee for Alfred E. Smith at the Hotel Biltmore this afternoon. Instruction and rehearsal in public speaking for women who are preparing to take the stump for Governor Smith will be given by Miss Dorothy Donnelly, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Secretary of the committee, said a flying squadron of these women speakers would be formed to advocate the re-election of Governor Smith from automobiles at street meetings all over the city.

Governor and Mrs. Smith will go to Oliver Street to register in the afternoon, and the Governor will attend a reception at the National Democratic Club to Lieutenant Governor Walker before leaving at 8 o'clock in the evening for Plattsburg, where he will speak tomorrow night. He will speak at Malone on Wednesday, Ogdensburg on Thursday, Watertown on Friday and Oswego on Saturday.

The first big Democratic meeting of the campaign in Manhattan will be held at Tammany Hall on Friday night. Bourke Cockran, a candidate for Congress in the Sixteenth Congressional District, will make the principal speech.

AUTO CAMPAIGN BY WOMEN.

Republican Motor Corps to Transport Speakers and Form Parades.

The organization of a Republican Women's National Motor Corps, with Miss Maude Wetmore, of Newport, R. I., as chairman, was announced yesterday at Republican National Headquarters. The Motor Corps, which will be formed entirely of Republican women, will be used for the transportation of speakers, parades and for any other party service.

Brassards of blue felt carrying an elephant with the letters, "G. O. P.," have been donated, and will be worn by the members. Each automobile will display the Harding automobile sticker, with the name "Harding" on a red, white and blue ground.

Miss Wetmore has appointed the following women as chairmen of State units of the Motor Corps: Mrs. C. Delancey Allice, Hartford, Conn.; Miss Evelyn Miller, Des Moines, Iowa; Mrs. S. G. Boggs, Topeka, Kansas; Miss Nellie Callender, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Frank H. Hall, Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. E. A. Hughes, Bismarck, N. D.; Mrs. Harry Newbill, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mrs. Thomas Elwyn, Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Alice O'Brien, St. Paul, Minn.; Mrs. A. E. Roop, Salem, S. D., and Mrs. E. T. Borden, Houston, Tex.

political connections with none. I am for not linking ourselves by any treaties with the quarrels of Europe, or entering the field of slaughter to preserve their balance, or to join with a confederacy of kings to war against the principles of liberty." That was Thomas Jefferson.'

"Continuing, Senator Johnson said: 'We have never lived a selfish national life. We have never been isolated from the rest of the world. America has ever played her part, has ever responded to the call of civilization and the cry of humanity; and in future, just as in the past, whenever there comes to us "the cry of humanity and the call of civilization," America will respond as she has in the days gone by. But when we respond we will respond in our own time and in our own way, and under the Stars and Stripes. It is not a question of isolation. We will never be selfish, we will never be ungenerous, my friends. We never have been. All that we beg for is that when the time comes to act, the generation of that particular period may determine for itself how it will act, and that we today, under the influence that has come to us as a psychological reflex of the great war, shall not determine how every future generation shall act in the crisis which shall come to it. That, in reality, is the nub of the whole proposition presented. The man who made this fight, today united in the support of Mr. Harding, because his view has been fully, hopefully and emphatically expressed to the American people. I take off my hat to Senator Harding on his characterization of that instrument (the treaty). Mr. Harding, in his speech of acceptance, says it is better to be the free and disinterested agent of international justice and advancing civilization with the covenant of conscience than to be shackled by a written contract which surrenders our freedom of action and gives that military alliance the right to proclaim America's attitude to the world. Oh! but he is eternally right.'

"In the conclusion of his address Senator Johnson used these words: "'Under' which flag, my friends? Under the polyglot international banner of Europe, or under the old Stars and Stripes? That is the issue.'

"Senator Johnson frequently quoted from the League of Nations address which I delivered on Aug. 26, giving his unqualified approval to it. And in that connection he made an eloquent appeal for the election of Samuel M. Shortridge, the Republican candidate for the Senate from California, urging the necessity to elect men to House and Senate who will support the policy of the Republican Party.

"Senator Johnson's speech, with this generous indorsement of the party's platform and my own interpretation of it, brings no surprise to me. More than that, it adds to my confidence that when we have recorded America against the menace which we were being 'let in for,' we are going to be able to have America, agreed on a program which shall hold us forever free and still play our part in expressing the new conscience of the world."

It has been feared here that with former supporters of Senator Johnson's pre-convention campaign flocking to Marion with assurances to support Harding, Senators Johnson and Borah might be resentful. It is believed that Senator Harding has been exerting himself to keep both Senators in line and that his statement is a part of that endeavor.

Senator Harding will motor tomorrow to Fremont and speak in Spiegel Grove at the unveiling of a memorial tablet in honor of Sandusky County soldiers who perished in the World War. This grove is a part of the Rutherford B. Hayes estate, and Senator and Mrs. Harding will be the guests at luncheon of Colonel Webb Hayes, President Hayes's son.

On Wednesday the Senator will leave Marion for a five day speaking tour in Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Oklahoma. His itinerary calls for five long speeches at Des Moines on the morning of Oct. 7, Omaha the same night; St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 8, and Kansas City that night. His last speech of the tour will be at Oklahoma City. He will return to Marion Oct. 11, but is scheduled to depart the next day for Chattanooga, where he is to speak on Oct. 13.

HADLEY SEES LACK OF POLITICAL GRASP

WAR HAS LEFT CONFUSION

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 3.—President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale University delivered today the annual matriculation address to the members of the class of 1924.

Asserting that old restraints had been broken down by public opinion, and that old rules of conduct had seemingly lost their authoritative force, Dr. Hadley declared the political confusion of the present year, reflected the moral and intellectual confusion behind it. He told the undergraduates that not only should they become leaders, but they must know where to lead. He said that the politicians in Jerusalem 1,900 years ago were singularly like those today, not lacking in courage, but in knowledge of the situation with which they have to deal.

As President Hadley will retire from the Presidency next June, today's matriculation address was his last as executive head of the university. He said in part:

"The war proved both to the student and to the world that American college education was a training for service. It showed that our American students as a body combined idealism, instinct of leadership, and power of accurate expression; that they had developed these things in college, partly in the classroom and partly outside of it; and that the use which a serious student had made of his opportunities had fitted him to be an officer. In the year 1918 the student who had learned to write clearly, calculate accurately, or weigh evidence fairly, was given chance of large service; and those who hoped to obtain similar chances during the years following had a motive for studying language and science and history and philosophy such as their fathers never had before them.

"The national need for men of this type is as great in 1920 as it was in 1918. The events of the last few years have broken down many of the conventions by which the American people were formerly guided. Old restraints have been removed by the progress of public opinion; old rules of conduct seem to have lost their authoritative force. The political confusion of the present year simply reflects a moral and intellectual confusion which lies behind it. Every such breakdown of rules and conventions creates a demand for leadership and an opportunity for the man who is prepared to take the lead. This was what happened in England after the conflict between King and Parliament in the middle of the seventeenth century. It was what happened in France after the great revolution of 1789. It is what is happening in America today as a result of the great world war. The power of accurate thinking and clear expression which the student can learn in the classroom, coupled with the knowledge of men of varied types and the understanding of public opinion which he gets outside of the classroom, will give him his chance in the next five years just as surely as they did in the last. The man who can appreciate and express the ideals both of the past and the present has political power in his grasp if he chooses to take it. The leaders of a democracy—the Calhouns and the Jacksons, the Websters and the Lincolns—are the men who can put its inarticulate thoughts into language. Let no man who can think and write believe that the advent of peace has deprived him of opportunity for public service.

"But it is not enough to be put in positions of leadership; we must know whither to lead. We must have our minds open to facts of every kind. We must understand evidence and proof. We must have a sense of the larger historical and moral values. We must have intellectual courage. These four things—open-mindedness, critical judgment, vision and courage—mark a man out as one to be trusted and followed. * * * It is a common complaint that our politicians are destitute of courage of any kind. I do not believe that this complaint is well founded. What is called lack of courage is chiefly lack of conviction; and this lack of conviction springs from lack of knowledge. Men would not sacrifice the large interests of tomorrow to the small interests of today if they had any clear idea of what was going to happen tomorrow. In the absence of any such clear idea, they are content to drift with the crowd instead of staking their political future upon unknown hazards.

"This is no new thing. The politicians in Jerusalem nineteen hundred years ago were singularly like the politicians in Washington today. Did Pontius Pilate lack courage? Did Felix and Festus and Agrippa lack courage? I think not. They lacked knowledge of the situation with which they had to deal. They were content to be mere opportunists, more concerned to avoid immediate unpopularity or the danger of political disorder than to settle controversies which their training had not fitted them to understand. But we know what came of the work of Pontius Pilate and the Roman Governors that followed him. The policy which was intended to keep the peace resulted in civil war of the worst and most destructive kind. * * *

"The hard road is the only one worth taking. It is for us to see more than those about us; to get the knowledge which will give us convictions independent of popular feeling, and the courage which will come of those convictions. For the moment this may stand in our way politically; but it is the only basis of success in the long run, either for us or for those whom we seek to guide. If the blind lead the blind, both fall into the ditch. Safety for the nation can only come when the multitude turns to the man who has kept his sight clear."

LABOR OPENS FIGHT TO BEAT WADSWORTH

Many Speakers, Headed by Morrison, to Wage Campaign Here This Month.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Plans have been made by the American Federation of Labor in its effort to defeat Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., in his campaign for re-election to the Senate from New York.

Announcement was made today by the "Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee" of the federation that on Oct. 13 Frank Morrison, Secretary of the federation, would begin a five days' tour of the State at Syracuse, and that other federation speakers would be sent through New York from now until the end of October. The committee stated that fifteen federation representatives, including women, were working against Senator Wadsworth in New York.

The chief counts in the federation's indictment of Mr. Wadsworth are his opposition to woman suffrage and his votes on the Esch-Cummins railroad bill. It was said by the committee that fifty New York delegates of the Women's Auxiliary of the Machinists' Union have returned home from a convention in Washington with the avowed determination of spending the entire time remaining before election in campaigning against the Senator, whose record they characterize as reactionary in the extreme."

SOCIALISTS PICK ATLANTA.

Remove Campaign Headquarters to That City to be Near Debs.

National Campaign Headquarters of the Socialist Party have been removed from Chicago to Atlanta, Ga., it was announced here yesterday, in order that the members of the Campaign Committee might keep in closer touch with Eugene V. Debs, Socialist nominee for President, who is confined in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta. Besides the public meeting in Atlanta on Saturday, preceding the meeting of the Socialist National Committee there yesterday, it was announced that Socialist meetings would be held in Birmingham, Nashville, Memphis and other Southern cities.

It also was said at Socialist headquarters that 60,000 persons had contributed to the Socialist State campaign fund, for which it is proposed to raise $300,000. Collections will be taken today in all shops in which there are employes belonging to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union and the Chandelier Makers' Union. The Joint Board of the Millinery Workers' Union donated $500 yesterday to the Socialist fund.

nominee for Vice President on the Democratic ticket, who boarded Governor Cox's car at Terre Haute early this afternoon and rode as far as Indianapolis. Mr. Roosevelt said that sentiment for the League of Nations was gaining rapidly and that leaders in some districts who had asked him to talk of other issues were now urging that the League issue be pressed to the utmost.

Governor Cox issued a statement tonight giving his impressions of the campaign and asserting that "it is nothing short of criminal the way the evidence, touching upon the question of the League of Nations, has been deliberately withheld from the people."

He discussed campaign plans with Mr. Roosevelt. In the closing weeks of the campaign the League of Nations, and the family quarrel among the Republican leaders over it, is certain to be made conspicuous.

Statements which have been made by leaders in many Western States that there was no popular sentiment for Harding were indorsed by Mr. Roosevelt, who said that this lack of enthusiasm for the candidate extended into several Eastern States as well.

Governor Cox tried to make Sunday a day of rest, but crowds along the line in Indiana interrupted the program. This was especially true where railroad workers are segregated. They were out to cheer for the Governor and promise support. When they did not have a chance to shake hands they waved their hats after the train. Governor Cox made no speeches today, but where the train stopped for a few minutes at stations he stepped out on the platform to greet the crowds.

Says the West Is Awake.

The statement Governor Cox issued tonight concerning his tour says of the people of the West:

"They are independent in political thought and are willing to play their part in civilization, but they want a square deal from the Government and they are going to insist upon it.

"They realize in the last month just what the maintained reactionary propaganda has meant. The thing they resent most is the deliberate withholding of the facts bearing upon present conditions. I have been amazed at their eagerness to have the evidence. They realize, progressive as they are, that the opportunity is here to create a new order in the world. They have developed a feeling approaching real bitterness against the Senatorial oligarchy and big business. The largesses of business in no way disturb them, but its continued financial contribution to reaction is abundant evidence of an understanding that bodes no good for the great mass of the public.

"Following the war, with all of its disturbing elements, there is no question but what there was a feeling that a turn in the road was desirable and a political change was generally discussed. The voters, however, in this enlightened day, think before they act, and they are realizing in the West that the political change which they had in mind meant the reintrenchment of the same old gang that Roosevelt drove out in 1912. The patronizing attitude of the senatorial oligarchy has offended the West and the plan of making the people come to the senatorial front porch had developed into a comedy long before we reached the coast. Every crowd, whether it was in the ranch country or the mining camps or the business centres, gave demonstrative evidence of public ridicule.

"The West has seen something of radicalism and they have been sufficiently close in contact to know what causes it. Standpatism, the failure to note changing conditions and provide for them, in short a failure of State Government to provide for emergency, to say nothing of policies that were defiant to public interest, made the trouble. The theory of one extreme following another has been clearly demonstrated and the Western people are certain that four years of reactionary policies and Senatorial control of the Presidency means chaos during a period that holds unusual possibilities for great internal and international development if progressive constructive Governmental policy is maintained.

"In communities, large and small, paid emissaries from Republican national headquarters are actually trampling on each other's toes. Apparently every camp follower in America is on the pay roll. Evidence of the expenditure of money is so apparent, even in remote places, that there is no longer a doubt about the alliance between big business, grasping profiteers and the Senatorial oligarchy. The 'return to normalcy' is not a reassuring phrase in the West. They have had all they want of the past. More people own their own homes than ever before. Under the operations of the Federal Reserve Banking System, farmers have been enabled to conduct their affairs along business lines based upon prudent credit, and thousands upon thousands of tenants and farm hands, under the favoring provisions of the Farm Loan act, are now land owners. The West has caught a glimpse of what it will mean to abolish large armaments and apply our resources to domestic improvement.

"Another thing that has taken hold of the farmer is that in the consciousness of his service in feeding humanity he believes that he is entitled to some protection against loss. It has been against him in very much larger percentage than any other industry. In short, in the raising of his crop, he has never been enabled to know whether his labors would result in profit or loss.

Says Evidence Is Withheld.

"It is nothing short of criminal the way the evidence touching upon the question of the League of Nations has been deliberately withheld from the people. The resentment against reactionary newspapers was apparent everywhere. The circumstance, which has added to this feeling, is the refusal of the Senatorial oligarchy to print the League of Nations covenant in the Republican campaign book. Instead of presenting the very plain provisions of Article X. they have used it for purposes of misrepresentation and alarm in at least one State capital.

"The propaganda has been so successful that the Democratic Chairman urged me not to discuss the question. The enthusiastic response to the discussion of the League of Nations led to his suggestion that in the rest of our meetings in the State nothing else be talked about. The West understands now why agricultural products are falling in price, and it also has a full appreciation of the importance of maintaining stabilized market conditions throughout the world. Furthermore, it realizes that unless the practical opportunities which the League of Nations affords overseas are availed of, the demand for our agricultural and industrial products will decline to a small volume.

"Three weeks ago the West was amused at the attempt of both Senator Johnson and ex-President Taft to recommend the Senatorial candidate for the Presidency. Recently it is resentful over the situation. In every audience, the prevalent belief was that Senator Harding was either attempting to maintain a deceitful attitude or was groping about with such uncertainty himself that public confidence was not promoted.

"Another thing which disturbed the West was the unwillingness of the Senatorial mind to be questioned with reference to the overshadowing issue of the campaign. The spectacle of a man being jailed for presuming to submit an inquiry was scarcely believable. When the press dispatches, however, confirmed it, the people gained a glimpse of the sort of Russianized despotism and autocratic defiance to the public that can naturally be expected to follow a reactionary victory at the polls."

Sees Brighter Prospects in West.

Governor Cox visited more than a score of the Middle Western and Far Western States on his trip. That there was lack of organization and in some spots apathy on the part of Democratic workers did not discourage him. As a result, the fight is moving at a much faster pace in almost every Western community now than before the Governor went West.

Democratic leaders are listing at least six Western States as in the Democratic column. These are Utah, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Montana. Colorado is placed in the same category by most. All of the other Western States are put down as debatable, with the possible exceptions of Oregon and South Dakota.

The Republicans claim California by 75,000, and say that Washington, Oregon, Wyoming, Idaho, Wisconsin, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas are safe. But according to the Democrats as the campaign progresses the confidence of the Republican leaders of the West is by no means so great.

According to some Democrats when plans to take Senator Harding off the front porch at Marion and send him out into the country were announced there was uneasiness among some Republican leaders of the West. It is reported that publication of a schedule that would take Senator Harding into California and several other Far Western States caused dismay. It is said that Western leaders protested and had the schedule revised.

The Democratic leaders say that in the Western country the personality of Harding and the names of the group of men—Smoot, Penrose, Lodge and others—whom he has around him has been kept out of the campaign as much as the Republican leaders could keep them out. The stirring up of antagonism to President Wilson and the allegation that Governor Cox is a "wet" have been made the basis of the Republican campaign.

But where the Republican leaders have put the soft pedal on Harding and his advisers, Governor Cox in his tour of the West did his best to defeat such a program. His summons to the Progressives to repudiate the men whom Roosevelt fought was insistent.

On the cordial welcome to Cox and the uncertainty of the woman vote, some of the Democratic leaders are basing their hope that there will be a turning away from Harding and the reactionary leaders.

The attitude of the professional pro-Germans will probably come in for attention at the hands of Governor Cox as he invades the Middle West and East. Advisers of Governor Cox do not believe that the great mass of the voters of German origin are followers of these leaders but are, above all else, Americans with a long memory concerning the cost to them of autocratic rule in Germany.

CROWELL COMES OUT FOR HARDING TICKET

Ex-Assistant Secretary of War and Wilson Backer Declares His Stand.

FAVORS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

But Prefers to Trust Republicans on That Question—Thinks Efficiency Is Big Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—In a statement furnished to the press today by the Republican National Committee, Benedict Crowell of Cleveland, Ohio, who was Assistant Secretary of War in the present Administration and retired from office recently, declares in favor of the election of Harding and a Republican Congress.

Mr. Crowell, who supported President Wilson in the campaigns of 1912 and 1916, has now returned to his former party allegiance. In his statement he said that he was in favor of the League of Nations, but preferred to take his chances on the League with Senator Harding rather than with Governor Cox.

The statement quotes Mr. Crowell as follows:

"Now that President Wilson is retiring from active political life it is wise for his supporters to pause and take stock of the situation. I have always favored a League of Nations and am sorry we did not enter it long ago. The Democratic Party, however, has no monopoly on the League. Indeed the present Democratic Administration has failed to get this country into the League of Nations in spite of the fact that 76 per cent. of the Senate were in favor of it. Nor does the opposition to the League lie wholly within the Republican Party, many prominent Democrats having consistently opposed it.

"It seems evident that Governor Cox is making many promises regarding the League which he may not be able to fulfill. Senator Harding is wisely noncommittal on the subject. World affairs are changing so rapidly that it is impossible for any man to diagnose the future and say just what should be done six months hence to make effective the influence of the United States in a world concert dedicated against armed strife between the great powers. A decision made today might be obsolete tomorrow.

"I have every confidence in Senator Harding's judgment and believe he will do the right thing when the proper time comes. I therefore favor the election of Harding and Coolidge and a Republican Congress with an administration and Congress of the same political faith earnestly working together, I am confident this problem will be settled right.

"An efficient administration, in my opinion, is the great issue in this election. Senator Harding's election will, I believe, insure more efficiency in the Government than the election of Governor Cox, who has been compelled to accept the reluctant support of certain members of the present Administration that could contribute little to the strength of the next administration. I want to see the Government of the United States really administered, and the only way to accomplish this, it seems to me, is to completely overhaul the Federal machinery."

ANTI-COX DEMOCRATS RALLY

Harding League Opens Meetings Today at Old Knickerbocker.

The Harding Democratic League, of which Rhinelander Waldo is Chairman, will begin today a series of midday campaign rallies in what formerly was the barroom of the old Hotel Knickerbocker, Broadway and Forty-second Street. Among the speakers will be John T. Cronin, Commissioner of Public Safety of Beacon, N. Y.; Henry T. Ryan of Boston and Miss Adelaide Thurston of Trenton, N. J.

Meetings will be held daily at noon until Election Day with Democrats speaking for Harding and against Cox and the League of Nations.

ASKS VOTES FOR MRS. BOOLE

W. H. Anderson Urges "Dry" Republicans to Defeat Wadsworth.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Oct. 3.—William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, advised prohibition Republicans to vote for Mrs. Ella A. Boole, prohibition nominee for United States Senator, to defeat Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., the Republican candidate, instead of voting for Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker, the Democratic candidate, in an address here this morning at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Anderson repeated his charge that William Barnes, Republican leader of Albany, had entered into a "deal" with Tammany by which "wet" Republican votes would be thrown to Governor Smith in return for Democratic votes for Senator Walker.

"Tammany has put up Lieutenant Governor Walker as the goat to be sacrificed," said Mr. Anderson. "If he is cut by Tammany, according to the present indications, prohibition Republican votes cast for him would not show. A vote for Mrs. Boole will not only help defeat Wadsworth, but it will furnish incontrovertible proof of a balance of power that will have its effect on the politics and politicians of this State for a generation to come."

HILLQUIT DERIDES OLD PARTY FUSION

Declares Socialist Movement Is Helped by Such United Opposition.

CALLS FOES CAPITALISTIC

Congressman Siegel, His Opponent in Campaign, Has Twice Defeated Him.

Fusion by the Republicans and Democrats against Socialist candidates may result in fewer Socialists in the Legislature and in Congress, but will help the general Socialist movement by making it clear that there is no real difference between the two old parties and only one anti-capitalist party, the Socialist Party, Morris Hillquit, Socialist candidate for Congress in the Twentieth Congressional District, told 3,000 of his supporters yesterday in opening his campaign at the New Star Casino, Park Avenue and East 107th Street.

Mr. Hillquit is opposed by Congressman Isaac Siegel, who has both the Democratic and Republican nominations and has defeated him twice before. Fusion has also been effected against seven Socialist candidates for the Assembly in New York City.

"Fortunately for the ultimate success of Socialism, the old parties grow more self-confident, brazen and stupid in their policies and their most monumental stupidity is their open fusion in the political districts in which socialism is strong," said Mr. Hillquit. "Whether we Socialists elect a few more or a few less representatives for the time being is a matter of comparative indifference, but it is of tremendous importance for our cause to have the old parties throw off their hypocritical mask of bi-partisanship and to reveal themselves as a political changeling with two rapacious bodies and one reactionary soul.

"The fusion of the Republican and Democrats in the face of the sharp issues which are alleged to divide them in a critical Presidential election demonstrates the real issues more clearly and definitely than a score of political platforms," he continued. "The old parties may have their little family quarrels, but they are one in upholding the capitalist rule in the United States. The mask has been thrown off. There is but one capitalist party. There is but one working-class party. They are both before you. By your vote you will choose between them."

Mr. Hillquit, who said that because of his absence from New York he had been out of touch with politics, quoted an unnamed editor of a conservative newspaper to the effect that President Wilson by keeping war-time laws in effect was able to maintain military rule in the political and industrial life of the United States.

GRANDMOTHER'S SILK DRESS

You have heard of that wonderful silk, so stiff the dress would stand alone, handed down in the family, and seeming never to wear out.

That was the way they made silks in those days. Competition was not so keen then. People who could afford silk dresses at all bought nothing but the best.

And so with writing paper. When Crane & Co. began they made paper that was really too good for many uses to which it was put, but it was the only paper there was. It was used for everything.

Crane & Co. went on making that kind of paper, while other manufacturers found ways of making cheaper papers, plenty good enough for many uses.

Meanwhile governments, financial institutions, engravers, learned that when a paper for some very important purpose was desired, Crane & Co. were still making paper with that old-fashioned durability.

So CRANE'S Bond is today carrying the bulk of the important business of the world.

REPUBLICANS SPLIT IN LENROOT FIGHT

James Thompson Is Out for Senatorship as a La Follette Progressive.

SURPRISE TO THE REGULARS

Dr. Reinsch, Democrat, Is Now Expected to Make a Strong Run in Wisconsin.

ILLINOIS SNARL MAY END

Plan Offered for Lowden and Thompson Candidates for Governor to Withdraw.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 3.—An unexpected rupture in the Wisconsin Republican ranks came last night when nomination papers were filed for James Thompson to run for Senator on an independent ticket. The papers specified that Thompson would make the race as a "La Follette Progressive."

The filing of the papers only a half hour within the time limit for filing nominations had an effect like a bombshell in the Lenroot camp, whose supporters had confidently expected that Thompson would remain out of the race on condition that the conservatives did not choose a man to fight John J. Blaine, La Follette man and Non-Partisan Leaguer, who won the Gubernatorial nomination.

Roy P. Wilcox, who gave Blaine a close rub for the nomination, was wanted as an independent candidate, but in the interest of harmony it was decided to keep him out, hoping that the La Follette men would support Lenroot in exchange for conservative support of Blaine. The Republican State platform convention recently, although controlled by the conservatives, did not go out of its way to incur the enmity of the La Follette element.

The latest developments mean that the Lenroot forces will now bend their efforts toward wrecking the La Follette and Non-Partisan candidates' chances. Sentiment in favor of Robert P. McCoy, Democratic candidate for Governor, was very strong, and the Thompson entry will bring some doubting Thomases under the McCoy banner. McCoy is waging an aggressive campaign against heavy odds, but tonight Democratic leaders believe he has an excellent chance of being elected.

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, the Democratic candidate for Senator, has started his speaking campaign, and with the rift in the Republican ranks it is thought that he, too, will make a strong run in what was before a hopeless fight.

The entrance of Thompson will endanger the Republican national ticket. Wisconsin is strongly partisan in its State elections, and is often extremely apathetic towards national affairs. At present it has a merry little battle in its own back yard and will devote its attention to that.

SEEK TO COMPROMISE CONTEST IN ILLINOIS

Harlan Urges Oglesby and Small to Chose with Him a Single Candidate.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—John E. Oglesby and Len Small, respectively the Lowden and Thompson contenders for the Republican nomination for Governor of Illinois, were urged tonight to surrender their disputed claims and agree to support a third man, selected by themselves, in the interests of Republican harmony in the State.

John Maynard Harlan, whose own petition as a Harding-Coolidge Republican was filed at Springfield Saturday, made the proposal. He himself agreed to withdraw if the other candidates would do so, and to join with them in selecting a Republican candidate for Governor who would be acceptable to all three and to the Republicans of the State. He laid his proposition before the two contenders for the nominations in letters addressed to their homes in Springfield and Kankakee.

"Distressed by the bitter war still waging under your names, and fearing that it might result, not only in electing a Democratic Governor, but in reprisals prejudicial to our national ticket," says Mr. Harlan in his letter, "the National Young Men's Republican League, a non-factional organization, notified me several days ago that it would file a petition nominating me for Governor as a Harding-Coolidge Republican—one not involved in the present internal strife in Illinois and one who, they hope, would prove acceptable to all Illinois Republicans desiring harmony.

"That petition was filed yesterday in the office of the Secretary of State. I am nevertheless free under the law to withdraw my name at any time before the eighth of this month. I assume that each of you is no less anxious than I am to promote and magnify the triumph of our national ticket. Having that object in common you can, and I hope you will, induce your supporters, if not to make a permanent treaty of peace at least to declare an armistice until after Nov. 2.

"I hope that you will both be willing to join with me in naming as our party's candidate for Governor one who would be acceptable to all Illinois Republicans, as personifying the best traditions, aspirations, purposes and capabilities of our great party."

Then Mr. Harlan makes his proposal for the withdrawal of Oglesby, Small and himself, and a conference between the three and the selection of a nominee by them, who will be made the regular Republican nominee by action of the State Committee, which under the law can fill all vacancies.

REGISTER!

Registration for New York City voters will begin this afternoon at five o'clock and will end at half-past ten o'clock on Saturday night. The registration places will be open from 5 P. M. to 10:30 P. M. every day except Saturday, when they will be open from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. Personal registration is required in New York City, and the only opportunity to register and to enroll for next year's party primaries will be this week.

HARDING'S HECKLER STILL UNSATISFIED

Ryan Writes Senator He Has Read Speeches, but Can't Find League Stand.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Edward A. Ryan, who was arrested last week in Baltimore when he asked Senator Harding a question at a public meeting, sent a letter to the Republican nominee tonight. This was in reply to a telegram from Mr. Harding, who informed his questioner that he could get a clear statement of his views on the treaty from his speeches. In his letter Mr. Ryan said he had read his speeches, but failed to find an answer because the speeches "contain evidences of a changing, vacillating policy on your part each succeeding day."

Mr. Ryan's letter, made public here tonight, reads:

"Washington, D. C., Oct. 3, 1920.

"Hon. Warren G. Harding, Marion, Ohio:

"My dear Senator—It was most courteous and thoughtful on your part to make acknowledgment of my wire to you asking definite information with reference to your present attitude toward the League of Nations. Of course, I gladly acquit you of any personal responsibility in connection with the unfortunate occurrences surrounding your initial meting at Baltimore.

"Frankly, your refusal to answer my question whether you agreed with Senator Johnson in scrapping the League only intensifies and confirms the grave doubts in the public mind as to what your real attitude is toward the League of Nations. In his Sacramento speech Senator Johnson definitely stated that the League was "scrapped," and many of your friends are of the opinion that in making this statement Senator Johnson either spoke under your authority or with your acquiescence. A frank answer, therefore, to my inquiry would have settled this vital question. I am sorry that you have not seen fit to make it.

"Acting upon the suggestion contained in your wire I made a review of your speeches for the purpose of finding out whether they would disclose, as you claim they would, a clear statement of your views with reference to our future international policy. I am sorry, however, to report to you, my dear Senator, that my labor has been in vain. These speeches, I regret to say, contain evidences of a changing, vacillating policy on your part with each succeeding day. In your utterances there is such a conglomerate variety of contrary opinions upon the supreme issue of the campaign—the League of Nations—that it clearly appears that you are not 'at one' in your views with the leaders of your party, Messrs. Taft, Wickersham, Borah and Johnson.

"You have it in your power to clear away the mists of doubt. Why not do so by frankly answering the question I put to you at Baltimore and again repeated in my wire of a few days ago? The question is, Do you agree with Senator Johnson in his proposal to scrap the League?

"Awaiting your reply on this matter, I am, most respectfully yours,

"EDWARD A. RYAN."

Coolidge Has Wedding Anniversary

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 3.—Governor Coolidge observed his fifteenth wedding anniversary at his home here today with Mrs. Coolidge. There was no formal celebration, the Governor attending the Edwards Congregational Church in the morning and spending the rest of the day quietly with his family.

han's men confiscated and took to their headquarters at 14 Park Row for translation was a letterhead with this title—"Ksidzeczka Podtkowa z'Drukarni—Czas, 142 Grand Street." In the opinion of the agents this was the letterhead of some organization to which Zelenska belonged. This belief, they said, was borne out by the recollection of Terkasky.

Judging from the addresses of some of the letters, all in Russian, the Pittsburgh suspect at one time was employed in Woodman, W. Va. They also found that he had a Post Office box in the Pittsburgh Post Office under the name of "P. Zelenko." The number of the box, according to the memorandum, was 25.

Another document that aroused the interest of the sleuths was a Russian passport made out to Zelenska. The agents declined to disclose the Russian city which the passport named as the starting place of Zelenska's trip. The passport bore the date of Oct. 1, 1918. At first the agents thought the passport had been used by some friend of the man, because their information was that he had been in this country for six or seven years. Later, however, they found the name almost lost in the mass of Russian engraving on the document.

The agents next came across a pay envelope issued to Zelenska, they said, by the Hercules Powder Company. They said that the man had been employed by the powder company about two years ago. Directly after this find, the agents collected all of the papers and sent them to their headquarters.

By further questioning the agents found that for four weeks prior to his leaving the Cleveland Street house, Zelenska had been employed as a tailor at a shop in Riverdale Avenue, Brooklyn. Agents were out this morning endeavoring to check up this information.

Neither local Police Headquarters nor the Detective Bureau in Brooklyn were aware last night of the Pittsburgh arrest or the developments by the Federal agents, according to statements made to reporters who sought information from them. It was said that Detective Sergeant James J. Degan, head of the Bomb Squad, had not run across Zelenska in any of his investigations into radical activities, but that a check-up would be made this morning at headquarters.

CITY REGISTRATION WILL START TODAY

Resident Who Fails to Do So Cannot Vote at Coming Election.

MUST APPEAR PERSONALLY

Leaders Plan Special Drive to Have Women Register, Regardless of Affiliations.

Registration for the Presidential election on Nov. 2 will begin in New York City today. On every day of the week, except Saturday, the registration places will be open from 5 P. M. to 10:30 P. M. On Saturday they will be open from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. Qualified voters may register in places near their homes which have been provided by the Board of Elections, lists of which appear in some of the local newspapers. In case of doubt a voter may usually obtain information as to the registration place for his or her election district from the nearest policeman.

The registration period also offers the opportunity for enrollment in a political party, such action on the part of the registered voter being optional. The enrollment privilege is particularly important this year and furnishes the only opportunity for participation in next year's primaries, at which candidates for Mayor and other city officers will be nominated.

No resident of New York City who does not register this week may vote in November. No person who does not enroll may participate in a party primary next year, and no person may enroll until after he or she has registered. As soon as the voter is properly registered, an enrollment blank is handed to him, upon which he may indicate the party in which enrollment is desired. This is deposited with the election officials and is kept secret until after the election.

In rural communities and towns of less than 5,000 population, where personal registration is not required, voters may enroll in the various parties at the time they vote in November.

Personal registration for residents of New York City is required in order to enable a voter to take advantage of the new absentee voters' law. There is no absentee registration law, although commercial travelers and other associations are now starting a movement to bring about the enactment of one. The absentee voters' law permits a voter who expects to be unavoidably absent on Election Day to vote by mail under certain conditions. The new law requires:

"1. That the applicant must personally register as a qualified voter in the election district in which he resides.

"2. That he expects to be unavoidably absent from the State or county of his residence on Election Day because his duties, occupation or business require him to be elsewhere in the United States on that day.

"3. That he apply in good faith for the absentee voter's set of ballots in New York City to the Board of Elections.

"4. That he state the special circumstances which require such absence unless he is 'an employe in the operation of railroad trains when the railroad or run of such employe crosses the boundary of the county, a commercial traveler, actor or Federal employe having an office outside the county.

"5. That he set forth the foregoing in an affidavit which must be received at the office of the Board of Elections not later than Oct. 16. Forms for such an affidavit may be obtained of the Board of Elections, Room 1840, Municipal Building.

"6. That after receiving the set of ballots and an envelope from the Board of Elections the absentee voter shall mark his ballot as he wishes to vote, execute the oath printed on the reverse side and mail or deliver the same sealed so as to be received by the Board of Elections not later than noon on the Friday before Election Day."

Both the Republican and Democratic leaders are making arrangements to check up the registration so as to get out the full party strength. The League of Women Voters, of which Miss Mary Garrett Hay is President, will make a special drive to get women to register, regardless of their political affiliations.

Outside of New York City in all places where personal registration is required, that is, in cities and villages of 5,000 or more population, the registration and enrollment days are Oct. 8, 9, 15 and 16. The polls up-State will be open from 7 A. M. to 10 P. M. on each of these days.

CHARGES FUND HOLDUP.

Newark Paper Says Democrats Assessed Revenue Office Workers.

Assessment of employes of the Collector of Internal Revenue's office in Newark, N. J., for the Democratic national campaign fund was charged yesterday by the Newark Sunday Call. Although the collection of subscriptions from Federal employes for political funds is contrary to law, the Call charges that employes receiving $1,200 a year were asked to contribute $25 apiece out of their September salaries and that those receiving higher pay were assessed 5 per cent. of their yearly wage. The Call states that many of the employes subscribed to the fund, with the result that a substantial sum was raised.

Collector Charles V. Duffy said he did not believe the stories of assessments were true, and that if anything of the kind was going on he would stop it immediately. "It is a violation of the law and the rules of the Civil Service Commission," he said. "I suppose that the only campaign contribution going out of this office will be mine."

form those ideas were assuming made it impossible for a great company like the F. I. A. T. to be any longer ruled with authoritarian methods and according to the forms of the capitalist system. For some months past the F. I. A. T. Directors, despite all their endeavors on behalf of the men, had been exasperated by the nightmare of having some tens of thousands of employes in their work who were not co-operators, but enemies. It is impossible to go forward in these conditions, which threaten to grow still graver through the result of actual struggle which has meant the humiliation of masters in the face of their workmen. The future greatness of the F. I. A. T. firm in international industry depends on the overcoming of the present internal crisis, in which event the F. I. A. T. may furnish the pioneer example in Italy of a perfect modern industrial organization."

The Socialist organ Avanti draws attention to the peculiar difficulties which have been met in taking over so complicated a business as the F. I. A. T. whose banking transactions alone amount to between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 a week and adds "the cessation of a shareholding concern like this can come about only in a very particular way with cautions and guarantees on both sides."

Apparently Avanti's attitude of reserve also is shared in the financial world, for F. I. A. T. shares, which at the outstart of the obstructionist movement on Aug. 29 were officially quoted on the Milan Bourse at 271, fell to 232 at the end of September and yesterday underwent a further slump to 207.

A concordat was signed here yesterday between the Federal representatives of the manufacturers and workers in the Italian mechanical and metallurgical industry which settles all controversial points arising out of the recent Rome agreement. The factory owners thereby are authorized to deduct from wages during the occupation full compensation for willful waste of raw material, excessive consumption of coal and electric energy and damage wrought to machinery and plant. On the other hand the workers, especially the women and boys, obtain a notable additional advantage in regular wages, overtime pay and dear living indemnity.

GIOLITTI PRAISES LABOR SETTLEMENT

Workers Have Gained Important Reforms with Little Disturbance, He Says.

ROME, Oct. 3.—Italy has gone through a radical transformation in the relations existing between employers and workers with little injury to persons, property or the order of things, says Premier Giolitti in a statement to The Associated Press. He explains the significance of the settlement reached between the owners of industrial plants and their employes, and says that more cordial relations between capital and labor will exist in future. Incidentally, the Premier, upon whose initiative the controversy was settled, takes occasion to ridicule alarming stories printed in the United States and other countries relative to conditions in Italy during the last month.

"Metal workers were receiving wages of from 16 to 20 lire daily," says Signor Giolitti in explaining the situation that existed at the beginning of the movement to occupy plants. "Considering the present rate of exchange, these wages represented less than $1. American money. What would American workmen do if they received such pay?

"The Italian metal workers presented a memorandum to their employers asking for a wage increase of 4 lire daily, which would bring up their wages so that those who received the highest pay would get what was equivalent to $1. The employers, who during the war made enormous sums refused to grant the men's request, claiming the profits of their establishments did not leave them a sufficient margin to increase further working expenses. The men, fearing a lockout, refused to leave the factories, and, in the absence of proprietors and technical staffs, undertook to carry on the plants themselves.

Little Bloodshed Resulted.

"This was the origin of the vast social movement from which we are emerging with, perhaps, less of lawlessness and bitterness of feeling than is to be found in most European countries. Naturally, extremists among the workmen tried to take advantage of the situation in order to incite their companions to turbulence. They tried to force what was a purely economic upheaval into politics, but succeeded in causing only isolated episodes of violence. The large majority of the men, as well as the responsible leaders of the Confederation of Labor, were true to their program of maintaining the dispute strictly in the economic field.

"Many persons volunteered advice to the Government as to its using force and employing soldiers, cannon and machine guns for what they considered the necessity of making the rights of property respected. Considering the fact there were more than 500,000 workers involved in the movement and that over 600 factories were occupied, an attempt to dislodge the men by force would have plunged the country into civil war, and hundreds, if not thousands, of people would have been killed.

"The widening abyss between employers and workmen could not be bridged at first, but by following the counsels of moderation, prudence and conciliation, the number of those killed was about a dozen, including some victims of clashes between 'Red' and 'White' workmen. Even this loss of life was deplorable, but 'let him that is without sin cast the first stone.' What country has not gone through similar sad experiences, often with a much longer list of dead? Now, I rejoice to say, work is generally being resumed, factories have been evacuated and the men are co-operating with the owners and technical staffs to set things going once more. We thus have succeeded in satisfactorily settling one of the worst economic conflicts in industrial history without grave losses and have initiated what is most important—better feeling between employers and men. In addition, we may congratulate ourselves on having solved this problem in accordance with the spirit of the age, and I firmly believe the present arrangement to do greater justice to Italian workers probably has postponed the advent of Socialism in Italy for perhaps a century, and certainly for fifty years.

Gains for the Workers.

"What have Italian workmen gained? Larger wages, amounting altogether to $1 a day, which is still much less than is earned in America; one week's holiday in a year, and participation in a commission composed of masters and men which will present to the Government the project for a bill to be passed by Parliament enabling the men to check up on financial and technical conditions of factories.

"This last is an excellent thing. There has been no want for mischief makers, who have assured the men their employers were realizing fabulous profits at the expense of workers. The latter were naturally inclined to believe this, but the day when their representatives can verify the accounts of factories and realize the revenues and expenses it will no longer be possible to trade upon the ignorance of workers and make bad blood between them and their employers. They will then know up to what limit they can ask for betterment of conditions, beyond which point insistence upon demands would be killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

"In other countries the movement has been almost entirely misunderstood, if not deliberately misrepresented. It has been called 'control of workmen over factories.' This evidently is the result of a poor translation of the Italian word 'controllo,' which means 'verification,' not domination, of business.

"Honestly, I think Italy is to be congratulated. Few countries can boast of having gone through such a radical transformation in relations between employers and workers with so little injury to all concerned. The theory of those who urged that the attitude of 500,000 men be considered in the same light as though it were that of only one man is untenable. Whenever offenses against the criminal law have been committed, judicial authorities promptly have taken action, and those found guilty will be punished.

"Exaggerations and most alarming reports have been spread abroad as to what happened in Italy. They seem to have grown in geometrical ratio as to the square of the distance from this country. Thus, America, being the country furthest away, received the most alarming reports. I must, however, add that fantastic accounts of what was supposed to have happened on our shores came from correspondents who live, not in Italy, but in France or other foreign lands. Most of these gentlemen visited Italy during the war for two or three days, and were courteously entertained by their Italian colleagues and the authorities. This flying visit seems to have given them the impression that they are past-masters in Italian affairs, and they have been inventing the most absurd fables about Italy. They have described our country as being in the throes of Bolshevism, without any government or laws and tyrannized over by revolutionists and anarchists, assisted by Camorra and Mafia brigands.

"We have too good an opinion of the common sense of Americans to suppose they have disregarded reports freely telegraphed from Milan, Turin, Genoa and Rome by responsible journalists, and that they swallowed, pasteed, accounts from 'past masters' from Timbuctoo.

"If, during recent disturbances in Massachusetts, when even policemen struck, a telegram had been sent to the Italian press from Bogota or Honolulu saying New England was a prey to anarchy and lynch law, that negro slavery had been re-established and that all members of the yellow races had been murdered, it would have given us here a hearty laugh. Such, I hope, Americans enjoyed when reading of the imaginary state of things in Italy."

CITY WILL GET TODAY CHECK FOR A MILLION

New York's Share of Second Income Tax Payment Is $1,366,493.78.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 3.—The Receiver of Taxes of Greater New York will find in his mail tomorrow a check for $1,366,493.78 from the State Controller, Eugene M. Travis. It is the second payment on income tax receipts, and the five counties within Greater New York will have received with tomorrow's check, $12,298,444.02.

Altogether, $36,000,000 in income taxes has been turned over to the State and localities. The first payment was $32,000,000, which was distributed, half to the State and half to the localities. Now $4,000,000 is being alloted. The Receiver of Taxes must put this money in the general fund for the reduction of taxation.

The amounts distributed to the various counties of Greater New York are as follows:

Of the amount received from income taxes $18,000,000 will have been distributed to the various counties by tomorrow. The fiscal officer figures up the share which goes to each tax district, based on the assessed valuation of the real property.

sharpens the edge of prejudice and dislike, this organ says.

After remarking that no possible compromise on the California question could appreciably remove the fundamental causes for what it terms the misunderstanding between the two nations, the Herald of Asia declares that the danger is increased and rendered more actual by the extension of anti-Japanese prejudices in Far Eastern fields, especially in China, "where the Americans, with the willing co-operation of the British, miss no opportunity of showing up the Japanese in the worst possible light before the Chinese, thus trying to keep the two Asiatic nations estranged."

The newspaper charges that the Americans think that thus they advance their own economic and political interests, but it expresses the belief that one day China will awaken to what it terms the common dangers imperilling the development of the Asiatic races.

"When Asia awakes again to play its rôle in world history," says the Herald of Asia, "every deed of injustice and unmerited provocation experienced at the hands of the egotistical nations in the West inevitably will add to the combined bitterness of Asiatic sentiment toward the West."

MEASURE JAPAN OBJECTS TO.

Alien Land Law Goes to California Referendum in November.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—The most important of the twenty proposed State laws which will be submitted to the voters of California for ratification at the November election is that relating to alien ownership of land. This is the measure which is the bone of contention between the American and Japanese Governments.

It permits the acquisition and transfer of real property by aliens eligible to citizenship to the same extent as by citizens, except as otherwise provided by law. It further permits other aliens and the companies, associations and corporations in which they hold majority interests to acquire and transfer real property only as prescribed by treaty and prohibits the appointment of such ineligible aliens as guardians of the estates of minors consisting wholly or partially of real property or shares in such corporations. It also provides for escheats in certain cases, and requires reports of property holdings to facilitate the enforcement of the act. It prescribes penalties and repeals conflicting acts.

Here are some of the arguments adduced in favor of this proposed law:

Through this measure, its advocates say, California seeks to preserve her lands for Americans precisely as Japan preserves hers for Japanese. Its primary purpose is to prohibit Orientals who cannot become American citizens from controlling rich agricultural lands. The present treaty of commerce and navigation with Japan omits reference to the ownership or lease of agricultural lands. Japan has always prohibited the ownership or lease or use of agricultural lands in Japan by Americans or other foreigners. By what right, then, it is asked, does Japan object to California extending to her citizens and her lands the same protection given by Japan to Japanese and their lands?

Orientals, and more particularly Japanese, having begun to gain control of agricultural lands in California, there was enacted in 1913 an alien land law proposed by Hiram Johnson, then Governor, which prohibited the ownership or lease beyond three years of agricultural lands by aliens ineligible to citizenship. Nevertheless, Californians point out that by various subterfuges, including the use of dummy corporations and the names of native-born children, Orientals, largely Japanese, are fast securing control of the richest irrigated lands in the State. In some counties the proportion already controlled ranges from 50 to 75 per cent. This measure, the Californians say, simply closes loopholes in the 1913 law.

In addition, it forbids even short leases. Long leases of these lands by Japanese, according to the advocates of the law, are as injurious in effect as ownership. Short leases become long leases through repeated renewals. Once the land is occupied by Japanese the whites move away and cease to be prospective lessees. The control of rich lands means in time the control of products and the control of markets. The reports of property holdings to facilitate the enforcement of the act. It prescribes penalties and repeals conflicting acts.

The control of rich lands means in time the control of products and the control of markets. The control of the products of the soil by unified interest will lead—so the Californians argue—to economic control of the country, and that will be followed in time by political control through force of numbers induced by the high Japanese birth rate. That condition, they say, is now at hand in Hawaii. Rather than invite such disaster, they say, let some land lie idle and a few large land owners make less profit, and even see production decrease somewhat, which the opponents of the measure say will happen if it becomes a law.

The measure provides that any alien ineligible to citizenship may acquire the use of and transmit and inherit an interest in, real property to the extent and for the purposes prescribed by the treaty with his nation, and not otherwise. The rights of innocent holders are fully protected. The measure was prepared by the State Legislative Counsel Bureau after the proposed provisions had been criticised by various leading legal and civic organizations of the State.

THINKS JAPAN WOULD ACCEPT EXCLUSION

But Representative Small Has Doubt About Proposed California Land Legislation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—Belief that the Government and people of Japan "will acquiesce in good faith" if Japanese immigrants are excluded from the United States was expressed tonight by John H. Small, member of the House of Representatives from North Carolina, who arrived here today with the Congressional party which has been touring the Far East.

As to further immigration from Japan to the United States," a statement by Representative Small said, "it must be conceded this is a domestic question entirely within the control of the United States. I am sure the Japanese understand it and only object because of the discrimination involved. If the existing 'gentlemen's agreement' is not effective, certainly some mutually satisfactory agreement can be reached which will prevent the entrance of any Japanese.

"As to the Japanese who are already lawfully in the United States, a different issue is presented. I learn that a proposition has recently been initiated in California and will soon be submitted to a referendum which will prohibit these Japanese from acquiring land by lease or otherwise and likewise limit the right of their American-born children, who are American citizens, to acquire or hold land. This will be discrimination against Japanese nationals and will not apply to other aliens. This does not appeal to my sense of justice, nor am I convinced of the necessity of such drastic action. The movement appears to have reference to farm land for the purpose of eliminating Japanese farmers."

INITIALED EGGS

H. Rider Haggard, the English novelist, tells how Denmark manages to have strictly fresh eggs:

The farmers are registered and required to number and initial each egg sent to market.

If one or two are bad, the farmer is fined. If three are bad, he is boycotted.

Less drastic, yet equally effective, measures are employed in selecting the eggs at CHILDS—they're positively fresh.

TWO LINERS ARRIVE WITH 3,496 ABOARD

E. A. Filene, on the Imperator, Tells of Europe's Need of an International Court.

DANGER IN ALL COUNTRIES

Says Italy, Austria and Germany Require Co-operative Aid—Kaiserin Augusta Victoria Makes Fast Trip

Two Cunard liners arrived yesterday—the Imperator, from Southampton and Cherbourg, with 2,325 passengers, and the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, from Liverpool and Queenstown, with 1,171.

Among the 393 in the first cabin of the Imperator was Edward A. Filene, a business man of Boston, who returned from a four months' visit to Europe in connection with the establishment of the new International Chamber of Commerce and to study conditions generally in the principal countries.

"Conditions in almost all the countries I visited are so dangerous that peace and orderly progress are impossible without international co-operation," said Mr. Filene. "In Italy the workmen seized the principal factories by force. The powerlessness of the Government is due, in an important part, to conditions such as the lack of coal at livable prices. Nothing but international co-operation can cure these conditions in time to avoid still further social and economic catastrophes.

"The Austrians, especially the Viennese, are in a desperate condition. However hard they work, they cannot alone solve the problem. They are surrounded by the new treaty-made nations, who are pursuing intensely selfish nationalistic policies, which seriously interfere with or kill Austrian imports and exports, and which policies nothing can remedy in time except international co-operation and an international court that will see that justice is done.

Great Scarcity of Coal.

"Coal is so scarce in Austria that the factories are shut down or shutting down, and the people who are now only getting 2 1-5 pounds of coal per day per family will get even less this Winter. Nothing can relieve this vital Austrian coal need except international co-operation. Without the help of an international court Austria must break up—probably by revolution and Bolshevism.

"In Germany the number of people out of work is increasing by leaps and bounds and this, coming on top of more than five years shortage of food, clothing and other necessities of life, makes the leaders of all classes of opinion doubtful whether they can keep their people from revolution. The hopelessness of many of their big business men and leaders is startling. This is due largely to their belief that France intends to destroy Germany for fear that a restored Germany will destroy France—by its business and war strength.

"The situation between France and Germany is impossible and threatens the world. Economic breakdown can not come in Europe without carrying with it still greater starvation and unemployment, and finally political and social breakdown. The wiser Frenchmen say that if there were an effective International Court and League of Nations France would cease to fear Germany's recuperation—or at least take the chance. But they declare that no League can be effective without the co-operation of the United States. And in this they are corroborated by the English, Czechoslovak and German leaders. A League without the United States, they say, can be only the old balance of powers with its proven inability to prevent war."

Money Scarce in England.

Another passenger on the liner was Sir Edward Allen Brotherton, Bart., member of Parliament for Wakefield, Yorkshire, who has big chemical and textile interests in England. Regarding conditions there, Sir Edward said that woolens had fallen fully 25 per cent. in price recently and there was little doing in the cloth business because of the scarcity of money. With regard to the Irish question, Sir Edward said that Ireland can have anything practically, except separation from the empire.

Others on the Imperator were Mrs. George Jay Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Alden S. Blodgett and their two children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Page of Oyster Bay, with their son, Lieutenant Kenneth D. Page, who during the war was America's youngest "ace" in the aviation force, and others of the family who have been in France.

The Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, commanded by Captain W. R. D. Irvine, R. D., R.N.R., made the voyage in 7 days, 6 hours and 2 minutes at an average speed of 16.18 knots, which is the best speed since she has been operated by the Allies.

One of the prominent passengers was E. Belin, inventor of a machine for sending pictures over telephone wires. He was accompanied by his wife and two assistants, G. Johanneau and M. Touly, who will aid him with experiments he intends to carry out in this country.

PINCHOT TELLS WHY HE IS FOR HARDING

Declares the Senator Is Not the Reactionary He Once Thought Him.

DISLIKES COX'S COMPANY

Says Governor Stands for Wilson and Is "Too Small to be a President."

Gifford Pinchot, former Progressive and for many years an opponent of the reactionary element of the Republican Party, explains why he is supporting Harding and Coolidge in a letter made public yesterday by the Republican National Committee. Mr. Pinchot, after saying that he was a follower of the late Theodore Roosevelt, admits that he was formerly opposed to Senator Harding, but says the latter is not the reactionary he had thought him.

Mr. Pinchot says he is against Governor Cox because the latter stands for Attorney General Palmer and President Wilson, is too reckless in statement, too much like a man running for a little office in a little town, and too small to be President.

"Senator Harding and I have opposed each other in politics," Mr. Pinchot says. "He was regular in 1912, while I followed Roosevelt, and I can never be glad enough that I did. He has said things about Roosevelt which I deeply resented; I have said things about Harding which he must have resented just as deeply, and I have not forgotten. He has many friends who are not mine, and there is not a little in his record that I regret. On the other hand, I find deep in his confidence men whom I trust; what I like least in his record is farthest back, and what he has said about forestry, conservation, and agriculture at Marion is sound and right.

Harding a "Republican Regular."

"Senator Harding was not made to my order, but he is by no means the reactionary I thought him. He is a Republican regular, who supports what his party agrees on and acts with the majority. There is nothing autocratic about him. Under him there will be no one-man rule at Washington. Congress will represent not the President but the people, and the Government will be American again.

"Harding is no superman, but simple, earnest, sincere and human, best thought of where best known. Men who know him, and on whose judgment I rely, say he is slow to decide, but, having decided, stands like a stone wall. What I saw at Marion confirms it. I liked Harding because he dodged nothing, looked me straight in the eye, and unmistakably meant what he said. And I liked Mrs. Harding even better.

"I want to see Harding elected not only because I have come to think well of him, but because he belongs to the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt, and because I have had my fill of the Democrats at Washington. We must have in charge men and a party capable of running the Government, and in the White House a President, not a boss."

Thinks Cox in Bad Company.

Mr. Pinchot says that Governor Cox is in bad company, because the liquor men are for him and because he stands with Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, who, he says, refused to prepare for war when he knew war was certain and sent untrained or half-trained young Americans against the German machine guns without artillery support. In stating his other objections to Governor Cox Mr. Pinchot continues:

"Cox stands for Palmer, who promised to reduce the cost of living and conspicuously failed, but for political reasons let the liquor traffic go on; who denied the rights of free speech and free assembly; imprisoned hundreds of people in defiance of the law he was sworn to enforce, and turned over to the Southern Pacific Railroad, without a struggle, $500,000,000 worth of oil lands in California to which it had no right.

"Cox stands for Wilson. No sooner was he nominated than he hastened to the White House and authorized the statement that there was perfect agreement in all things between Wilson and himself. Nothing is more important than to have done with the Wilson clan, and the only way to do that is to vote against Cox.

"If a man believes in Wilson, argument is useless. As for me, I hold that it is time to finish with all that smacks of Wilson, with the inefficiency, extravagance and secretiveness, with the national and international blundering. The only way to repudiate Wilson is to vote against Cox."

REASONABLY PRICED FINE FURNITURE

The Sloane Collection

Several old New York Establishments have a national reputation for excellence of goods and service.

The prestige of their names is so great and their homes so imposing that many persons of artistic tastes but moderate means hesitate to visit them, feeling that the high quality must express itself in high prices.

On the contrary, articles in these great houses, quality for quality, cost less than elsewhere, and in order to spread such knowledge, visitors are as welcome as purchasers.

In the field of Furniture there is a conspicuous case of this rare association of high quality and reasonable price.

Sloane's devote fully as much attention to their Collection of Reasonably Priced Fine Furniture as to their special hand made pieces. This Collection is growing in size and usefulness all the time, because merit, price and the guarantee of an honored name, make shopping there a delightful experience.

RECALL BOARD SHIPS FROM FOX'S CONTROL

Benson Announces Action Pending Justice Department's Inquiry Into Fox's Affairs.

SHIPS VALUED AT $6,500,000

Fox Had Agreed to Buy Twelve Vessels on a Partial Payment Plan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Control of twelve Shipping Board vessels, valued at more than $6,500,000, obtained by Victor S. Fox of New York on the partial payment plan, has been withdrawn. Chairman Benson, in making this announcement tonight, said the action was taken to protect the Government's interests pending investigation by the Department of Justice of charges of irregularities against Fox.

Conduct of the investigation is wholly in the hands of the District Attorney at New York, officials of the Department of Justice declared, and it was understood that a receiver had been appointed for the Victor Fox, Inc., the Consolidated Maritime Lines, Inc., and other steamship lines of which Fox is President.

No report of the investigation of Fox's transactions has been made to the board, Chairman Benson said, nor has the department asked the board to cooperate. He said it was thought best for the Government to operate the ships, however, until charges published in New York newspapers had been cleared up.

Francis G. Caffey, United States District Attorney, said last night, after being read the foregoing dispatch, that it was "contrary to the interests of the Government" to discuss the case or give any details of the investigation of Mr. Fox. When the fact that an investigation of Mr. Fox's shipping operations was in progress became known several days ago, the United States District Attorney's office took this attitude, and Mr. Caffey said that the withdrawal of the vessels from Mr. Fox's control had not changed the situation in this respect.

The records of the Shipping Board show that Fox, on his own account, purchased between March 26 and May 4 of this year seven steel cargo steamships, and on March 26, in conjunction with the Georges Creek Company, purchased five iron-hull sailing vessels. The steamships which he bought were the Mount Shasta, Castlewood, Armenia, Janette Skinner, Coosa, Isonomia and Arapahoe. The sailing vessels were the Chillicothe, Monongahela, Moshula, Muscoota and Tonawanda.

10,000 MINERS QUIT AGAIN.

Hillside Company's Men Charge Discrimination on Returning.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 3.—The 10,000 employes of the Penn Hillside Coal and Iron Company voted today to quit work tomorrow. Many of these men have been idle during the week, but no formal strike vote was taken. They only returned to work last Monday after an eleven-week strike. Discrimination and partiality is charged against the company officials.

Residents here fear that a new reign of terror by dynamite and murder will begin. Hundreds of families have neither coal or money and business is depressed. Women are picking coal on the dumps daily and say, "We don't know what will happen to us if this keeps up."

REGISTER!

There will be registration all this week in New York City. Personal registration is required here of every voter and if you are not registered you cannot vote. Registration places will be open from 5 P. M. to 10:30 P. M. every day this week, except Saturday, when they will be open from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M.

WANTS SING SING AS 'CLEARING HOUSE'

Survey Committee Urges Its Use Solely for Classifying and Distributing Prisoners.

WOULD END IT AS PRISON

Plan for Building Up an Industrial System and to Pay Prisoners is Proposed.

The abolition of Sing Sing as a prison and its use solely for the purpose of receiving, examining and classifying prisoners is urged in the recommendations of the Prison Survey Committee, of which Adolph Lewisohn is Chairman.

The report embodies a scheme for building up a prison industrial system by eliminating the mentally unfit, who are now the greatest drawback to prison production.

"It is impossible," says the statement made public yesterday, "to pay prisoners for their labor wages that will enable them to reimburse the State for their maintenance and at the same time permit them to care for their dependents, unless the output of the present prison shops and factories is greatly increased. Conversely, it is true that it is impossible to increase this output without offering the prisoner incentive both in the form of a wage and in 'time off' for good industrial performance.

"No manufacturer employing free labor would hire three men of subnormal or abnormal mentality to work beside two normally intelligent persons in his factory. Yet that is done, in effect, by our present prison system, which puts in one institution, and often in the same shop, the low grade moron, the constitutional psychopath and the normal inmate.

"Until we learn to distinguish between these and to segregate them in separate institutions all hope of industrial progress in the prisons must be abandoned. It is useless to introduce new methods and new machinery unless the 40 per cent. of normally intelligent and physically sound prisoners be grouped in specifically chosen institutions and there be aided in working out their industrial and moral salvation unencumbered by those whose care is a separate study.

"A central clearing house or reception and classification station is now in process of erection at Sing Sing Prison. On the completion of this institution it will be possible, with adequate equipment and personnel, to put into operation a scientific scheme for examining, classifying and distributing incoming prisoners.

"Under the new system, Sing Sing would become a special clearing house, and its existence as a general institution for the detention of offenders would cease. Its place would be taken by the thoroughly modern prison being built at Wingdale.

"After the prisoner has been subjected to a careful examination there are six ways open for the disposition of his case:

"Normal, or nearly normal, prisoners should be assigned to that prison where they may receive the greatest benefit from work, training, education and the general activities of the prison.

"Those who have remedial diseases, both mental and physical, should be retained at the receiving station pending recovery and rehabilitation.

"The insane should be sent to Dannemora or Matteawan Hospitals.

"Mental defectives of the type requiring institutional care should be sent to an institution for mentally defective criminals.

"Constitutional psychopaths should be retained in a special department for study and special method of management, pending the formulation of plans for the best provision for such prisoners.

"Prisoners with incurable physical diseases should be kept at Sing Sing Prison in order that the fully equipped hospital facilities can be used for their relief.

$100,000 of ORIENTAL RUGS for $50,000—To-Day

Each Rug at Exactly Half Price

A dog crossing a stream on a plank with a large mouthful of meat, happened to see his own shadow in the water, and, believing it to be another dog, was greedy enough to lean over and try to catch the meat out of the mouth of the other dog, whereat he dropped the piece in his mouth, which sank to the bottom, and by his greediness he lost everything.

Excessive greed, heedlessness, negligence and want of thought often mislead men, as well as dogs.

The lessons of the recent war have proven that great monarchs may be overtaken by undue eagerness to extend territory.

Luxurious Wraps

In the Women's Wrap Salon is one of the largest and finest collections of wraps we have ever shown, made of exquisite materials and trimmed with fine fur. Wraps of veldyne, silk duvetyn, marvella cloth and peach-bloom, made with huge shawl collars and cuffs of natural black lynx, flying squirrel, moleskin, Hudson seal (dyed muskrat), skunk and natural gray squirrel and nutria.

Distinctive Features

—long panels and embroidery in silk of a matching color, sometimes combined with fine metal embroidery;

—many panels detachable, reaching from shoulder to hem;

—new shoulder lines on sleeves that partake of the wrap character—long loose shoulders and tiny sleeves set in, sleeves that are really merely capes;

—on some of the wraps without fur are deep capes that reach almost to the waist line and are embroidered in matching silk.

One wrap typical of the collection of finer coats is of dark brown silk duvetyn, embroidered in matching silk and also gold metal thread in panels down the sides and also on the back and bodice. This is equipped with collar and cuffs of taupe nutria. $895.

Another wrap is in Malay brown marvella cloth, has huge collar and cuffs of natural skunk and is also embroidered in matching silk. $475.

Other wraps appear in the newest colors, such as moonstone gray, rust color, dyad, Bedouin brown, pine needle and juniper green.

Prices for the finer coats range from $180 to $575.

WHITE SOX PLAYERS ACCUSE TEAMMATES

Assert Indicted Men Deliberately "Threw" League Pennant This Year.

POINT TO GAMES IN BOSTON

Charge They Watched Scoreboard and Played to Keep Up Betting Odds.

SWANN AFTER ATTELL

Will Ask the Grand Jury to Call the Former Pugilist to Tell All He Knows.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Charges that certain Chicago White Sox players regulated their playing this season by the score board, winning or losing as the occasion demanded in order to keep the betting odds favorable, were made tonight by Byrd Lynn and Hervey McClellan, who said that as "bench warmers" most of the season they had studied the players carefully and were convinced the Sox were "thrown" out of the pennant.

"We lost the pennant because certain players—they are among the eight indicted by the Cook County Grand Jury—didn't want us to win," Lynn said. "We soon noticed how carefully they studied the score board—more than even the average player does in a pennant race and that they always made errors which lost us the game when Cleveland and New York were losing. If Cleveland won—we won. If Cleveland lost—we lost. The idea was to keep up the betting odds, but not to let us win the pennant."

McClellan said he was convinced certain players had deliberately "thrown" three games in Boston on the last Eastern trip.

"Several of the players noticed how the score board affected the others," he added, "and we felt all along that these men were regulating their play according to the play of other teams."

No announcement has been given as to whether any of the White Sox players will be called before the Grand Jury when it reconvenes in special session on Tuesday to continue the baseball inquiry. It is believed, however, that several of the players against whom indictments have not been voted will be called to tell their views and give opinions as to the ease or difficulty of "throwing" games.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—Charges that the Chicago White Sox failed to repeat their triumph of 1919 and retain the American League championship because two players failed to put forth their best efforts this season were made in a statement here last night by Eddie Collins, second baseman and captain of the team.

CHASE ACCUSED IN AFFIDAVITS.

Mathewson and Herrmann Tell of His Playing with Reds.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 3.—Affidavits prepared by Christy Mathewson and by Garry Herrmann, owner of the Reds, for submission to President Heydler of the National League, were made public here tonight.

In one of these affidavits Mathewson presents a letter from Pitcher Mike Regan, telling of an offer made by Chase to Regan in Boston in 1918 of $200 to pitch either to win or lose, as Chase might instruct, an offer Regan refused.

In another affidavit "Greasy" Neale, right fielder for the Reds, tells of Chase boasting after a double-header at Philadelphia, in both of which games the Reds were defeated, that he had won $500 by betting against his own team in both contests. Neale also swears that at a later time Chase advised him to bet $200 on the Reds, as "This is the day for the Reds to win." And win they did.

William D. (Foll) Perritt, New York pitcher, makes affidavit that on New York's last visit to Cincinnati in 1918 Chase approached him before a double-header, asked him which game he was to work in, and said: "You needn't be afraid of me."

Perritt says he told McGraw about the conversation and said to McGraw:

"The players ought to drive Chase from baseball."

This conversation was corroborated by McGraw in an affidavit in which he also told of having seen Chase talking to Perritt.

Finally there is a detailed affidavit by Mathewson that after long, minute observation of Chase's play he was convinced that Chase was "laying down" in his playing.

These are the affidavits which President Herrmann took to Chicago a few days ago and laid before the Cook County Grand Jury.

SWANN TO ASK JURY TO ACT.

Will Request It to Call Attell in the Baseball Inquiry.

District Attorney Swann will ask the aid of the Grand Jury today in his inquiry into phases of the baseball "fixing" scandal that have developed in this city and that concern especially the part played by a ring of New York gamblers in the bribery of players to "throw" games.

As his first step in the local investigation, which Mr. Swann said will be prosecuted vigorously, Abe Attell, former pugilist, who is said to know all about the deal, will be ordered to appear before the Grand Jury and tell what he knows of the gamblers' deal with the baseball players and the gamblers' winnings during the 1919 world's series. Mr. Swann made this announcement last night after he had learned that William J. Fallon, attorney for Abe Attell, was unwilling to produce Attell except on mandatory proceedings. This course, said Mr. Fallon, was only a natural protection of Attell's legal rights.

Agents of the Prosecutor's office sought Attell in vain yesterday. It was reported that he had left New York. At any rate, the process servers, bearing subpoenas from the District Attorney's office, found no trace of him in the places where usually he is to be found. Nor did Mr. Fallon throw any light on where Attell is.

It was also learned yesterday that District Attorney Swann has started a search for several other persons now in New York, whose names have been mentioned in connection with the baseball scandal. Some of these persons have already been found and they have been asked to appear at the District Attorney's office today or tomorrow to answer questions which Mr. Swann has to ask. The nature of the testimony that is being sought from these persons was not disclosed, nor was there any information as to whether they were gamblers, baseball players or outsiders.

"In an inquiry of this kind," said Mr. Swann last night, "the District Attorney has the power to issue what are called request subpoenas. Of course the District Attorney is not authorized to issue mandatory subpoenas. The theory is that if the man is guilty he will not appear to answer. If he is innocent he is not only apt to appear but is anxious to do so. The man who has something to cover up in a matter of great public importance such as the baseball scandal might refuse to appear.

"This fellow Attell, according to the public press, said that if he would he could break things wide open. Again, according to the public press and other sources of information, Attel said he knew the syndicate of gamblers involved, how much money was paid, who won and who took part in this very important transaction.

"If Attel has any interest in this matter he would appear at the District Attorney's office and tell all he knows, but we will accept this offer of Mr. Fallon's to produce his client for questioning before the proper legal body—the Grand Jury. We will not delay it, either. We will take steps tomorrow morning to have Attell put before the Grand Jury. We will clear the deck solely for this purpose and let Mr. Attell either affirm or deny what information we learn he had.

"I am anxious to purge the sport of baseball, as are all public officials throughout the United States, and as far as this office is concerned I shall do everything possible toward this end."

"Attell is innocent of this charge," said Mr. Fallon, "and any statements purporting to have come from him to the contrary are false. He has never made any statement concerning this case. Nevertheless he will insist on his legal rights, and he will not submit himself to any unwarranted questioning by an Assistant District Attorney. If there is any legal demand for his appearance he will go to court or before the Grand Jury."

Mr. Fallon denied that Attell had been in touch with "Sport" Sullivan, the Boston gambler who was indicted by the Chicago Grand Jury.

"He doesn't know Sullivan," said Mr. Fallon, "and I do not think that Sullivan knows him. Mr. Kelly, Sullivan's lawyer, has been in touch with me, however. I know Mr. Kelly, and when he learned that I was representing Abe Attell he came to see me."

Mr. Fallon said that he was not representing Sullivan, but that it might be possible that he would act in his interest as well as Attell's if he went to Chicago. He said he did not know whether Sullivan was in this city.

Maclay Hoyne, State's Attorney of Cook County, Illinois, took with him when he left this city on Thursday a number of affidavits from persons who had knowledge of the "fixing" of baseball players and of the gamblers' coup that followed.

Val O'Farrell, head of a detective agency here, is said to have supplied Mr. Hoyne with much of the evidence which he gathered in this city, and it was learned yesterday that he was one of two men, both outsiders, from whom the Chicago prosecutor gathered information which, he said before he left here, had strengthened the case considerably. Mr. O'Farrell visited Mr. Hoyne at the Waldorf-Astoria and also accompanied him to the races at the Aqueduct track. A Chicago newspaperman, whose identity was not learned, was said to be Mr. Hoyne's other informant.

Assistant District Attorney Rorke was to have examined several witnesses today, but this action has been postponed until later in the week. It is said that several of the persons who were served with subpoenas from the District Attorney's office have expressed a willingness to tell all they know about the baseball "fixing."

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Persistent rumors that Abe Attell is in Philadelphia were circulated throughout the city today. One report had it that Attell is staying in a house up town. Occupants of the house denied that Attell was even known there.

Others rumors were to the effect that Attell was in Atlantic City.

Troops Cross Continent by Motor.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 2.—Seventy army trucks and automobiles which left Washington, D. C., on June 14 and crossed the continent by the Bankhead National Highway arrived today. The convoy contained twenty-two officers and 102 enlisted men of the army.

BIG SEASON FOR L. I. R. R.

Carried 28,073,826 Passengers Between Decoration and Labor Days.

A record number of passengers was handled by the Long Island Railroad during the Summer, according to announcement yesterday, which stated that between Decoration Day and Labor Day the number using the road was 28,073,862. This was an average number of passengers each day of 270,936, or 11,289 every hour, on the 103,919 steam and electric trains in operation.

"Now that Labor Day is behind us," declared Assistant General Superintendent C. D. Baker in a general notice just sent out over the road, "I take this opportunity of congratulating you on the very efficient service rendered in handling the unprecedented passenger travel of the past Summer. The volume of traffic has been far in excess of anything we have heretofore been called upon to undertake. The situation was made more difficult due to the cars ordered in ample time for the Summer business not being received until the peak period was practically over, the lateness of the car deliveries being beyond the control of the management.

"The spirit of the men in so loyally co-operating with the operating staff, and by their united efforts in responding to the demands of the service to accommodate the travel, necessitating long and unusual hours of the most exacting service and the exercising of good judgment at all times, has been most gratifying and the management joins with me in expressing our appreciation and pride in the establishment of a record without parallel in the history of railroading in this country."

The old Powder House, Marblehead, Mass. It was built by vote of the town in 1755 and was used for storing ammunition in the French and Indian War, during the Revolution and in the War of 1812.

Every motor highway and byway throughout picturesque New England and New York is a part of the long "Socony Trail".

THE long "Socony Trail" extends through old Marblehead, Mass., and from eastern Maine to the New York shore of Lake Erie. Motoring is a real pleasure today, largely because gasoline and motor oil can be obtained so conveniently. Socony service has done much to make this possible.

The fine quality of Socony gasoline is in keeping with the high standard of Socony service. Motorists depend upon it as they do upon the water supply of their city or town. The harmful effects of poorly refined motor fuels mean nothing to Socony users. Most of them know by actual comparison what Socony quality means in cleanness, power and mileage.

Socony gasoline vaporizes easily, but still possesses the power-giving elements that insure full mileage to every gallon. Its efficiency isn't lowered simply to give it quick-starting qualities. If you are interested in economy, use Socony gasoline regularly.

Look for the red, white and blue Socony sign.

MARQUARD LIKELY TO PITCH OPENER

Robbie Expected to Start with Southpaw—Coveleskie Probable Opponent.

INDIANS DUE TOMORROW

Speaker's Tribe Leaves Cleveland for Brooklyn Today — Hylan Will Throw Out First Ball.

With the opening game of the world's series less than forty-eight hours away, the dopesters have settled down to the annual interesting task of picking out the pitchers for the opening game. Whether it will be Marquard or Grimes is the problem that is perplexing followers of the Robins, and the Cleveland selection seems to rest between Jim Bagby and Stanley Coveleskie. Meanwhile Wilbert Robinson and Tris Speaker are giving no inkling of their probable selections. They probably are undecided even now.

Marquard versus Coveleskie appears to be the likely arrangement for the opener. It usually happens that the star of the season is chosen for the task of opening a world's series, and if this system is followed out this year Burleigh Grimes will do the serving for the Robins and Jim Bagby will get the call from Speaker. Grimes has been the most consistent winner among the Brooklyn boxmen this year, and Bagby led all major league pitchers in number of victories, having registered his thirty-first success on Saturday.

The elements which tend to discourage naming these two stars as the pitchers in the opening game are that Bagby may need a rest, and that a left-hander is likely to be more successful against the Indians. Bagby would be working on a three-day lay-off if called upon to work tomorrow, while Coveleskie has not pitched in several days. With so many left-hand hitters in the Cleveland batting order, Manager Robinson will probably endeavor to learn as quickly as possible whether his chances of success are to be improved by sending in southpaws against the American Leaguers.

May Use Smith Second Day.

Thus it appears that Bagby is more likely to be held until the second game of the series. This plan would give him four days between games, and, as Coveleskie is quite certain to work in one of the first two games, he may as well take his turn first as second. If Marquard should hold the Indians down in the opening game of the series, Manager Robinson would be in a position to come back with another southpaw in Sherrod Smith the following day, and then, after Grimes had had his fling, Robbie would have an off day for his pitchers and be in position to come back again with the left-handers. Speaker will start either Mails or Caldwell in the third game, and it is not likely that any other Cleveland pitchers than the four already mentioned will start a game. Manager Robinson might start any one of the six pitchers without causing any surprise. The list takes in Grimes, Marquard, Smith, Pfeffer, Mamaux and Callora.

President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club announced last night that Mayor John F. Hylan has consented to throw out the ball tomorrow afternoon and start the two teams on their battle for coin and glory. Either Bill Klem or Hank O'Day will be behind the plate, since the series opens in the field of a National League team. Timmy Connolly will be at first base, O'Day or Klem at second and Bill Dinneen at third. Connolly, being the senior umpire of the American League pair, will be behind the bat in Wednesday's game.

The fans will have to take their world's series in Brooklyn this year without any music on the side. This phonetic adjunct to the annual classic has been dispensed with this year by the officials of the Brooklyn Club in order to aid in the selling of equipping their patrons with tickets. The demand for reservations has been so heavy that thousands will be disappointed and President Ebbets decided that the band would have to go. The decision probably will not mean the complete elimination of harmony, as songsters make it an annual custom to ply their trade to the point where they are regarded as an affliction.

Will Have Workout Today.

The Brooklyn players will take a workout at Ebbets Field this afternoon. The players will hear the usual pre-series advice on the strong and weak points of the opposing batsmen, the probable style of play which Speaker will follow and all the other information which is handed out by picked scouts before a big series gets under way. As both teams finished the season far apart and had to keep all their stars together in order to assure the winning of the pennant, neither has been able to send a committee of players to follow the games of the rival club, as usually happens before a world's series.

The Indians will have no preliminary practice at Ebbets Field, thereby missing one of the usually interesting features of pre-season activity. It has been the custom for years past for the visiting team to reach the city where the series opens at least a day in advance in order to get some practice on the strange field. It was understood a few days ago that Speaker planned to bring his team direct from Detroit to this city after the Sunday game, and that the players indulge in a workout this afternoon. The boss of the Indians decided not to follow this plan, however, going to Cleveland immediately after the game with the Tigers.

The Indians, with club officials and a crowd of admirers, will leave their home city early this evening and arrive in New York tomorrow morning. During their stay in the metropolitan district the American League champions will make their headquarters at the Pennsylvania Hotel. Ban Manager Robinson of the National League champions makes his home at the Pennsylvania, one roof will cover the leaders of the two championship clubs during the Brooklyn half of the big series. Early Thursday evening, the players of the contending clubs will leave on special cars for Cleveland, where the second part of the series will be started next Saturday.

Distribution of Tickets.

The distribution of tickets by the Brooklyn club officials is all but completed. A force of clerks, assisted by two auditors from a Brooklyn bank, has been busily engaged for several days in allotting tickets, checking off receipts and sending out notices to successful applicants. The change in original plans, which brought the first three games to Brooklyn after they had been completed for Cleveland, completely disarranged the early program and resulted in considerable confusion, but the end of all the difficulty is in sight. All the tickets will be in the hands of owners long before the time for the first game to begin.

The demand for seats at Ebbets Field this year has far exceeded the demand of four years ago when the Robins won their previous National League championship. A week before the Robins clinched the pennant, the demand for the better reserved seats far exceeded the supply and as the days went on, with Brooklyn gradually drawing closer to the goal, the applications poured in. Thousands of applications and accompanying checks will be returned by the Brooklyn club.

The influx of baseball writers for the big series is well under way. Scores of writers from the Far West and South arrived in New York yesterday to attend the games and send to their various papers every last detail of the proceedings on the field. Club owners and prominent officials of the major and minor leagues will arrive here today, prepared to follow the games at Ebbets Field and then accompany the contending teams to Cleveland later in the week.

ALLOT 16,624 SEATS TO CLEVELAND FANS

Details of Advance Distribution of Tickets for World's Series Are Completed.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—Thousands of Cleveland baseball fans were downtown tonight to welcome Tris Speaker and the Cleveland Indians, winners of the American League pennant, when they arrived home from Detroit. After years of patient waiting Cleveland is at last to see an American League pennant and perhaps the world's championship flag float from the masthead at League Park.

James C. Dunn, President of the Indians, today wired his congratulations to Manager Speaker as follows:

"My sincere congratulations to you and all members of the team. I am sharpening the tomahawks, and I am sure we shall scalp the Dodgers. You fought fairly and squarely and deserve the championship."

E. S. Barnard, business manager of the team, today announced the arrangements for the sale of tickets to the Cleveland World's series games, extra precautions having been taken to prevent tickets from falling into the hands of scalpers.

Several weeks ago, when it appeared that Cleveland would win the pennant, the management requested all fans desiring reserved seats to make application for tickets by mail. Nearly 40,000 requests were received.

8,312 Fans Are Lucky.

The 16,624 reserved seats have been allotted in pairs to fans who sent in written applications. Nine thousand general admission tickets at $1 each will be sold at the park each day when the gates open.

The 8,312 lucky fans will receive notices from the club in a day or two that each will receive two seats for each of the four games here—eight tickets in all. No person will receive more, no applicant less than that number. No seats will be sold for just one or two games—they must be taken for the series. No choice of seats is possibles as the 16,624 reserved seats were allotted in pairs, just as they were counted out.

The ticket notice allotments will each contain a card bearing a serial number and a place for signature and address. The recipient will bring this notice to the park, where the number, signature and address on the card will be compared with the number, signature and address on the original application. If these correspond the fan will receive eight reserved seat tickets for the series allotted to him, paying at that time the full price for whatever seats may be placed in his envelope. If he draws box seats he must pay $52.80 for the eight tickets, $8 each and war tax. If he draws cheaper seats he will pay accordingly.

Prices of Tickets.

Reserved seats other than boxes will cost $26.40, $35.20 and $44, according to location. This covers in each case the price of two seats at each of the four games and includes war tax.

League Park seating capacity has been carefully checked up and the following figures announced: 1,987 box seats at $6 each, 4,327 reserved seats at $5 each, 4,732 reserved seats at $4 each, 5,578 reserved seats at $3 each, 9,000 general admissions at $1 each.

The management hopes to start the distribution of tickets by the middle of the week.

BROWNS WIN EASILY.

Pound Chicago Pitchers for 18 Hits and Take Game, 16 to 7.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 3.—St. Louis and Chicago rounded out their schedule for the 1920 campaign today with a free hitting contest, which the Browns won by 16 to 7. St. Louis started its attack against Keifer in the first inning and drove him from the slab in the second. Payne and Wilkinson, who relieved him, were also batted hard, the Browns getting 18 hits.

With the game well in hand Manager Burke of St. Louis sent in some of his youngsters against the White Sox and in response to insistent demands from the spectators, sent Sisler to the mound.

ROBINS TRAVEL TEN INNINGS TO VICTORY

Braves Give New Champions a Good Argument Before Succumbing, 5 to 4.

MOHART AND MILJUS PITCH

Former Gives Boston Early Lead, but Dodgers Make Strong Finish—Fine Reception for Robbie.

The Robins tried out some of their new-fangled world's series tricks on the Boston Braves at Ebbets Field yesterday and nearly lost the ball game before the good ship could be righted by Uncle Robbie and sent on to a ten-inning victory, 5 to 4. The potund Flatbush manager sent two second-string twirlers to the mound against George Stallings's clan, Mohart starting and Miljus finishing, and the Braves showed that they are lacking in proper respect for the champions by crashing into the former for a three-run lead in the second inning. Meanwhile, Pierotti, the Braves' new pitcher, was having all kinds of success with the Dodgers. He gave them five hits and no runs in the first seven frames, and it looked to most of the folks as if the champs would end their season by losing to the lowly Braves. There was a crowd of about 15,000 present for the final game of the pennant chase.

At the beginning of the eighth, when the cause looked darkest, Uncle Robbie left his soft spot on the bench and ambled briskly to the first-base coaching line. The sight of the rotund Flatbush manager was the signal for an outburst from the excited citizenry, who clapped and shouted as if the world's series was already won. Robbie then took charge of the game, which had been drifting around helplessly in his absence, and in three innings he manufactured more runs than the Braves had collected in the previous seven innings. It showed what a magnetic personality could do.

Zack Wheat was the first to respond to the beck and call of his boss. Zack had previously polished up his world's series batting eye by hitting Pierrotti for a double and a single. When he toed the plate in the eighth he found Johnston on first by virtue of a single, and the Robins' Captain promptly smashed the ball over the right-field wall for a homer. This was the first result of Uncle Robbie's coaching.

Tie It Up in the Ninth.

The Braves celebrated their half of the ninth by pushing over a fourth tally, making the count 4-2. In the Brooklyn half Robbie again parked himself on the first base coaching line. Koney, the first man to face Pierotti, blazed a double to left centre. Sheehan, playing shortstop, was retired at first, but Taylor shot a single into left, scoring Koney. Taylor romped to second when Ewrys fumbled the ball, and the young Brooklyn catcher came all the way home when Ivy Olson singled to centre. This knotted the count and forced the game into extra innings.

The tenth was easier yet for Robbie. After the Braves had expired, not without some trouble, Griffith began the Flatbush half by lining a single to the mid garden. Zach Wheat's fly settled in Cruise's glove, but Ray Myers pickled one of Pierotti's curves for a single that scored over Sullivan's head in centre and sent Griffith across with the winning tally.

Petey Kilduff was the only Brooklyn regular missing from the lineup, with the exception of the batterys, Petrachi was slightly spiked in yesterday's imbroglio with the Giants, and decided to take a rest before the big doings tomorrow. Olson moved over to second from the short field, and Sheehan filled the veteran's shoes. The Braves also trotted out a new first baseman, Forscher, and Christenbury cavorted at short in place of Rabbit Maranville, whose season ends earlier than that of the other players.

Miljus in Good Form.

George Mohart, Robbie's first mound nominee, had one bad inning, the second, when the Braves uprose and scored three runs. In the fifth George retired in favor of Lamar as a batter, and John Miljus, late of Pittsburgh, ascended the hill. He allowed the Braves one run and five hits in the remaining five frames, and gets credit for the victory.

Norman Boeckel, the man who gained fame by knocking out a home run that sent the Giants' pennant chances glimmering, started the Boston trouble in the second. Norman began the canto by singling to left. He went clear to third on Cruise's single to right. O'Neil fanned and Johnston messed up Ford's grounder, filling the bases. Pierotti forced Ford at second, Olson to Sheehan, Boeckel scoring. Christenbury then tripled to right, sending Cruise and Pierotti across the platter.

After Wheat's homer had brought Brooklyn's first two runs over in the eighth the Braves added a fourth tally in the ninth. Christenbury, who had got on by forcing Pierotti at second, scored on an infield out and a single to left by Sullivan. In the ninth the Robins tied it up on Koney's double, Taylor's single, Ewrys's error and Olson's timely single. The tenth saw the Robinson clan staging the winning rally.

COACH NICKALLS REPORTS.

Yale Oarsmen to be Called Out for Practice This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 3.—Guy Nickalls, the Yale crew coach, arrived here tonight from England. He will tomorrow meet the Yale Athletic Committee and outline Yale's rowing policy for the season. Conferences have been held by the Yale Rowing Committee, which has been awaiting the arrival of Nickalls before announcing definite plans.

Nickalls said tonight that nothing was decided beyond the program for the Fall rowing. He will call out the crew-ing squad on Tuesday, organizing several Varsity and class eights. They will row in practice daily until about November 15, when the Fall regatta will be held. Only Yale crews will compete in this. Following the regatta two or possibly three Varsity eights will continue rowing in practice as long as the weather permits. Yale's rowing program for next Spring will not be decided upon for several weeks.

CARDINALS DEFEAT REDS.

St. Louis Ties Score in Ninth and Wins in Twelfth, 6 to 3.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 3. — Last year's champion Reds closed their season here by suffering a defeat at the hands of the St. Louis Cardinals. Swartz, a recruit, pitched the full game for the Reds and would have won in nine innings but for a slow piece of fielding, which allowed St. Louis to tie the score. He was hit hard in the twelfth, when the Cardinals scored three runs on four drives. The score:

GIANTS DEFEATED IN CLOSING GAME

EACH OF BIG THREE SHOWS REAL POWER

Encouraging Signs in Saturday's Gridiron Games for Blue, Crimson and Tigers.

MANY TEAMS STILL GREEN

Development of Some of Last Season's Leaders Being Slowly Advanced for Later Clashes.

New, that college gridirons from Kalamazoo to Tallahasse are trampled and torn by the clash of rival elevens, it is possible, not to get a line on the question of relative strength among the teams, but to pick up various floating strands which in time will help to weave that line. Nothing developed in the games of Saturday calculated to shock the nervous systems of the prophets, or to send them cantering in a body for the deep woods. Still, there were a few episodes which, if not hair-raising, provided surprises and, perhaps, warnings in specific cases.

Among these appears the experience of Colgate at the hands and feet of Susquehanna. Last season the Hamilton football machine was rated at the very top, on a level with Dartmouth and Penn State, while the college team which held the Hamilton warriors to a scoreless draw Saturday on their own field had not won enough spurs to equip half its heels. Whether the outcome of the game shows weakness on the part of the New Yorkers or strength lurking in the Pennsylvanians' ranks, whether it is an omen, a warning, a lesson, or just a freak, cannot be known yet. One thing certain is, that Coach Huntington will not care much for the result of his eleven's opening game, and that he will manifest his dissatisfaction vigorously in some form or other.

Colgate was hard hit upon the arrival of the commencement season by the loss of several outstanding players. Nevertheless, the institution has much football material of a high order and a coach quite capable of using it to the best advantage. The team is evidently not quite ready yet, even for minor games, and that is possibly the deliberate design of the field mentor.

Quakers Strike a Snag.

Penn ran into a little surprise party, too, when her guests from Buchnell arrived at Franklin Field with twenty-two hands, behind eleven broad backs and a flatiron in every fist. The way in which Heisman's new charges were treated by the Lewisburg athletes was anything but seemberly. Only an unfortunate fumble prevented the less conspicuous team from holding the Quakers to a pointless tie.

Of course, scores at this stage of the season's development are of minor importance. Nevertheless, they are straws, with all of a straw's proverbial significance. No college eleven of great traditions is at all eager to be beaten, tied or even nearly held level, even in its initial contests, by opponents of minor prestige. All the poohpoohing that can be mustered will not serve to subdue that obstinate fact. Heisman's friends get away ponderously against Delaware a week earlier, but he has apparently just begun to carve his first eleven to his taste.

Other surprises of the day included Navy's defeat by North Carolina State, Cornell's close squeak in the tussle with Rochester, the success of Lehigh in holding the West Virginia Mountaineers to a drawn game, and, last but not least, Swarthmore's spectacular rally at the close of the game which led to the crossing of Princeton's goal line. Yale gave an impressive exhibition in its one-sided collision with Carnegie Tech. Even though the boys from Pittsburgh were outweighed they know some football, and it is pretty evident already that Tad Jones is building something of a juggernaut at New Haven. There is every indication that he has found great material ready to his hand and that he is making such use of it as Tad Jones would be sure to make.

Harvard's showing against Maine, which had held Boston College level a week previously, will please supporters of the Crimson, who had been a trifle dismayed by that field goal margin over Holy Cross. The Crimson merely danced its way to overwhelming victory, and there was a latent power manifest on both offense and defense that promises much for the games to come.

Tigers Reveal Sturdy Attack.

Princeton, too, facing more obstinate opposition than either of her traditional rivals encountered, showed a diversified attack that was distinctly encouraging, although suffering much from such errors of commission as entail penalties, and which must be eradicated if marked success is to be attained. There was a lack of team play, too, which betokens a still moist state of the welding glue. Excellent performances by Lourie and others bode well for the future.

The Army showed up well in its novel performance of staging two games in a day. The first string men did quite all that could have been asked of them in the conflict with Union, and that plenty of strong substitutes are available at West Point was clearly shown by the one-sided game of the second string players with Marshall College.

Columbia's curtain raiser left a pleasant taste in the mouths of Manhattan football fans, who hope and expect much of Buck O'Neill's Morningside Heights eleven. That Trinity would be beaten was the general anticipation, despite the good showing of the Hartford aggregation in their opening battle with the Connecticut Aggies, but the decisiveness of the victory, the vigor of attack shown by the denizens of South Field, and their defense, which prevented the visitors from acquiring a single first down in the game, gratified adherents of the Blue and White. It is easy to read in Saturday's performance a pledge of excellent football by Dr. Butler's lads throughout the Autumn.

Fordham's initial game after three years of gridiron idleness was most creditable, too. The New York Aggies, just beginning to take on formidable opponents, are not yet ripe for serious consideration among college elevens, but the soundness of the thrashing administered by the Maroon can be explained only upon the assumption of genuine power on the part of DuMoe's pupils.

NEW LINEMEN FOR NAVY.

Return of Olympic Athletes Will Strengthen Academy Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 3.—A dozen big linemen, mostly members of the Olympic rowing party which has just returned from Antwerp, will greatly strengthen the Naval Academy football squad tomorrow and help to dispel the gloom caused by the defeat by North Carolina State on Saturday.

The list includes Kind and Moores, regular right guard and right tackle last season; Sanborn, substitute centre; Willkie, the 315-pound wrestler, who made good at guard and tackle last season; Mission, the intercollegiate champion heavyweight boxer; Niemeyer, Bolles, Frawley, Howland, Gallagher, Wallace, Richards and Henard, all line substitutes of last year and weighing from 180 to 195 pounds.

No doubt is felt as to the development of a powerful line, and efforts will be made to develop more ends and to increase the speed of the backfield.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

BASEBALL

Baseball has been dealt a body blow, the effects of which will be apparent for a long time to come. A sport which had been held up for years as typifying in its personnel everything that was honest and fair is suddenly unmasked and a condition is disclosed which has shocked the sport lovers of the nation as they never were shocked before. The blue ribbon event of the country's sport calendar has been delivered to gamblers by public idols who had enjoyed the fullest confidence of every follower of the game.

What is the result and what the remedy? Public confidence in baseball has been greatly shaken by the abuse to which it has been subjected. It will be some time before the sport will recover from the shock sustained through the confessions of Cicotte, Jackson and Williams and it is possible that it never again will enjoy the confidence which has been its portion up to this time. A season is closing as the revelations are brought forth, and it will be necessary to wait until another year rolls around to ascertain if there will be a marked falling off in attendance as a result of the disclosures. The demand for reservations to the coming world's series indicates that there is as much interest as ever in this classic of the diamond. There is everywhere a feeling of assurance in its honesty that is refreshing.

The fan generally doubtless will retain his faith in his favorite players, his home team, and in fact all players until they may be proven guilty of wrong doing, which is another good sign for the future. It was surprising that so many players of one squad could be tempted to enter into such a deal, but the silver lining to the cloud was that the game still has its Schalks, its Collinses, its Murphys, its Fabers, its Kerrs and others who do not fall. To argue that they were not asked is futile. The players who went into the deal could have used these men to advantage, but knew they were not of the type to take a part.

Changes in the government of the game may prove the solution to the trouble. The men who direct the affairs of the major leagues now are capable in certain ways, better versed in the intricacies of the sport than others might be, but the fact remains that they do not hold the confidence of the public, which wants the game safeguarded in every manner. These men are honest, but they failed to bring out the facts in the biggest scandal the game ever knew. In this failure they lost the confidence of the fans. The so-called Lasker plan of reorganization may or may not be feasible in every detail—that is for the club owners to decide. The idea, at least, starts an agitation for a general rearrangement that may be the tonic needed to bring baseball back to its former perfect health.

TURF

The announcement of the plan of Samuel D. Riddle to retire his great champion, Man O' War, from the turf following the match race with Sir Barton Oct. 12 has been received by the racing public with both surprise and regret. Most followers of racing had looked forward to seeing the great colt race against the handicap performers next season, and the news that he will be seen no more came as a shock.

Mr. Riddle has no doubt given a great deal of thought to the future of his great race horse, and in the end the Fair Play colt may do more good for the American turf as a stallion than could be accomplished by keeping him in training. Yet it seems a pity that the horse of the century, and perhaps the greatest horse in the history of the thoroughbred, should flash like a meteor only to drop into obscurity when at the very height of his racing career. Man O' War will be missed from the scenes of racing next year, and there will be no horse to take his place as an attraction.

It is the opinion of many horsemen that there is no pressing necessity for retiring the champion and that he could be raced through his four-year-old form and still be just as valuable to the breeding industry. Other noted horses of other years have been trained as four-year-olds. On the other hand, it must be admitted that there is not much incentive for keeping Man O' War in training, as there is little to be accomplished by a four-year-old, no matter how great he is. There are few big stakes, and his activity must be confined mostly to overnight handicaps. In the hands of the handicapper, it is quite probable that Man O' War would sooner or later be defeated, for weight levels the best of them. As it is, if he wins the match race with Sir Barton he can retire with a wonderful record, marred only by a single defeat, and that due to a bungled start and ride, and to no fault of the horse.

Mr. Riddle has had an ambition to see Man O' War top all American horses in the matter of earnings. If the champion defeats Sir Barton for the $75,000 purse at Windsor, that ambition will be gratified. Man O' War has won $162,465 to date. The winning of the $75,000 purse would make his total $237,465 and place him far above Domino, which now heads the list of American winners with a total of $193,550.

FOOTBALL

From the viewpoint of early October, the 1920 football season is rich in promise for the big three, Yale, Harvard and Princeton. There are those who proclaim that football's only salvation lies in the rise of the so-called small college and who resent strongly the supremacy that the three Eastern universities have commonly enjoyed in intercollegiate football. These prophets see in Colgate, Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Penn State, Cornell, Syracuse, West Virginia and others the elevens that will break the close corporation. The rapid rise of Centre College they hail with zeal.

But the results of the early games this season, whatever their worth may be as a football barometer, indicate that Yale, Harvard and Princeton are still very much in the running. While Colgate was being held to a scoreless tie by little Susquehanna, Harvard was crushing the University of Maine to the tune of 41 to 0. While Bucknell was holding Penn to a single touchdown, Yale was trimming Carnegie Tech., 44 to 0. While North Carolina was taking the measure of the Navy and Lehigh was battling on even terms with West Virginia, Princeton was an impressive victor over the formidable Swarthmore team.

The astute critic, too, might be able to see in the victories of the big three further indications that they are returning to their old-time successful tactics. Tad Jones has returned to New Haven and, judging from the score of the first contest, has brought with him the same elements that made Yale's 1916 eleven one of the best in the Elis' history. The Blue was fast and hard hitting and it uncovered two or three players who seem to have the making of stars. Harvard showed a striking recovery from its form in the Maine game, and Princeton lived up to most of the expectations of those who see in the Tiger lair plenty of trouble for its coming opponents.

It has been charged against Coach Roper that he has partly discarded the old Princeton system of following the ball closely and waiting warily for mistakes by the opposing team—the system by which Sam White and other fleet Tigers gained undying fame. But it is interesting to note that one of Princeton's two touchdowns against Swarthmore was nearly the direct result of a scooped-up fumble on the 38-yard line.

The football deck, of course, will have to be shuffled several times more before the trump cards of 1920 make their appearance. The sensation of October is oftimes the black sheep of late November. But the optimistic friends of Yale, Harvard and Princeton have reason for their early October smiles.

SWIMMING

Now and then, at long intervals, there comes to the fore some contestant in athletics whose extraordinary skill enables him, or her, to attain all-around international precedence, notwithstanding the universal present-day tendency to specialize. Of this rare type is Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, the peerless young mermaid of the New York Women's Swimming Association, our recently crowned Olympic champion. At the age of 18, after little more than two years of competition, she has assumed undisputed world leadership. More, she is admittedly the greatest swimmer of her sex ever developed.

Her recent triumph at the games in Antwerp is significant of her clean-cut leadership. Pitted against the topnotchers of all nations she not only won as she pleased the two swimming events held for women, at 100 and 300 meters, free style, literally outclassing her opponents, but, without greatly exerting herself, and despite difficult conditions, she shattered by wide margins the Olympic records for the two distances, lowering the former from 1:19 4-5 to 1:13 3-5, and the latter from 4:43 2-5 to 4:34.

It may be recalled that when Miss Fannie Durack, the famous Australian water queen, visited the United States a year ago and was beaten conclusively by the local girl in the national 440-yard championship at Manhattan Beach, fellow-countrymen of Miss Durack attributed the outcome of the race to circumstances and remained totally unconvinced of Miss Bleibtrey's superiority. After the recent competition in Antwerp, however, the Australians had a different tale to tell and declared without reservation that the equal of the New York girl swimmer never has been seen.

Yet the success of Miss Bleibtrey at the classic meet served to emphasize her supremacy, rather than to establish it. Her previous work had done that. Ever since she rounded into form for the indoor season last Winter her racing was marked by an almost uninterrupted succession of record-breaking feats. Whether in pool or open water, in free style or back stroke swimming, and quite irrespective of distance, she never failed to hang up new standards if conditions were anything like normal. Lately Miss Bleibtrey's speed has not been tested to the limit. She has won all races so easily that it has been unnecessary for her to put forth her best efforts. As a result there is keen speculation concerning what she could do under pressure. But we are likely to find out soon. The indoor season will be launched shortly, and her sterling performances will oblige her to concede large allowances to opponents in handicap events. She will have to swim out to win. Experts look for sensational accomplishments on her part when these handicaps take place.

One of the most interesting features of Miss Bleibtrey's career as a swimmer is the amazing physical benefit she has derived from the short period of competitive activity. At the time she took up the sport was a frail, undeveloped lassie, actually slightly deformed from curvature of the spine. Today one will look far to find a more robust specimen of young womanhood. Straight as an arrow, powerful, the bloom of perfect condition in her cheeks, she is the picture of health and vigor.

MOTOR BOATING

During the motor boating season now drawing to a close in northern waters several records were established which demonstrate the great improvement made in both motor and hull design and in construction. It was not until this year that the sport really started to recover from the effects of the wartime inactivity, and many believed it would take three or four years at the least for the sport to get back to its pre-war basis, both as regards popularity and any material scientific development, but performances during the last season disprove these contentions.

American speed boats sent abroad to bring back the Harmsworth International Motor Boat Trophy, emblematic of the world's speed championship, accomplished that object without difficulty. Then the performance of the Miss America at Detroit, in the races for the one-mile championship, in which she made the best mile at the rate of 77.098 miles an hour, and in which her average for six runs, with and against the tide, was 76.055 miles an hour, tells its own story.

In 1914 the Baby Speed Demon, the best performer, showed a speed of 51.720 miles, while in 1915 the Tech Jr attained a speed of 53.70 miles, and in 1916 the Miss Minneapolis exceeded the coveted mile-a-minute speed by covering the distance at a rate of 61.083 miles. That speed was fractionally improved in 1917 by the Miss Detroit II. at a speed of 61.724 miles, which in 1918 the Whip-po'-Will Jr clipped off the distance at a speed of 63.495 miles an hour, which, fast though it is, still is 14.2 miles an hour slower than the time shown by the Miss America this year—a most astounding advancement.

That this remarkable improvement in speed is not merely a short distance accident, is best demonstrated by the fact that the Miss America covered a thirty-mile course at the flat rate of seventy miles an hour, which in itself is six and a half miles an hour better than any previous mile record. Among the cruisers and displacement racers, as well as in the out and out hydroplane racing craft, almost equally increased speeds were shown during the last season.

Then, too, in the matter of the number of starters, several of the more important fixtures in various sections of the country brought out larger fields than have entered into competition before, all of which demonstrates the healthy condition of the sport of motor boating.

While motor boating has thus come back in wonderful style since the conclusion of the World War, still it is too early to determine whether the war will materially swell the ranks of motor-boat fans. It is generally believed that it will; for thousands of young men, who never before saw the ocean, surfed in the Navy, and it is safe to say that many of them will sooner or later experience the call of the sea and resort to motor boating in response to that call. That they have not done so at present is not at all surprising. They were "fed up" with life afloat, and under the most trying conditions. A realization that motor boating as a sport is only to be compared with the most pleasant of their experiences in naval service will dawn upon them, sooner or later, and then should come the augmentation of the ranks of motor boatdom.

BRITISH LINKSMEN HAVE EVEN BREAK

Ray and Vardon Defeat Mackie and Dowling in Morning, but Lose in Afternoon.

Ted Ray and Harry Vardon managed to defeat Dan Mackie and Jack Dowling yesterday morning on the links of the Century Country Club, Elmsford, but in the afternoon against the same pair found the task too much. The visiting Britishers finished the morning 7 up and seemed headed for another walkaway after lunch, especially when Vardon started brilliantly, but Mackie and Dowling squared the match on the thirteenth and then with Dowling's brilliant birdie 2 on the fourteenth to their credit they held off the invaders and finished 1 up. Each round was considered as a separate exhibition.

Ray was the star performer of the morning with an all-around brand of golf that gave him an individual bail of 71, while the Vardon-Ray best-ball was 66. Vardon picked up repeatedly, leaving to the American open champion the work of holding the two Westchester professionals. Dowling had an approximate individual bail of 77 and Mackie's was about 80.

Vardon got back to form after lunch and startled the Sunday crowd of spectators with the spectacular on the first three holes, which he negotiated in eight strokes. He had a par 3 on the first, a birdie 2 on the second and a birdie 3 on the third.

The best-ball cards follow:

PERRY DEFENDS TITLE.

Fox Hills Golfer Defeats Barnhill for Club Championship, 3 and 2.

A. C. Perry proved yesterday that he still is entitled to top rank among the linksmen of the Fox Hills Golf Club on Staten Island. In the championship match for the club title Perry retained the crown which he won last year by coming from behind and defeating W. Roy Barnhill by 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final. At the end of the first eighteen holes played in the morning Barnhill was 3 up, but Perry then won six of the next ten holes and emerged the victor on the thirty-fourth hole.

In the late Spring Perry defeated J. D. Newman in the Fox Hills invitation by 2 up.

WIN IN LONG ISLAND GOLF.

Rockwell and McLean Are First Holders of New Title.

The first amateur-professional golf championship of Long Island ever held came to an end yesterday when the pair from the Cherry Valley Club of Garden City, Grant A. Peacock and Frank McNamara, defeated the Great Neck pair, D. W. Rockwell and George McLean, on the latter's course in the last thirty-six holes of the 72-hole final. The score was 11 and 9, the Cherry Valley team having piled up a lead of nine holes last Sunday when the first thirty-six holes were played over its links.

Rockwell and McLean had a liberal handicap, which, for instance, enabled them to win the first hole both morning and afternoon even though the cards show it was halved, but the team work of Peacock and McNamara was too much for them. On the second hole Peacock contributed a birdie 2 as the result of a long putt and on the long third hole McNamara had a birdie 4 as the result of true putting.

Yesterday's card follow:

MORNING ROUND.

Out—
Peacock-McNamara	5	2	4	4	4	4	3	4	4—34
Rockwell-McLean	5	3	5	4	4	4	3	4	4—36

AFTERNOON ROUND.

Out—
Peacock-McNamara	4	3	4	4	4	4	3	4	4—34
Rockwell-McLean	4	4	4	3	5	4	4	3	4—35

This tourney was started in June and attracted an entry from a dozen clubs. Each match except the final was at thirty-six shots, eighteen on the home course of each team. It is expected next season that at least twenty clubs will enter pairs.

SEE EASY VICTORY FOR MISS STIRLING

Observers at Cleveland Think Champion Has Clear Path in Golf Title Play.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—It is the opinion of most of the women golfers who are here for the national championship this week that Miss Alexa Stirling will retain her title easily. As for the other 103 entrants, many of them are outspoken in their belief that nothing short of a complete upset in Miss Stirling's game can prevent her from winning her third American title in succession. She may be hard pressed during the early holes of matches if she should happen to be drawn so as to engage Mrs. W. A. Gavin of New York or Mrs. C. A. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia, but chief interest will be in the fight for top place in the bracket opposite Miss Stirling's and for the honor of being runner-up.

The young Atlanta girl's game is known to be considerably stronger than last year, which is also describing it as stronger than in 1916, when she first won the national championship. Her feat in clicking off a 75 two weeks ago in the tourney for the Canadian women's title, which she won, stands as remarkable in the history of women's golf. None expect women to approach par, yet Miss Stirling hovers around regulation figures consistently. Her position above all American challengers has taken the edge off the interest in this year's event. Moreover, the absence of so many leading Easterners, such as Mrs. Quentin F. Feltner, New York champion; Mrs. Thomas Hucknall and Miss Georgiana Bishop, two other Metropolitan topnotchers, has strengthened the opinion that Miss Stirling has a clear path.

The qualifying round of eighteen holes will be played tomorrow, a division of thirty-two to qualify. One match round will be played daily, starting at 10 o'clock, and all are at eighteen holes. On the day of the championship final, Saturday, will also be held the annual mixed foursome competition, at medal play handicap. Other extra events are the consolation tourney for non-qualifiers on Tuesday, the women's handicap against bogie on Wednesday, the driving, approaching and putting contests Thursday and the best-ball foursome at scratch Friday.

Tomorrow's pairings bring several of the star players together. Miss Marion Hollins of New York draws Mrs. Vanderbeck in what will very likely be the gallery event of the day. Miss Stirling plays Mrs. Caleb Fox of Philadelphia, while Mrs. F. C. Letts of Chicago, holder of the Western championship, plays Mrs. Paul Benhoff of Cleveland.

TWO TEAMS REACH FINAL IN TOURNEY

West Side and New York Survive in Semi-Finals of Interclub Tennis Play.

VETERANS IN GOOD FORM

Wright, Hardy and Hackett Make Fine Showing at Forest Hills—Anderson Brothers Victorious.

The West Side Tennis Club and New York Tennis Club became the finalists yesterday afternoon in the tournament for the Interclub tennis championship of the metropolitan district. The New York club, playing on its own courts, defeated the University Heights Club by 7 matches to 2, while the West Siders won the other semi-final from the Terrace-Kings County Club of Brooklyn at Forest Hills by 5 matches to 3, one of the doubles matches remaining unfinished. The winners will meet next Sunday, probably on the West Side courts at Forest Hills.

The West Side club departed from its habit of playing its second-string men in these interclub tournaments yesterday. The best players available from the club roster were pitted against the Terrace aggregation, but, even with its full strength, the club obtained the victory only by the hardest kind of battling. It was a peculiar feature that the three top-notchers on the West Side team in the singles all met defeat. When the singles were completed, the score was tied at three matches each and the decision rested with the doubles.

Samuel Hardy and Dean Mathey won a decisive victory for Forest Hills in the first doubles match to be completed, defeating H. Mollenhauer and Roy D. Ritchey, 6-1, 6-3. Then the national father and son champions, F. G. and F. C. Anderson of the Terrace Club, lost a close match to Harold H. Hackett and Lyle E. Mahan, the scores being 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. This settled things in favor of the West Siders. In the third doubles contest, Watson M. Washburn and Beals C. Wright of the West Side had won one set, 11-9, from S. Howard Voshell and Frank T. Anderson, and had dropped the second, 7-5, when darkness was falling and it was decided to cancel the third set.

Veterans Play Well.

A notable feature of the matinee was the work of the veterans, Wright and Hackett. Wright played admirably in both the singles and doubles, though beaten in the former, while Hackett demonstrated that he still possesses much of the ability as a doubles tactician that four times won him the national crown with Alexander a decade or so ago.

Washburn, Wright and Hardy all tasted defeat in the singles. Voshell defeated Washburn for the third time this season, pounding his way through to victory by dazzling overhead play in three hotly contested sets. Voshell was at his best in this match, and the Brooklyn southpaw at his best is capable of tripping up almost any player in the country. His smashing from all angles and positions was deadly, while Washburn, on the other hand, missed many opportunities by hitting into the net when a good chance presented itself to pass Voshell at the net.

It was a great day for the Andersons, despite the fact that father and son lost after a game battle in the doubles. Fred C. Anderson, the taller of the brothers, defeated the veteran, Beals Wright, national champion in 1905, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. The Brooklyn youngster, who was barely in grammar school while Wright was winning championships, gained the decision by superior agility in covering court, especially at the net. Wright tried lobbing to dislodge his opponent from forecourt, but Anderson generally managed to get a racquet on the ball and smash it back for a kill. Wright tired a bit in the third set and was forced into numerous errors.

Frank Anderson won for Terrace over no less formidable an adversary than Captain of the Davis Cup team. Anderson was unusually steady and marvelously accurate in his volleying and overhead play. As in his brother's case, youth had the call through greater activity in court covering. This was a splendid match and as closely fought as the scores of 4—6, 6—3, 8—6 indicate. The other three singles matches all went to the West Side through victories by Lyle Mahan, Charles M. Bull, Jr., and Cedric A. Major, the latter defeating the veteran baseline expert, Charles Chambers, in three interesting sets, 4—6, 6—2, 6—1.

In the encounter between the New York and Heights clubs the former gained the lead, 4 to 2, in the singles and then proceeded to win all three doubles matches, though all the doubles events were in doubt up to the last strokes, so keenly were they fought out. In the singles Vincent Richards, the national junior champion, won easily from Herbert H. Manchester, Captain of the Heights Club. Richards's speed of service and skill on the volley were too much for the hard-driving backcourt strategist, and the victory went in straight sets, 6—0, 6—2. Francis T. Hunter, Henry H. Bassford and W. H. Wood were the other winners in singles for the New Yorkers, while Paul Martin and Alfred D. Hammett accounted for the University Heights points.

Doubles Play Brilliant.

All three doubles matches were notable expositions of team play. Allen Behr and Vincent Richards, last year's metropolitan champions, defeated Hammett and Embree H. Henderson, finalists in several of the most important tournaments in the metropolitan district this season, in a match nearly every point of which produced brilliant, rapid-fire exchanges. Behr and Richards had to earn almost all their points by passing shots, as Hammett and Henderson were wonderfully steady and accurate whenever they were able to place a racquet on the ball. Hunter and Albert J. Ostendorf won another match that was extraordinarily well played, obtaining the verdict over Manchester and John Whyte only after three strenuous sets, 2—6, 6—3, 9—7, in which the losers were several times only a point or two away from a reversal of the final count. In the third doubles match the story of a splendid struggle is told in the set scores, J. Harry Steinkamp and Carl Joliffe defeating James W. Mersereau and Ben Letson, 3—6, 11—9, 7—5.

Colts at Fancy Prices Boost English H. C. of L.

Yearling thoroughbreds in England used to fetch only on average of 3,008 guineas the head. But that was when the executors of the estate of the late Duke of Westminster dispersed the ducal stud. However, it was a record average at that. But Lady Sykes, or Lord Glanely, or Tattersall—whichever was to blame—Glanely has now raised the ante. That is to say, the famous auctioneer of horses recently sold to Lord Glanely, for the benefit of Lady Sykes, the 1920 crop of yearlings from the Sledmore stud at an average price of 4,204 guineas the head. For one colt, offspring of Tetrarch-Blue Tit, Lord Glanely paid 14,500 guineas, approximately $70,000, or $15,000 more than was ever before paid in England for a yearling.

MRS. LYNCH IS VICTOR.

Defeats Miss Grove in Long Tennis Battle at Scarsdale, 4-6, 11-9, 7-5.

Mrs. Edward V. Lynch won from Miss Margaret Grove in the feature match of the women's tennis tournament at the Sunningdale Country Club at Scarsdale yesterday afternoon. This match required forty-two games for settlement, so closely was it contested. Mrs. Lynch finally gained the verdict by 4—6, 11—9, 7—5. The result could hardly be called a surprise, so evenly have the two been matched in their achievements on the courts this Summer, though Miss Grove had the higher ranking last year. Yesterday's battle narrowed down to a question of physical endurance, and Mrs. Lynch was a trifle the steadier in the final stages of the long battle of backcourt hitting.

Miss Marie Wagner and Mrs. Samuel H. Waring were the other winners in the third round of the singles. Miss Wagner won easily from Mrs. Percy Wilbourne, but Mrs. Waring had her hands full defeating Mrs. Sidney Wolff, 8—6, 7—5. In the doubles, Miss Wagner, paired with Miss Clare Cassell, won two matches.

The summaries:

Singles, Third Round—Mrs. E. V. Lynch defeated Miss Margaret Grove, 4—6, 11—9, 7—5; Mrs. Samuel H. Waring defeated Mrs. Sidney Wolff, 8—6, 7—5; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourne, 6—1, 6—2.

Doubles, Second Round—Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Clare Cassell defeated Mrs. H. Lehman and Mrs. Herbert Carlebach, 6—1, 4—6, 6—1; Mrs. J. Sachs and Mrs. E. Grunthal defeated Mrs. Joseph Sidenberg and Mrs. E. Vogel, 6—1, 6—2.

Third Round—Miss Wagner and Miss Cassell defeated Miss K. Fanstag and Miss Helen Bachman, 6—2, 6—2; Mrs. A. Lehman and Mrs. E. ARROW CLASS YACHT OUTSAILS RIVALS Hawk Beats Spinster by 20 Seconds in Fresh Wind—Magnolia Is Third.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Oct. 3.—One of the most important yacht races of the season which had been postponed from yesterday was sailed today between the Sewanhaka's Class, the Victory Class and the Arrow Class of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. It was won by the Arrow Class. The wind was west southwest when the yachts started and continued to be fresh to the finish, the weather conditions being ideal for sailing.

Paul Baumont's Spinster, sailed by Mr. Baumont of the Sewanhaka's Class, rounded the windward mark off Oak Neck Point, but the Arrow Class yacht Hawk, owned by Ralph E. Slaven and sailed by E. Burton Hart, gained the lead on the run and was first around the homeward mark off Lloyd's neck. The Hawk maintained this lead and finished twenty seconds ahead of the Spinster, winning the race.

H. M. Curtin's Magnolia, of the Victory Class, was the third yacht to cross the finish line. It was a splendid race throughout and Mr. Hart was warmly congratulated for the way in which he handled the Hawk.

The committee, which was composed of Frank Bowne Jones, George N. Cartlin and H. A. Sturgis, witnessed the race from aboard the power boat Dodo, owned by Commodore J. D. Graham Smythe of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. Both the Victory and Spinster Classes are new ones, the former being made up of yachts from the New York Yacht Club and the latter of the new Hereshoff Class.

Fordham to Meet Old Rival.

Encouraged by the overwhelming victory over the New York Aggies on Saturday, the Fordham football players will start the drive today which they hope will put them in shape for the contest with the powerful Boston College eleven at Boston next Saturday. Fordham University and Boston College are rivals of long standing.

GOLF STARS WILL PLAY.

Piping Rock Tourney Attracts Headliners of the Links.

Some golf clubs in the metropolitan area can hold an invitation tournament any old time and yet attract a field of stars. This is true of the Piping Rock Club of Locust Valley, L. I., which will hold its annual Fall event today, tomorrow and Wednesday, whereas most clubs find it necessary to schedule their fixtures on the last three days of the week.

Although it is not likely that Piping Rock will be favored by the entry of year, the committee last night had assurances from many of the metropolitan headliners that they would appear today for the qualifying round. This test will be at eighteen holes. The first and second rounds will be played tomorrow and the semi-finals and finals in three sixteens on Wednesday. The usual handicap medal play competition also will be played Wednesday. This is open to all except finalists, even semi-finalists being eligible after losing the morning matches. Prizes include a gold medal for the best qualifying round, prizes for the winners and runners-up in each sixteen and to the winner of each beaten eight, and also for the best and second best net score in the handicap.

Albert Z. Gray is Secretary of the club. On the golf committee are Howard F. Whitney, Chairman; John B. Dennis, Herbert M. Harriman, Charles L. Tiffany, W. P. Thompson and James F. Curtis.

BILLIARD SEASON TO OPEN TONIGHT

Local Cue Experts will Start After Balkline and Three-Cushion Titles.

The local billiard season will be formally opened tonight. Two tournaments have been arranged, one to be played at Joe Thum's Academy in Manhattan, and the other to be held at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn.

At the National Recreation Academy the Interborough Class C balkline championship will begin under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. Ten players of ability have entered, and to facilitate matters they have been divided into two sections. The players in each section will engage in a process of elimination. The players who finish first and second in each section will then meet in a round robin series of matches to decide the winner.

In the first section are the following players: L. A. Servatius, J. Johann, E. McGill, Sidney Brussel and J. Clemens. In the second section are J. Lewis, Jr., F. Boyd, C. J. Steinbugler, J. Shea and J. Dalton. Tonight's match will bring Shea and Lewis into action. Each match will be for 150 points.

At Thum's the first annual amateur handicap three-cushion tournament will begin. Ten players have entered. The scratch man, who will play for 35 points, are S. Garfunkel, M. Letzer, E. Lewis and F. Becker. The other entrants, with their handicaps, are: L. Lipton, 32; J. Cohen, 30; W. Quinlan, 28; J. F. McDaniel, 26; M. Cohen, 26, and A. Surkein, 25.

This tournament will continue for forty-five playing nights, one game being played each night. Four prizes will be awarded. M. Letzer, 35, and J. Cohen, 30, will meet tonight. George Moore, formerly world's three-cushion champion, will referee.

Miss Goss to Meet Miss Ballin.

Miss Eleanor Goss and Miss Florence Ballin are announced to meet this afternoon in the semi-final round of the tournament for the club championship in women's singles of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. The winner will play Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, who has already won her way to the final. Mrs. Mallory, Miss Ballin and Mrs. Rawson Wood, all of the West Side Club, will leave later in the week to compete in the championship tournament at Hot Springs, Va.

To the man who is worried about the cost of clothing

The cost of clothing is in the materials and in the labor.

The labor costs practically the same to all clothing manufacturers.

The cloth in a suit of clothes will average 3⅓ yards.

To make cheaper clothes one must either use less labor—do fewer things that ought to be done—or use cheaper materials.

To reduce the labor cost by reducing hand-tailoring damages fit, finish and durability. To reduce the cost of materials (only 3⅓ yards to a suit) must mean a big loss of quality if any noticeable reduction is made.

Society Brand Clothes are designed and tailored for men who have the good clothes habit; for men who want up-to-the-minute styles always in good taste and so well made up they will stay that way.

They have never been cheap clothes.

They are not cheap clothes now.

They are not to be compared with cheap clothes.

The man who buys Society Brand Clothes need not worry about style, tailoring or quality of the all-wool fabric.

THE DUTY OF REGISTERING.

This is registration week in New York. The booths will be open in all the election districts from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 10:30 in the evening on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and from 7 o'clock in the morning until 10:30 at night on Saturday. There will be no excuse for evading a duty that is doubly important this year, because failure to appear and be recorded will not only prevent the delinquent from voting for President, Senator, Representative in Congress and for State and local candidates on Nov. 2, but will debar him from enrolling under his party emblem to have a voice in the primary nominations in 1921. Then a municipal ticket from Mayor down is to be elected in the City of New York. It should be understood, too, that absentee voting, as recently provided for by statute, will not be allowed unless the citizen whose business calls him away is registered this week.

The booth will be practically around everybody's corner, for the law intends that there shall be one recording place for every 400 voters. No woman should forget that she has the right to be registered and can then vote on Nov. 2, and also next year participate in the naming of candidates for city offices. In 1921 the government which the City of New York is to have for the following four years will be a question of supreme importance affecting every family. Therefore it cannot be impressed too earnestly upon all citizens that they should enroll when they register, so that they can have their say in 1921 about the nomination of candidates for every municipal office.

The registration figures made up from day to day and the total announced for the week will give a true measure of the interest of the people of New York in the elections of this year. The issues involved are so momentous that to be a slacker should be a reproach. Apathy in what is manifestly a crisis in the affairs of the nation should be incredible, and yet the signs of it are apparent. Six days of registration will tell the story in New York. The intending voters here are too prone to put off their duty until the last day. Early registration would count much in dispelling apathy. If laggards understand that the totals are going to be large, that there is really a keen interest in the elections on Nov. 2, there will be no more talk of apathy when the final record is made up.

REPUBLICAN SOFT WALKERS.

Mr. ROOSEVELT'S favorite saying has been cut in two by the leaders and managers of his party. They are more than willing to walk softly. But they are terrified at the thought of carrying a big stick. When Senator BORAH openly challenges and rebuffs them, they whisper to one another and begin to pussyfoot away from the "bad man" from Idaho. Perhaps his breach with HARDING is not so complete as it looks. It may be, the Washington correspondent of The Tribune discreetly hopes, that BORAH is merely placing himself in a "reserved position." We should say so—a position reserved for politicians who demand plain speech and honest dealing. Meanwhile, from Senator HARDING comes nothing but amiable ambiguities. "My task," he says, "is to "harmonize the views of American "leadership." Simply be both for and against the League and insist that no means the same thing as yes. The Republican candidate himself is one of the softest walkers going. In fact, we fancy he would remind THEODORE ROOSEVELT of that man in the Scriptures who walked "delicately." But that was just before he was hewed in pieces.

WINTHROP MURRAY CRANE.

Throughout Western Massachusetts, all of which was his "home district," the death of Mr. CRANE will be felt as the loss of a "good neighbor," one of the most unobtrusively but actively kindly and helpful of men. He was always doing favors, setting people in difficulty on their feet, steadying shaky enterprises, fostering the beginning of new ones, aiding promising young men; and the scope of his quiet charities and benefactions was wide. Born to a great business, he mastered it, served a laborious apprenticeship in all its details, handed it enlarged to his son.

His judgment, his wisdom, his soundness of counsel and the innate gift of friendliness that won him a popularity which gradually spread over the State, and was to be as marked in the United States Senate as in the Senate of his State when he came to be Lieutenant Governor, were now to be displayed in a wider field. Three times Governor, a mostly decorative post, rich in commencement and dedication and cattle-show floridities, he, the silentest of men, attended to State business, prudent, far-seeing, judicious always. No other man had so strong a hold on public confidence in his State. With nothing of the passion, the scholarship and the eloquence of GEORGE F. HOAR, he was his inevitable successor in the Senate. He had other, less striking but solid and strong, qualities. They soon brought him a position of power in the Senate and in the counsels of the Republican Party, an influence due to character and sagacity, gained and exercised noiselessly.

Deafened by the multitudinous seas of campaign speech, dazed by the innumerable barren miles of the Congressional Record, the country of LA FOLLETTE must feel a peculiar gratitude to WINTHROP MURRAY CRANE, who never made a speech in public. Yet, in his nine years in the Senate, few, if any, Senators achieved or prevented so much. Not only as a member of important committees, notably that on Interstate Commerce, did he influence legislation, especially on great measures affecting business, but his ear-to-ear persuasion changed many more votes than the panoplied arguments of the floor-shaking orators. He had a genius for party management. A more adroit or more influential and respected member never served on the Republican National Committee or sat, a master of committee-room strategy, in Republican National Conventions. He knew and loved the game and played it with quiet effectiveness. He looked before and after, and got many things done without seeming to have a hand in them; cool, thoughtful, the master of pondered plans.

The crack in the Republican Party brought him almost his first enemies. Mr. ROOSEVELT had for a time a great liking for him, increased, perhaps, by Mr. CRANE'S justice and conciliatory methods toward his own workmen and labor in general. For the old experts in the art of politics Mr. ROOSEVELT, its cleverest and most versatile master, had a fondness that the bitterness of 1912 mustn't make us forget. After the defeat in 1912 and again in 1916, Mr. CRANE, who never nursed a grudge, did his best for Republican toleration and reunion. This year he showed his knowledge of public sentiment and his sound valuation of wise party policy by standing up for the League of Nations. He beat Senator LODGE squarely on it in the Massachusetts Republican Convention. He was beaten at Chicago. Thus to the last he showed his common sense and unclouded judgment.

WATSON'S AWFUL THREAT.

The Hon. THOMAS WATSON of Georgia has temporarily given up his speaking campaign. Something has gone wrong with his throat. This shows that illness does not always strike a man in his weakest organ. WATSON'S pen, however, is mightier than his voice; and a period of enforced silence will not matter so long as he can write and print such a stirring call to the people as lately appeared, duly italicized, in his newspaper, The Columbia Sentinel. The following is merely one note of his bugle blast:

> Secession was shot down in a four years' war in which our fathers fought and died; secession is now to become our solemn duty, imposed upon us by our perjured President and by the international bankers and manufacturers of Europe, Asia and Africa.

This, the reader will perceive, is what the Hon. TOM proposes to do if this country joins the League of Nations. He will rise up and indignantly take Georgia right out of the Union. If he would go with it, the other States might be tempted, after a few of WATSON'S exhibitions in the Senate, to say, with a measure of relief: "Erring sister, depart in peace."

CHANGES IN RUSSIA.

It would be foolish to pin too much faith to fragmentary dispatches coming from Helsingfors and Copenhagen. They report grave internal disturbances in Russia and predict an early collapse of the Soviet régime. We have had many such stories before; and most of them turned out to be either invented or greatly exaggerated. But, wholly apart from the present rumors, unmistakable signs have been accumulating during the last few weeks that things are going badly with the Moscow dictators.

We may know very little of what is happening inside Russia, but events outside are not hidden behind the proletariat veil. And they are almost uniformly of a character ominous for LENIN. He has never concealed his conviction that the permanent success of the Bolsheviki in Russia would be impossible unless they were able to provoke a world-wide revolution. This they have for two years sought by every means to incite and inflame. But they have signally failed. In China they are repelled. In Italy their haughty dictation is resented. France repudiates them; England distrusts them; America scorns them. And when we speak of these nations we speak of the masses of their workers, even of their Socialists. LENIN and his Third International are rejected by the very workingmen to whom he appealed.

Thus flung back upon their experiment within Russia, the Soviets are more and more frankly confessing its breakdown. Their own official reports show that an appalling state of misery has been brought upon the great majority of the Russian people, with few or no compensating advantages visible to the ordinary Russian. In revolutions, too, nothing succeeds like success. But the dictatorship of the proletariat has for some time had little to show, whether at home or abroad, except failure. Its armies are defeated and crumbling away, both West and South. In domestic affairs its administration has touched nothing which it has not ruined. This cannot last indefinitely. Unless there is a turn of luck for the better, something will crack. If the Soviet machine does not march, it will go to smash.

NEW YORK'S WEALTH AND TAXES

Nothing but the details are surprising about the fact that the debt and valuation of this city are world records. But the manner of their becoming so is not salved by pride. The totals of real and personal property and franchises rise to $10,655,000,000 by an increase which is itself fourfold larger than the total net debt for any of the country's largest cities. The figures for New York are not only the largest in themselves, but also per capita. That shows that our increase of population does not suffice to keep down the cost of government to each citizen. The ten billions of tax values are less significant than a budget of about a half billion, more or less, the figures being still under revision.

The city is now on the edge of its constitutional limit of taxation. There is the usual pressure to evade or extend the limit. But in that there is a threat to the basis of valuation. Tax values are more permanent than market values, and this year there is a collision between them in the shape of a proposal for the exemption of future tax values. The proposal is optional, but the tax increase is mandatory. With the budget prospects what they are, it is no wonder that the proposal of optional exemption was tabled on presentation last week. No wealth could long withstand such burning of the candle at both ends.

The next largest increase of taxation and valuation in the city's history was in the Gaynor régime, and started the rapid transit betterment. Without the dual subway no valuers would have dared to put such burdens on the taxpayers. And yet the administration which is in such desperate need of resources that it is taxing real estate to the limit conducts a crusade of depreciation of the city's greatest income-producing property. Mayor HYLAN has discovered that the tenants pay the landlords' taxes, but he has not yet discovered that the passengers ought to pay the transit companies' taxes. While it would be dangerous to enlarge the constitutional limit on taxation, or to exempt enough real estate to make an impression on the building movement, it would be both safe and just to lay taxes in the form of fares, enough, at least, to make the subways self-supporting and self-extending. The subways are the greatest source of tax values, but they are a burden to the city where they might be a source of profit, if New York followed the example of hundreds of cities which have granted relief.

Certainly the time has come for all citizens, including those who do not feel that they are taxpayers, to support those who will try to keep the budget and the tax rate at the lowest point. The city must go without some of the things which it ought to have when it can afford them. It cannot now spend more than a hundred millions on buildings which produce no revenue. There are proposals for a trotting track, for draining city golf links, for bathhouses, for seaside parks, and other pleasing projects which are supported by those now bewildered by the totals which they are exclaiming against. The best way of reducing taxes in stringent times is by not spending money. The administration which was elected on the pies and promise of economy is the proposer of the half-billion budget, and is responsible for the impairment of the greatest income-producing and value-raising asset in the city.

A BASEBALL COMMISSION.

Owners of several major league clubs have united in proposing a new National Commission of three men without any commercial interest in the game. Ex-President TAFT and General PERSHING are among the men suggested for the new body, and those who urge it would give it virtually despotic authority over all professional baseball. There is a good deal to be said for the plan. The present National Commission, composed of the heads of the two major leagues and a Chairman selected by them, has been without a Chairman for the last year because of jealousies and factional quarrels. It did nothing in the most serious crisis of recent baseball history. It is probably true that the game has outgrown BAN JOHNSON—it did that a long time ago; it is also true, and more important, that it has outgrown the whole system under which it has been operated for the last twenty years.

Professional baseball is in a bad way, not so much because of the Chicago scandal as because that scandal has provoked baseball managers and club owners and players to bring up all the rumors and suspicions of ten years past. Some of these may be true, most of them are probably untrue; their general effect, however, is to wrinkle the noses of fans who could survive the White Sox scandal, but will quit going to ball games if they get the impression that this sort of thing has been going on underground for years. Somebody with discretion and imagination ought to take charge of the industry, to save it as an industry no less than as a sport.

Whether a powerful commission would work an entire reform is questionable. Recent history has shown that you can do almost anything by statute, and still more by constitutional amendment; but it would hardly be practicable to pass a law forbidding anybody to play professional baseball without submitting to the rules of the commission. Many leagues, including the National and the American, would submit to the commission, but a good many outlaw leagues would not. Perhaps the attractions of order and respectability would bring the outlaws in, but it would take time. The case of boxing is hardly a fair analogy; if baseball ever had been reduced to the point from which boxing today is trying to struggle back to respectability, a good many millions of investment would have been wiped out forever. The men who are anxious about the future of these millions ought to realize that something must be done.

THE NEW COLLEGE YEAR.

Yale reports that the effects of war-time have virtually vanished, and the same is doubtless true of other institutions. The four undergraduate years have resumed their place as the great event of a young man's lifetime. Almost all the universities report increased enrollment, even to the point of creating a housing problem. This also is gratifying. Much has been suffered of late by folk of the more liberal tradition, whose life and labor require the mind well trained and well stored, but it appears that they can still afford to educate their sons. Doubtless many of the college newcomers are offspring of the war-made rich, yet that also is subject for rejoicing. Not all of the easy money has flowed into silk shirts and Summer furs, limousines and cabarets. Education, or at least the call of a young man's life among men, still holds its ancient sway.

Once again the freshman is merely a freshman. The heroic is no longer expected of him, but only humble submission to the genius loci, whose high priests are those majestic beings that have already served in the temple one whole year. At Cambridge, where the horse chestnuts toss their mahogany balls along the sidewalk; at New Haven, where the verdure of the soaring elms is crisping to decay; at Princeton, where Summer still lingers on the hilltop—everywhere the freshman's mood is the same. His unreluctant foot is on the threshold of a thrilling epoch for him. In after years other novitiates may figure in his maturer judgment as equally or even more significant; but the conviction of the weighty moment will never be deeper than it is today.

Some time, as he looks back upon these initial days, his mind may encounter a seeming paradox. What is called the serious side of college life is as yet ill-adjusted. Even the professors show signs of confusion and hurry. But out on the football field the coaches are sure of foot and tongue, the competing candidates are already in the pink of training and equal to the clash of battle. No one will suppose, even for a moment, that sport is more important than an advanced and liberal education. Yet the squad has been at it for days and is already smooth in its stride. When the freshman is able to solve this paradox he will be wiser than most men ever come to be.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Ponzi Still Keeps One Secret.

All the mysteries of PONZI'S life and works have now been revealed and they are enumerated with cold accuracy in the two indictments of many counts that have been found against him. That is, all of the mysteries except one are there.

The Grand Jury's investigation has shown that the man's plan was quite the simplest and the oldest of all those that have been followed by adventurers of his familiar stamp. He promised quick and enormous returns on money intrusted to him to be used in a vaguely described speculation in foreign exchange. That was enough, with a little help from agents receiving big commissions paid out of the money they collected for their chief, to bring into what should have been the most obvious of traps men and women literally by the thousands. They were all so eager for money quickly and easily obtained that they were willing to intrust to a man who did not even profess to have any knowledge or experience in any phase of international finance sums which, for the most part petty, in the aggregate ran well up into the millions.

To the first "investors" the promised profits were paid at the promised time, but often both principal and interest went back into PONZI'S hands, and so the inevitable ending of his absurd system was somewhat delayed.

The problem for which the Grand Jurors have not attempted to supply a solution—presumably because it did not come within their domain as Grand Jurors—is nevertheless of interest. What were the emotions and expectations of PONZI himself as he reared his enormous castle of illusion? To answer that question with anything like an approach to certainty would be impossible without more knowledge of the man than is available, but plausible guesses, based on his behavior during the weeks just before the bursting of his iridescent bubble, can be made.

Perhaps He Deceived Himself.

When the magnitude of PONZI'S operations first attracted public and official attention, he manifested no signs of trepidation—gave no visible evidence of appreciation of the fact that his course as a great and benevolent financier was almost run. Instead, so cheerful were his smiles, so vigorous his proclamations of readiness for investigation, so confident his prophecies of continuing increment of affluence for all who trusted him, that he convinced the credulous and for some days silenced all except the coldest of his critics.

It is improbable, but it is not impossible, that PONZI himself believed that his scheme, though embroidered with lies, was essentially sound—that the procession of new clients could be kept up so long that its termination was of no real interest to him or anybody else. He knew that there were a lot of people in the United States, and he had more than excuse for thinking that no small fraction of them would exchange their money for his promises.

As a matter of fact, his troubles did not originate among the predestinate victims of his wiles, and it was they, not he, that resented the interference of the law's representatives in a game pleasing to all concerned. The same peculiarities of mind and character that had led PONZI, in spite of his seeming intelligence, into an enterprise that could have only a disastrous ending, may have prevented him from seeing himself otherwise than as a beneficent money wizard, or from expecting anything except an indefinite perpetuation of the glory he so much enjoyed. Perhaps of all whom his downfall surprised he was surprised most!

Education Should Come First.

A correspondent of The Herald—born The Sun—contributes to a commendable discussion of wild flowers and the need for their protection which that paper has been conducting the statement that the chief enemies of these lovely ornaments of field and roadside are not the people who pick stray handfuls of bloom while straying through the countryside in their Sunday walks, but the agents of florists, who gather them by the wagonload for sale in town.

This assertion may be true, and the correspondent's vigorous denunciation of traffic in wild flowers is well deserved. His plea for refusal to buy such wares at least should be considered by the more thoughtful and enlightened of nature's real admirers and appreciators. A really successful boycott of that kind, however, will not be started until after the individual destroyers and exterminators of the wild flowers have been educated into seeing and feeling the wickedness of their way—and then the boycott would not be needed, for the people who buy wild flowers in the shops are exactly the people who pick every wild flower they see in their rural wanderings.

It is a curious fact that the perpetrators of vandalism in this particularly stupid and vicious form sincerely think that by committing their crimes they are proving themselves Superior Persons and acquiring merit. In reality they are only different from and not a bit better than those who pass the wild flowers without noticing them, and the amount of harm they do can be called infinitely greater, as the unseeing and ignoring folk do no harm at all, while the others already have put an end near towns and villages to not a few species of plants once everywhere abundant, and are fast doing the same for many others.

Children, too, are praised instead of scolded for picking wild flowers! Why not tell them the very obvious truth that a living flower is more beautiful than one dead or dying, and train them, not in brutality and senseless destructiveness, but in real æsthetics, in gentleness and in wisdom?

A Lesson from the Bay State.

In a single day last week the Massachusetts State Registrar of Motor Vehicles suspended the licenses of sixty-three chauffeurs in the City of Boston. Their offenses were various. Some had driven cars while drunk—it seems unnecessary to use the euphemistic "intoxicated" while characterizing such villains—and the sober ones had endangered the public safety by running at reckless speed or they had tried to evade by flight responsibility for injuries they had caused to luckless pedestrians.

Why guilts thus serious were punished by suspension of licenses instead of by their permanent revocation it is not easy to see, but the Registrar did threaten the one efficient penalty for all second offenders in the future, and that is something.

In this city the record for the same day was: Killed, 3; injured, 12. If anybody's license was revoked or suspended here, the fact didn't get into the papers, and had there been such a fact it probably would have done so, if only because of its great rarity.

OUR FOREIGN LOANS.

They Are Considered Essential to American Prosperity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article "Foreign vs. Domestic Loans" in THE TIMES on Thursday, Sept. 30, you imply that the Norwegian loan for $20,000,000, recently completed in this country, is different from loans negotiated by foreign Governments during the war. You say: "We serve the world better by supplying goods than credit and thus stimulating the production of goods taken in payment rather than the accumulation of debts taken in payment."

In calling your attention to the fact that there is no distinction between this loan and former foreign war loans, I do so merely because it would result in the greatest harm to American industry to have it understood that such transactions as the Norwegian loan are nothing more or less than financial in nature. These transactions represent just as much an exchange of goods as did any of the war loans negotiated by the foreign Governments during the war. That it was a three-cornered transaction between Norway, England and the United States does not alter the fact that goods are being exchanged and not money.

This kind of transaction, far from being condemned, should be highly commended, and the greater the extent to which our bankers and investors effect such transactions the sooner will exchange rates move toward normal. The urgent necessity for the equalization of exchange rates needs no emphasis.

It should not be overlooked that the basis of these transactions is the shipment of commodities. When Norway obtained this loan here she obtained nothing but the right to claim goods or services from the United States. She could have taken the goods or services direct from us to her, but in the present circumstances finds it more convenient and profitable to direct us to transfer these goods and services to London where she is a debtor. The liquidation of international debts by the utilization of our surplus capital (which is the surplus of our production over current requirements) is and will continue to be a most important factor in the restoration of normal conditions in international trade. This is as much to our advantage at the present time as any other use that could be made of our surplus production. The fact that our goods are to be used in payment for ships that were built in England and will be used by Norway is an incident only and of no real importance in the situation. When the capital requirements of our railroads are met they will receive not money nor credit, but production of rails, locomotives, cars and other equipment. The shipment of commodities to Europe does not end will not interfere with this in the slightest degree.

This principle is ably illustrated by Albert W. Kimber, a recognized authority, in his book on "Foreign Government Securities," in which he says:

> "The borrowing country needs the goods, and though it may sometimes borrow in one country and spend in another, what it really buys are goods. The lending country can only lend if it has goods and services to supply, whether these goods are of its own manufacture or from some other country. When Great Britain made loans to the United States for railroad building, the United States might buy some of the steel rails in Belgium or Germany, instructing London to pay those countries for her purchases. In such a case England would send goods or services to Belgium or Germany, or pay them with her claim on some other country, Brazil, for example, to which she had sent goods or services. But the basis of all the transactions was the goods and services, and when Britain made the loan she gave the borrower nothing but the right to claim goods or services from her, a right which the borrower could exercise or transfer to some other party, as he saw fit."

It is absolutely essential to the continued prosperity of American industry that we continue to lend money to all foreign countries whose financial condition warrants the extension of such credit. It is only through such loans that American industry will be able to keep production at a normal rate. This means a surplus production which must be exported, and as practically all foreign countries owe us money they can only continue to buy from us through our extending credit to them.

THE FLOWER.

Apples, art, poultry,
Fat men and freaks,
Rival church dinners,
The Governor speaks,
Crowned heads of cattle,
Model town-squares,
Ten thousand flivvers,
And the Red Flower of fairs!

Idiot children
State taught and fed.
"Wee-wee, the Ape-boy, Twelve cents a head!"
Acres of tractors,
Acres of pears,
Crocheted chemises,
And the Red Flower of fairs!

Rayed like a daisy,
It spins through the sky.
(Oh, how exciting,
To see a man die!)
Spinning for money,
Spinning for stares,
With broken stem trailing—
The Red Flower of fairs!

DENIES LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Dartmouth's President Shows Only Three Were in Bootlegging Case.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 3.—In his first statement since the conviction of Robert T. Meads, Dartmouth student, for manslaughter for killing his classmate while under the influence of liquor, President Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth College made public today denial of charges made during the Summer by Albert H. Meads of Chicago, father of the convicted boy, that there was an extensive system of bootlegging at Dartmouth.

President Hopkins, in outlining the policy of the Dartmouth administration, says that it is to put responsibility for undergraduate conduct up to the undergraduates themselves. He states his firm approval of this policy and pledges the college to continue it in the future. His statement follows:

"In connection with the charges which were published during the Summer concerning participation in any system of smuggling of liquors or the consumption thereof among Dartmouth students, now that the court action has been completed, I believe it to be due both undergraduates and the outside public, who have shown such confidence in the college, to make one statement of fact as a matter of record.

"In the daily papers of Friday, July 10, there appeared an interview with Albert H. Meads of Chicago making assertions in attack upon the college among which the most sensational was, speaking of the college: 'What I found out about conditions was so revolting as to be almost unbelievable. There are on file in the office of County Solicitor Noonan of Grafton County the depositions of more than a hundred students, in which they state that they either engaged in or knew about the traffic in booze.'

"In response to a query from me addressed to the County Solicitor, after the case had been completed in the courts, he made reply, the essence of which is contained in the following quotation:

"'I have the names of only three men who were engaged in and knew about the traffic in intoxicating liquor at your institution. I mean by this three men, including Robert T. Meads, who had knowledge of the smuggling for consumption and distribution.'

"The policy of the administration at Dartmouth is to thrust responsibility for the code of the undergraduate life as definitely as possible onto the undergraduate body and to maintain only so many rules or as much detailed oversight as is necessary to insure an orderly conduct of college affairs, leaving to the undergraduate body as largely as possible a freedom which shall put its men upon their honor and shall encourage a development free from an atmosphere of espionage or minute personal supervision. Any discipline which permits freedom also of necessity permits individual departures from mechanical obedience. These departures may, of course, in individual cases, seriously contradict even in theory the good sense and honor of the men who make up the student body, or may seem to reflect discredit upon the undergraduate code.

"I have never had any reason to accept such an implication as true, never believed, not even in the circumstances attendant upon the tragedy of last Spring, for to one who knows the character of the men of the college it has always been evident that these circumstances were extraneous to college life as a whole.

"The definiteness of the specific charge which I have cited above, however, was such that it seemed that a permanent injustice might be done the reputation of the college were the facts not to be cited, and I have therefore reluctantly decided to give them the publicity that attended the original charge."

URGES AUTOMATIC DRAFT.

Representative Kahn Wants Nation Always Prepared for War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Automatic conscription, whenever the United States is attacked or Congress declares war, will be advocated in the next session of Congress by Representative Julius Kahn, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, who said today that he regarded such a law as the best guard against wars and as necessary to military preparedness.

Mr. Kahn has always thought that universal training was necessary, and he fought for such a measure in the last session, but because of opposition the bill was never presented to the House. But it will be offered in some shape this session along with his present proposal for automatic conscription.

"We lost three months by not having the Selective Service act on our statute books when we went to war," said Mr. Kahn, upon his return from the Pacific Coast. "Such a delay might be fatal to our cause another time, for we cannot again be sure of having allies fight off our enemy until we get ready."

Mr. Kahn takes the position that something must be done immediately for aviation. Already Germany has outdistanced the United States in this field since the end of the war and America is dropping back to her pre-war condition of trailing the other nations of the world after inventing the airplane.

"I am in favor of appropriating $5,000,000 annually to be used solely for invention and development of the airplane," Mr. Kahn urged. "We spent $640,000,000 in our first aviation program after we went into the war and got mighty few planes out of it. We cannot afford to do that again.

"I intend to ask the President for a modification of the German Peace Treaty to such an extent that Germany may get a deal for her ships and her industries, so that she may pay her obligations to the Allies. I favor reopening the Sarre Settlement. Unless we allow Germany to work out her solution and pay off her obligations, we will be called upon to loan more money to the Allies and perhaps to feed Germany."

DR. WYLIE IN NEW PULPIT.

Preaches First Sermon as Pastor of Central Presbyterian Church.

A large congregation in the Central Presbyterian Church, Madison Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, welcomed the Rev. Dr. Dwight Witherspoon Wylie, formerly pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, to the pastorate of Central Church yesterday morning.

Dr. Wylie's sermon was strictly a gospel message. The Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle-Smith, who retired last Spring after a ministry of thirty-two years, asked all the people to remain after service and meet their new pastor, and introduced every member of the church to his successor, whose formal installation will take place on Oct. 31.

Dr. Wylie will stay at the Cumberland Hotel pending the completion of alterations in the apartment at 829 Park Avenue, which the church has taken for him. His salary will be $10,000 a year. Mrs. Wylie and their two children will come from Philadelphia as soon as the apartment is ready.

TELLS OUR REFORMS IN SANTO DOMINGO

Commander Hayden Reports How Occupation Has Improved Conditions Generally.

130,000 NOW IN SCHOOLS

$20,000,000 Bonded Debt Will Be Met 33 Years Before Due—Big Sanitary Program.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—A report on conditions in Santo Domingo submitted by Commander Reynolds Hayden of the Medical Corps of the United States army, who is a member of the staff of the Military Governor of Santo Domingo, shows great improvement generally, financial, educational and sanitary, under the American military Government. Obligatory education has been established and there are now 130,000 children going to school, compared with 18,000 before the military occupation. The $20,000,000 bonded debt of the republic, which is due in 1938, will, says the report, be repaid by 1925, or thirty-three years before it is due.

"The military Government of Santo Domingo," says Commander Hayden's report, "was established in November, 1916, because of the seriously disturbed conditions in the Dominican Republic, dangerous to both Dominicans and foreigners, and because of the repeated failures of the Dominican Government to observe its treaty obligations with the United States. The military Government, composed of United States naval and marine officers, is still administering the affairs of the country.

Puts Finances on Sound Basis.

"At the time this temporary Government was installed the account of the Dominican Government was overdrawn by the sum of $14,224.33, and payment of salaries, supply bills, &c., was greatly in arrears. The military Government has paid all the 1916 indebtedness and has since then met all the expenses of the Government, including large repayments on the bonded debt, and on Aug. 1, 1920, had $3,200,000 in the treasury. It is expected that the $20,000,000 bonded debt of the country, inherited by the military Government and due in 1938, will be repaid in 1920, 33 years before it is due.

"This great improvement in the financial condition of the country has been accomplished mainly through the collection of all taxes due the Government without fear or favor, a reorganization of the Internal Revenue Department and some very necessary changes in the internal revenue laws, placing the main burden of the taxes on property owners, where it belongs, and eliminating a multitude of small, nagging and inadequate taxes.

"In addition to these financial reforms, the military Government is extending general education and sanitation, creating communications, roads, mails, telegraphs throughout the country and making many port improvements.

Schools Increase from 80 to 647.

"Obligatory education has been established, and whereas there were only some 18,000 children attending school before the occupation, there are now 130,000. Prior to the occupation there were only about thirty rural schools functioning. On Jan. 1, 1920, there were 647 rural schools in operation.

"The administration of sanitary and public health affairs has been entirely reorganized. After endeavoring for two years to obtain satisfactory results under the old sanitary law administered by Dominicans the military Government promulgated an executive order, effective Jan. 1, 1920, creating a national Department of Sanitation and Beneficence, administered by a Secretary of Sanitation and on a par with the other departments of the Government, the head of this department being a Cabinet officer. The administration of all sanitary and all public health activities is centralized by the Secretary of Sanitation.

"At the present time a naval medical officer is detailed to fill this position. This includes all practical Government and municipal sanitary work. Government and municipal charity work, chiefly hospitals, a Government leper colony and insane asylum and a national quarantine service.

"Each municipality is required by law to appropriate 10 or 15 per cent. of its annual income according to whether gold income is less than $10,000 or more, for sanitary and public health work within its jurisdiction. The expenditure of this money is controlled by the sanitary authorities. The military Government has just completed a new leper colony costing about $120,000 and

SEES CHURCH HERE COLDER TO WOMEN

Bishop of New York Says English Episcopal Body Leads in Recognition.

IN FAVOR OF DEACONESSES

Lambeth Conference Also Made Strides Toward Christian Unity, He Tells Cathedral Congregation.

The Church of England stands far in advance of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America in its recognition of women in the church, according to the Right Rev. Charles S. Burch, Bishop of New York. Bishop Burch expressed this opinion yesterday afternoon in the course of a sermon on "The Lambeth Conference" at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The great cathedral was so crowded that several hundred late comers were seated in the choir stalls within the chancel.

"The Lambeth Conference stood four-square for the admission of women to those councils of the Church to which laymen are admitted, and on equal terms," said Bishop Burch. "And it adopted suggestions looking toward a closer exercise on the part of women of those spiritual functions which women have proven themselves so markedly fitted to perform. The conference favored the restoration of the ancient order of deaconesses with increased in the and powers for participating in the Church's services. The position was stoutly maintained that deaconesses should dedicate themselves to a lifelong service and be ordained with a form and manner quite similar to those used in the ordination of deacons, with the right to read morning and evening prayer and the litany where the bishop and parish priest should so direct.

Bishop Burch affirmed that "in the minds of many millions of Christian folk the most vitally compelling and appealing accomplishment of the conference was the report, the appeal and the conclusions reached on the crying question of the reunion of Christendom.

"It was nothing less than a miracle that first, the large committee of seventy composed of bishops of every type and color of churchmanship, and then the entire conference should reach with practical unanimity the decisions which today is stirring the Christian world," said Bishop Burch.

"The conference," he continued, "sent forth the most remarkable moving appreciement to other Christian bodies as yet promulgated to a disunited and sadly dismembered Christian world."

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

Mishel Piastro, Russian Violinist.

Another Russian violinist, Mishel Piastro, made his first American appearance yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall, which there seemed to be little difficulty in filling, with the willing assistance of the artist's compatriots resident in New York. Mr. Piastro's program comprised Handel's E major sonata, Goldmark's violin concerto, a "Meditation" by Glasunoff, Wieniawski's "Valse Caprice," Glinka's song about the lark, after passing through the hands of Balakireff and then of Auer, and Wieniawski's "Russian Carnival." This last in the preliminary announcements was strangely set down as played for the first time in America; but more prudent counsels prevailed in the preparation of the house bill, and nothing was said about the first time.

Mr. Piastro is an artist of sound and substantial equipment and a serious one. His largest asset seems to be his tone, which is big and penetrating, sometimes a little thick and heavy, but well controlled in all nuances. His ear rarely fails him in the matter of intonation and his facility upon the fingerboard serves him well. He plays in a serious and musical manner. He does not often communicate a burning enthusiasm, nor does he always even maintain a sustained and unfailing interest on the part of the listener in what he is doing.

He played Handel's sonata in a broad and dignified style, unimpeachably; he did something better in Goldmark's concerto. Perhaps the responsibility of a first appearance weighed upon his spirits. It may be, and it is to be hoped it will be, that an artist so well equipped with so many of the essential things of his art as Mr. Piastro will be able to make them count more in the conveyance of charm, of imagination, of interest and of musical stimulation.

Tom Burke, Irish Tenor.

An Irish tenor new to this country, said to have been successful as an operatic singer at Covent Garden in London, made his first appearance last evening at the Hippodrome, where a large audience heard him with some sympathy and considerable applause. It was hardly fair to Mr. Burke to announce him as "the greatest living Irish tenor;" or perhaps it was an oversight; for a much greater has recently been heard in New York. Mr. Burke has a voice agreeable when he allows it to be heard at its best, which is not when he forces it and delivers it continually from the chest, or when he fails to maintain the pitch; and there are matters in production and delivery in which he discloses technical deficiencies and a lack of style.

The voice is essentially one of lyric quality; but he is fond of urging it to dramatic or at least operatic effects; and his personality seems to be one that can make its best or its most plausible showing in the simulation of such effects. There were evidences of nervousness in Mr. Burke's singing, especially at the beginning; and it is likely that this nervousness prevented him from showing the best that he is capable of.

He sang the prayer from Verdi's "Otello," the air "Pourquoi me reveiller" from Massenet's "Werther," the Duke's air "Questa o quella" from "Rigoletto"; Grieg's song "A Dream", a group of Irish songs arranged and a bit sophisticated by Herbert Hughes, and an amusing Irish song by Stanford. He was curiously ineffective in the Irish songs, and hardly caught the rica native flavor that belongs to them.

Mr. Burke was introduced by Father Duffy of the 69th Regiment, who disclaimed a knowledge of music but gave full assurance of the singer's admirable qualities as a man. Assistance was given by Miss Helen Scholder, 'cellist; Francesco Longo, pianist, and Frank St. Leger, accompanist.

Opera Stars Arrive.

Alessandro Bonci, lyric tenor of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, arrived yesterday from France on the liner Imperator and will leave for Chicago today. Titta Ruffo, baritone of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, arrived on the France after spending the Summer in the Tyrolean Alps. He will be heard in the title rôle of "Edipo Re," by Leoncavallo, which will be presented at the Manhattan Opera House in January.

FIRST SONG RECITAL.

Anna Burmeister Opens Season at Aeolian Hall.

Anna Burmeister, a young soprano of light but agreeable voice and style, gave the first of the new season's song recitals in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. Few of the hundreds to come will be so modestly heralded, but Miss Burmeister fulfilled in more than average measure the promise held out for many débuts each year, and by many unrealized. She showed good taste in selections from the "old masters," albeit there was hardly the devotional feeling for Bach's "Lord, to Thee My Heart I Proffer," nor the lacy delicacy of Mozart's "Batti, Batti," from "Don Giovanni."

A little Beethoven song, given in English as "With a Painted Ribbon," was the best of these earlier airs. A modern French group, despite some difficulty as to language, gained more beauty of tone, while among American composers several had dedicated manuscript songs to the young artist, who sang them with frank and infectious delight.

Plays for Explosion Victims.

Mischa Violin, whose odd stage name is that of the instrument he plays, made a reappearance last evening as the second of the day's two Russian violinists in Carnegie Hall. He had previously been heard here just before the war, in which he enlisted, taking out citizenship papers as an American. His present concert was announced as a benefit for dependents of the victims of the Wall Street explosion. In a fresh and fragrant old sonata of Nardini, as revived by David, he showed admirable simplicity such as the quaint music required, giving as much pleasure in this as in the familiar concerto of Mendelssohn that followed. There were later pieces by Tschaikowsky, Kreisler and Auer.

Concerts in the Schools.

Hunter College, the city's institution for women, has announced a series of free orchestral and operatic concerts for students, teachers and workers, the musical programs engaging a small orchestra of professional artists and a quartet of singers, who will also visit public schools in five boroughs. A first week, starting Oct. 27, will include the Girls' High School, Brooklyn; Morris High School, the Bronx; Flushing High School, Queens; Hunter College, Manhattan, and Staten Island Academy, New Brighton, Richmond Borough. Tickets may be obtained by sending stamped envelope to Dr. Henry T. Fleck, Hunter College, Sixty-eighth Street and Park Avenue.

Russian Airs at Lexington.

Leo Ornstein and Helen Yorke assisted the Russian Symphony Orchestra in a popular program at the Lexington Theatre last evening, the third of a Sunday night series projected by Misha Appelbaum. Mr. Ornstein played with the orchestra MacDowell's pianoforte concerto in D minor, and Miss Yorke was heard in the "Care Nome" from "Rigoletto," which she encored with Strauss's "Frühlingsstimmen" waltz. Mr. Altschuler conducted Vassilenko's "Flight of the Witches," Glazunoff's arrangement of the "Volga Boatmen's Song" and his own version of a Russian folk tune called the "Soldier's Song," among works of eight Slavic composers.

Mrs. Einstein to Head Delegates.

Mrs. William Einstein, President of the New York State Association of Child Welfare Boards, will head the delegation of prominent New York City women who will attend the annual meeting of the association beginning tomorrow and Wednesday in the Hotel Onondaga, Syracuse, it was announced yesterday. Members of the association expressed gratification at the passage and signing by Governor Smith of the second amendment to the Widows' Pension Bill.

MUSIC NOTES.

Samuel A. Baldwin began yesterday his fourteenth season of free organ recitals at the City College.

The Music School Settlement at 55 East Third Street is reopening today with registration of students for the Fall term.

Hanna Butler and Philip Spooner will assist tonight at the first meeting of the People's Liberty Chorus at the High School of Commerce in West Sixty-fifth Street.

The People's Choral Union opened its twenty-ninth year recently with a concert in the auditorium of Public School 27, at Forty-second Street and Third Avenue.

The Beethoven Orchestra, which has played for eleven years in the public schools, will resume on Wednesday evening at School 63, on Fourth Street, near First Avenue.

THE SCREEN

Miss Bebe Daniels makes her bow as a star this week in "You Never Can Tell" at the Rivoli.

About a year ago Miss Daniels was the object of Harold Lloyd's strenuous devotion in two-reel comedies. Then Cecil B. De Mille decided that a perfectly good vampire was being wasted on a comic hero, so he drafted her for the part of the King's Favorite in the Babylonian Episode which he invented for use in turning Barrie's social satire, "The Admirable Crichton," into the sex play "Male and Female." Miss Daniels made such a good Favorite that she was chosen to impersonate Vice in "Everywoman," in which she was conspicuous as one of the few interesting character of that tedious work. Her next appearance was as the inevitable Other Woman in Mr. De Mille's "Why Change Your Husband?" and later she has been seen as Wallace Reid's heroine in "The Dancin' Fool" and "Sick A Bed." And now she is a star, to have heroes of her own.

Although Miss Daniels has as much right to be a star as most of those in the movie constellation, she must have presented difficulties to those attempting to outfit her for the star-gazers. Her most noteworthy, and noticed, work had been as the Favorite, Vice and the Other Woman—the public expected her to be a Siren—yet who ever heard of a movie heroine (the star must be a heroine) as the wicked woman of a plot? This was a problem, and to solve it Grace Lovell Bryan's character, Rowena, was chosen. In that rôle Miss Daniels appears as a coat-room girl in a big hotel and is permitted to use such wiles as any good girl might employ to show the men who checked their hats at her booth that she could be as presentable as the women they habitually took to dinner. Also, by the device of a fashion show and the availability of fine wraps in the coat-room, the heroine is permitted to wear stunning clothes (such as all Favorites, Vices and Other Women do) without throwing the plot too badly out of joint or tarnishing her character as a heroine. And then, of course, true love comes in to correct the story's slight variation from the straight line of more orthodoxy and establish the heroine finally in all desired respectability and happiness.

So, probably, "You Never Can Tell" may satisfy those who want to see Bebe Daniels with a touch of vice and yet would be offended by any but a spotless heroine. Apparently a little afraid to depend entirely upon their carefully contrived expedient, however, those responsible for the picture introduced into it several entirely disconnected scenes of comic relief, as it is called, so spectators who cannot follow the incredible Rowena may laugh at an intoxicated man and the trials and tribulations of a family in financial distress.

But the fact remains that Miss Daniels can act, that she doesn't have to be a vampire, or, if she does, she doesn't have to be a heroine. It is to be hoped that she will be given a real chance.

The picture was directed by Chester Franklin, and Jack Mulhall is its leading man. The most genuine character in it is that of a coat-room girl called Vera, played by Gertrude Short, whose name is not on the program.

Also at the Rivoli is an interesting Prizma picture of life in Swaziland, South Africa.

One of the best examples of color work seen for some time is "The Heritage of the Red Man" at the Capitol. Its color effects are attributed to Max Handshiesl, who has succeeded in reproducing nature's shades and tones with remarkable accuracy and without the irritating fringes and unnatural tinges that mar much color photography.

The photoplay at the Capitol is Thomas H. Ince's first contribution to the recently organized firm of Associated Producers, consisting of himself, George Loane Tucker, Maurice Tourneur, Allan Dwan, Marshall Neilan, J. Parker Read, Jr., and Mack Sennett. It is called "Homespun Folks," and this tells almost all there is to say about it. Mr. Ince apparently did it deliberately. He is certainly under no delusion about its complete unreality, but he probably thought that one more movie of familiar theatrical types in a typical setting and plot would do no harm and might go as well as many of its predecessors.

So there's "Homespun Folks" for those who like it. Even such, however, may complain that the picture is too sketchy and misses a number of its best opportunities. There's a political campaign, for example, that is supposed to be exciting, but isn't made exciting at all. It's mostly skipped. So are other incidents that might have vitalized the story. And the appeal of the hero's gentle mother coming eagerly to see him win his first case as prosecuting attorney by sending a man to the gallows is a bit doubtful, as well as the hero's manifestation of a stern sense of duty by refusing to prosecute the father of the girl he loves because he believes him innocent.

The cast includes the likable Lloyd Hughes, Gladys George, George Webb, Al Filson and others by no means incapable of playing real parts. It was directed by John Griffith Wray, under Mr. Ince's supervision. Julian Josephson wrote the scenario.

"Curtain," with Katherine MacDonald, is at the Strand this week, and "Sweet Lavender," with Mary Miles Minter, is at the Rialto. Pictures that continue are D. W. Griffith's "Way Down East" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, "The Restless Sex" at the Criterion, and "Over the Hill" at the Astor.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Eddie Cantor will be starred by the Shuberts in a musical piece in January. In the interim he will continue in "Broadway Brevities," at the Winter Garden.

Three new productions will be made in the theatres tonight. "Mecca" will open at the Century Theatre; the Theatre Guild will produce "The Treasure" at the Garrick and "Jim Jam Jems" will be seen at the Cort.

Ogio Petrova will continue in vaudeville for another twelve weeks.

Fritz Leiber, who is to become a Shakespearian star this season, will begin rehearsals next week, and will be seen at the Lexington Theatre in December. Irby Marshall will be his leading woman.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge will occupy a box at the Bijou Theatre tonight as the guest of Mrs. Alice Duer Miller, co-author of "The Charm School."

Doris Moore has been engaged for "She Needs the Money," which Lee Kugel is producing.

WAR FOUNTAIN DEDICATED.

Memorial at Montclair Proclaims Need of League of Nations.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Oct. 3.—A fountain erected as a memorial to the soldiers and sailors of America, England, France and Italy was dedicated this afternoon on the grounds of Julian R. Tinkham, 500 Park Street. Mr. Tinkham's son, Edwin I. Tinkham, after whom a post of the American Legion in New York and a post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Montclair are named, died in the air service of the Government in Italy. The memorial font, the work of A. Stirling Calder, sculptor, of New York, contains a group of four soldiers, American, French, English and Italian, holding aloft a large bowl, the inscription on which is "The Covenant of the League of Nations." Water overflows this bowl and falls into a pool, the coping of which consists of eight marble stones bearing inscriptions relating to the need of a League of Nations.

The unveiling of the font was done by former service men of the Allied and United States Armies, who raised the flags of the four nations from the bowl, after which a band played the anthems of the four nations. The speakers at the dedication were Raymond B. Fosdick and Mr. Tinkham. Mr. Fosdick reviewed the "seven avenues of escape" from war, which he says are provided in the League of Nations Covenant, and urged its acceptance by the American people. He said that if the League had been operative in 1914 the World War could have been averted.

Boy, Balked in Ambition, Ends Life.

John Koshinsky, sixteen, a machinist's helper, committed suicide yesterday at his home 212 Twenty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, by shooting himself in the left temple with a revolver. His father told the police the boy had wanted to go West but had been forbidden.

There are cheaper shoes than McElwain shoes—But none that are less expensive.

For Men $6 to $10. Some at $11 and $12. For Boys $4 to $6. Some at $7 and $8.

THE very high priced shoe and the very low priced shoe are both often expensive shoes.

The real test is this: How much style and attractiveness, how many months of wear does each shoe dollar buy? And by this test there are no less expensive shoes than those McElwain makes.

In every single manufacturing operation McElwain makes a saving of pennies; and the pennies amount to dollars by the time the shoe reaches you.

Millions of men discovered McElwain worth before they knew the McElwain name. Today the discovery is easy, for the name—"McElwain"—is stamped on the sole.

RAPID TRANSIT PLAN CAUSES ENTHUSIASM

Interest Is Aroused in Every Section by Proposed Development of Present Routes.

GREAT DEMAND FOR MAPS

First Consideration to be Given to Completion of Dual System, Says Commissioner Delaney.

The plan providing for the development of the present rapid transit system of the city, recently made public by John H. Delaney, Transit Construction Commissioner, has excited the keenest interest among all classes of citizens in every section, and the demand for copies of the plan and the maps has been so great that orders for the printing of additional copies have been given. Commissioner Delaney yesterday said:

"That real estate dealers and owners would consider the plan of first importance was certain, but the interest in it has spread to practically every class, and especially to those persons seeking to buy or build their own homes. The interest has not been confined to this city, but has spread to other communities.

"Petitions have been presented urging that first consideration be given to extensions of the existing routes so as to increase transit facilities in eastern Queens and in the Borough of Richmond. Letters have also been received urging extension of some of the company-owned elevated lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system. I have told all inquirers that first consideration must be given to the completion of the dual system contracts.

"Consents of property owners have already been received for extension of the Queensboro tunnel line of the interborough system through the Times Square zone. The line which now terminates under Forty-second Street, west of Park Avenue, will be extended through Forty-second Street to a point between Fifth and Sixth Avenues and thence diagonally to Forty-first Street and Sixth Avenue and under the latter thoroughfare to Eighth Avenue. Stations will be built at Forty-first Street, Broadway and Seventh Avenue and at Forty-second Street west of Fifth Avenue.

"Application will be made today for the appointment of a commission to pass upon the necessity for a revision of the section of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system through the Bushwick section of Brooklyn. As originally laid out the line was to have extended as an elevated structure along Johnson Avenue from Bushwick Avenue to Varick Avenue. I have amended the route so as to extend the line as a subway to McKibben Street, where it will emerge to an elevated structure in McKibben and Thames Streets.

"Consents of owners of all of the property affected, except those resident on one block in Thames Street, have been obtained for the amended route. I intend to ask the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to appoint a commission to pass upon the question of the amended route as it affects this single line in Thames Street."

Name Pulitzer Air Race Course.

The Aero Club of America announced yesterday the course which would be flown on Thanksgiving Day by contestants for the Pulitzer trophy. The aviators, who will fly approximately 160 miles, will start from Mitchel Field, near Garden City, L. I., and fly over Wantagh, Massapequa, Amityville, Babylon, Colonial Springs, Central Park, all villages on Long Island, and thence back to the field. The distance around the course is about forty miles, and four circuits will be required.

TO DISCUSS WATER POWER.

Important Nation-Wide Convention Will Meet in Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—A convention of some importance will be held here this week, when the Water Power League of America will meet to discuss the best means of co-operation between the States and the Federal Government in a plan for national and co-ordinated development of all unused water resources of the United States.

Users and developers of water power and State officials and delegates will form the personnel of the convention, which will begin its two-day session on Thursday at the Hotel Washington. The meeting will be attended by manufacturers and other business men from all over the country.

Theoretical discussion of public ownership and other similar questions which have been part of the water power agitation for years will be ignored in the interest of effecting a program of practical benefit to users of water power.

Professor George F. Swain, President of the Water Power League, who is head of the Engineering School of Harvard, will preside.

Addresses will be delivered by Secretary Baker, who is Chairman of the Federal Power Commission; O. C. Merrill, Executive Secretary of the Commission; Lieut. Col. William Kelly, the Commission's Engineer Officer; Alexander T. Vogelsang, First Assistant Secretary of the Interior; Colonel W. B. Greeley, Chief of the Forestry Division of the Department of Agriculture; Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the Bureau of Public Roads; William S. Murray, Chief Engineer of the Super Power Survey, and Professor John W. Dorsey of the University of Manitoba. Professor Dorsey will tell of his new discovery in power transmission, which is said to be capable of revolutionizing long-distance carrying of high tension current.

HELD FOR TRENTON KILLING

Soldier is Arrested for Machine-Gun Tragedy at Fair.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 3.—"Abe" Schwartz, a private in the First Division, regular army, is under arrest at Camp Dix, charged with the shooting yesterday of Walter A. Rich, 30 years old, of Stuyvesant Avenue, this city, at the Trenton Fair Grounds. This information was given out tonight by James S. Kirkham, Chief of the Detectives of the Mercer County Prosecutor's office.

Schwartz, according to Detective Kirkham, is the man who walked into the building yesterday, where army trophies were on exhibition at the fair, and began playing with a machine gun. The gun was loaded with bullets instead of blanks and when it was discharged blew off the back of Rich's head.

"Schwartz is a new man in the army," said Detective Kirkham, "and not one of those in charge of the exhibit. Schwartz summoned an ambulance and then disappeared.

Officers at Camp Dix tonight refused to discuss the shooting.

LIQUOR CARRIED IN HEARSE.

Coffin Packed with Whisky Starts Federal Agents on Search.

Special to The New York Times.

HARMON, Oct. 3.—Federal prohibition enforcement agents have sent out an alarm for the driver of an automobile hearse which, according to railroad employes in Harmon, has been carrying liquor through that section.

For several weeks troopers of the State Constabulary have been holding up automobiles in Harmon, Croton and nearby places and searching them. The result is the several loads of liquor so seized. Railroad employes reported that they inspected a motor hearse and found a coffin inside with a wreath of flowers on top. When the chauffeur lifted the lid they found the coffin packed with bottles of whisky.

MARKET UNAFRAID OF FAIR INVESTIGATION

PRICE CUT REACTION SURE

Freight Rate Charges Not Yet All Accounted For—Towing Costs Advance 20 Per Cent.

Building material interests, supplying the construction markets of the Atlantic seaboard, instead of waiting in fear of possible investigation of the industry are, indeed, actually courting it by preparing to demand that if such an investigation does occur, that all factors contributing to construction cost, including labor, be as rigorously probed.

Indulgent smiles accompany the replies to queries made in the trade at the week-end regarding the effect the threatened inquiry into the causes of present construction costs will have upon the price situation of basic commodities during the forthcoming year. Certainly nothing like a market collapse is discernible with the supply situation oversold from two to six months.

Orders for common brick are now being taken under non-canceling contracts at prices far beyond the present open market levels. Boiler manufacturers as a rule, cannot accept new business subject to delivery before Spring of next year. The largest single purchaser of electrical conduit in the world is even at this time millions of feet behind its present building requirement, yet to be accounted for. Glass manufacture probably will not exceed 60 per cent. of normal production. There are many other items that could be cited.

"They talk of putting some building material men in jail within ninety days," said one well-informed man. "Let them have thirty additional days to make complete the investigation, and then if they fail to accomplish what is promised let the full responsibility rest upon those making such a statement."

Such an investigation will be found to be welcomed by the entire building material and equipment industry, says The Dow Service Daily Building Reports. If the building public has been led to believe that there are combinations in restraint of trade or the artificial manipulation of prices, the quicker the charges are proved or disproved the better it will be for the industry as a whole, and for the peace of mind of the prospective builder.

But as the situation now stands no manufacturer can proceed with his production schedule to provide for the building material and equipment needs of this or any other market next year. The general inclination is to play safe, close down one department after another and wait. Credits are too tight to warrant indiscriminate manufacture of building materials only to be carried as stock for an indefinite period. Prospective wage advances to building trades artisans is too great a factor for making or breaking the building construction movement of the immediate future to justify the building material producer in taking such chances.

Recent financial distress of brick making interests supplying this market show the extent the so-called price manipulation has been for the benefit of the clay products manufacturer. Price reductions recently reported have had no more to do with the threatened investigation of the Hudson River clay industry than it has had in reducing the price of automobiles. The price reductions have come about because the market has been flooded with anything but the best product of the brick plants, not through choice, but because the Federal Government deprived the industry of fuel when coal for burning the brick was most needed during the Summer of 1919. The manufacturers were thus forced to burn the frost-bitten brick in Winter time, an almost unprecedented course for open yard brick plants of the Hudson district to follow. Costs of manufacture for this years' brick are not yet known, neither will they be known until the close of the year. Only as late as the 14th of September an advance of 20 per cent. on towing charges was announced. The wasteful and expensive Winter burning must be repeated this year because coal cannot even now be procured.

The influence of freight rates recently advanced are not yet fully in effect in some of the basic building materials. Lime, for example, in barrels advanced from 42 to 48 cents, wholesale, at the end of the week, but the dealers, following the policy they have been adopting for a long time, are absorbing some of this added cost and are making their advances only 40 cents a barrel. Building material dealers even now are carrying from $15 to $50 as car in extra freight charges. Linseed oil, down 5 cents a gallon, and turpentine, of 20 per cent., are the only basic commodities showing a decline for the week.

A slight improvement in the volume of contracts awarded for building operations of the housing type ranging from $20,000 to $100,000 per operation developed within the last two weeks. The gain is approximately one-third over previous months. It is thought by some that this sign of increased activity portends the start of the housing movement.

Price cuts that do not emanate from over-supply are sure to have disturbing reaction. There is no condition of oversupply anywhere in any section of the building material market. Construction is eighteen months behind its schedule even now without contemplating the housing movement or railroad requirement at all. Price cuts because of liquidation, as those occurring in the building material industry in spots are clearly traceable to, fail to echo abnormal profits in the past. They presage, on the other hand, firmer price levels when the demand reaches stampede proportions are favorable to manufacturers to anticipate the public needs, which they are not now able to do.

SHE MAY BE LITTLE, BUT—

New Jersey Wife, 5 Feet 2, Twice Beats Husband, 6 Feet 3.

WALLINGTON, N. J., Oct. 3.—"The next time you beat your husband, I shall have to send you to jail," said Recorder Polmann today to Mrs. Mary Rasmun, five feet two inches in height, who was haled to court by her husband, Andrew Rasmun, of Lester Street, who is six feet three inches tall and who exhibited two black eyes and a sad-iron as "Exhibits 1, 2 and 3."

The next time he comes home late, I'll do the same, or perhaps a better job," said Mrs. Rasmun, and there the matter stands. No charge of contempt of court was placed against the woman for her retort.

This was the second visit of the Rasmuns to Recorder Polmann's court. Andrew complained two weeks ago that his wife had beaten him, but after the Recorder had looked over the plaintiff and the defendant the case was dismissed.

LABOR 'TURNOVER' LESS SINCE WAR

STILL AT A HIGH FIGURE

Average for Unskilled Factory Hands Here 265 Per Cent., Merchants' Association Reports.

The unrest of wage earners, a restlessness that characterizes all fields of industry, but is more marked among unskilled than skilled workers, was indicated yesterday in the results of a survey just completed by the Industrial Bureau of the Merchants' Association. According to the bureau's figures, the average yearly shift of labor, or "turnover," in 1920, for skilled and semi-skilled factory workers in this city was 125 per cent., and for unskilled factory hands it was 265 per cent., the percentages being worked out in forty-two manufacturing plants, representing fifteen industries and employing 41,375 workers.

"In about two-thirds of the plants studied," the survey reported, "the turnover lay between 100 and 250 per cent., but the total range for all plants extended from a minimum of 16 2-3 per cent. to a maximum of 338 per cent. The cost of replacements, according to the testimony of employers, varies from $10 for unskilled to $250 for highly skilled workers. A fair average for semi-skilled employes is $50 or more.

"The industries covered in this study and the number of plants in each industry are as follows: Metal products, including machinery, 10; food products, confectionery and kindred lines, 11; rubber goods, 3; musical instruments, 3; printing, 2; jewelry and kindred lines, 2; tobacco products and smokers' supplies, 2 stationery supplies, 2; And one each of shipbuilding and repairing, marine equipment, shoes, silk goods, men's clothing, women's wear, and fire apparatus.

"The summary shows that slightly more than one-fifth of the plants had a turnover below 100 per cent. a year, half of them less than 150 per cent., and one-third had an annual turnover of 200 per cent. or more.

"Comparing these figures with the results of a labor turnover study made during the war by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, covering thirty-seven factories in Cleveland, it appears that labor turnover in New York City today is considerably less than it was in Cleveland two years ago.

"It is true that the labor conditions in Cleveland during the war were not exactly comparable with those in New York during the same period, but the comparison supports the statement of the majority of the manufacturers interviewed that on the whole there has been a reduction in labor turnover since the signing of the armistice."

SHE MAY BE LITTLE, BUT—

New Jersey Wife, 5 Feet 2, Twice Beats Husband, 6 Feet 3.

WALLINGTON, N. J., Oct. 3.—"The next time you beat your husband, I shall have to send you to jail," said Recorder Polmann today to Mrs. Mary Rasmun, five feet two inches in height, who was haled to court by her husband, Andrew Rasmun, of Lester Street, who is six feet three inches tall and who exhibited two black eyes and a sad-iron as "Exhibits 1, 2 and 3."

The next time he comes home late, I'll do the same, or perhaps a better job," said Mrs. Rasmun, and there the matter stands. No charge of contempt of court was placed against the woman for her retort.

This was the second visit of the Rasmuns to Recorder Polmann's court. Andrew complained two weeks ago that his wife had beaten him, but after the Recorder had looked over the plaintiff and the defendant the case was dismissed.

RABBI WISE PRAISES SCHIFF AS A JEW

Late Banker's Steadfast Allegiance to Faith Eulogized by Preacher.

CANNOT NAME SUCCESSOR

Declares Fittest Honor for Him Is Devotion to His People's Welfare.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, instead of preaching yesterday morning on "Why the Interchurch World Movement Failed," devoted his sermon before the Free Synagogue in Carnegie Hall to a eulogy of Jacob H. Schiff. Dr. Wise will deliver the Interchurch sermon on Oct. 17.

"Jacob Schiff was a Jew," said Rabbi Wise. "I do not merely mean that he was a good Jew, or a high-minded Jew, or a great-hearted Jew. I mean that he was great as a Jew. He thought as a Jew; he felt as a Jew; he lived as a Jew—not merely an outwardly conforming Jew, but a spiritually affirming Jew. Schiff was so great as a Jew that he would have perished sooner than do what not a few mean-hearted, little-souled Jews are doing today—namely, filinging themselves and their children into Fifth Avenue baptismal fonts.

"I believe Schiff would have gone to the stake if it had been necessary sooner than do that. He would not crawl in at the back door of a Fifth Avenue club, not suffer himself to be endured in certain social circles. As a Jew, he bore himself with just as much self-respect as any non-Jew in our city or nation ever bore himself. It never occurred to him that he could put Jewish life behind him, that he could forswear the Jewish faith. Proudly and rejoicingly Jewish was he throughout his days.

"Schiff was the first Jew in America to take account of, rightly to understand and adequately to honor the East European Jew in America. He was the first American Jew of distinction born in Western Europe who broke away from the anti-East European Jewish attitude, which led some to disgrace American Israel.

"Schiff is gone, and with him passes the Schiff era. The fittest way in which to honor him is not to name his successor or successors. The fittest way in which to honor Schiff were that all American Jews solemnly resolve that no man shall be compelled nor permitted to bear the whole burden of his people and that all Jews give of themselves, of their possessions and of their uttermost devotion for the sake of the security and the honor of their people."

WANTS A SCHIFF PARKWAY.

East Side to Present Petition to Board of Estimate Today.

The Downtown Chamber of Commerce will today present to the Board of Estimate a petition requesting that the unnamed strip of parkway on Delancy Street, extending from the Bowery to the Williamsburg Bridge, be called "Schiff Parkway," in honor of the late Jacob H. Schiff. The petition reads in part as follows:

"In loving remembrance of the late Jacob H. Schiff the east side respectfully petitions your honorable body to approve our application for a 'Schiff Parkway.' Mr. Schiff has been the great beacon light that has emblazoned the Ghetto, shedding forth its illuminating rays as an inspiration to all men and women.

"This appeal emanates from the hearts of thousands of men, women and children who use the parkway above mentioned as a resting place. We trust that our application will be approved, for which you will receive the eternal gratitude of the people of all nations."

ASKS COX'S LYNCHING VIEWS

Negro Association Says Harding Would Make It Federal Offense.

Eugene McIntosh, President of the Bronx and Manhattan Non-Partisan Colored Citizens' Union, 988 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, made public yesterday a letter to Governor James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for President, in which the latter is asked if he favors enactment of legislation by Congress to make lynching a crime against the Federal Government. Mr. McIntosh states in the letter that Senator Harding has already answered this question in the affirmative, and continues:

"To the colored citizens just now the protection of life and the right of trial transcend all other questions. Since these questions should not be partisan questions, the colored people now naturally look to you for some expression of view upon them."

REGISTER!

Registration places will be open every day this week for New York City voters, from 5 to 10:30 P. M. today, tomorrow, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. on Saturday. Personal registration is required in New York City. The registration period will end on Saturday night.

CHURCH SIGN DIMS GREAT WHITE WAY

BISHOP WILSON PRESIDES

Great Gold Letters Proclaim That the Congregation's Social Centre Is Always Open.

While a band played and hundreds of spectators with bared heads sang "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," Bishop Luther B. Wilson of the Methodist Church last evening pressed a button and illuminated for the first time a great sign, twenty feet high, in front of Union Methodist Church, Forty-eighth Street, just west of Broadway.

The sign is surmounted by a cross six feet tall and four feet broad, made of white nitrogen lamps. Under the cross are the American flag and the church flag intertwined. The church flag, which is that used at religious services on shipboard, has a white field with a blue square, which has a cross in one corner. Under the flags in great gold letters is:

UNION CHURCH
SOCIAL CENTRE
ALWAYS OPEN.

Underneath the sign is a clock, and this will chime each half hour. The clock is lighted from the inside, and it is the only big public clock in that vicinity. It marked the time at 9:45 o'clock when Bishop Wilson pressed the button that lighted the sign which is designed to outshine the other dazzling lights which advertise shows, "movies" and merchandise.

The sign cost $3,000, and it is all paid for. It will cost $1.50 an hour to keep it lighted, and the Rev. Dr. John G. Benson, the pastor, is seeking funds for this. Dr. Benson announced that a Hebrew friend in Broadway had donated $500 toward the sign and had followed this with a pledge of $500 a year for the general expense.

As the lights went on some one called out "Hallelujah!" and some one else said "Amen!" Standing at the right of Bishop Wilson was Alexander Carmichael, President of the Board of Trustees of Union Church, who has been a member more than fifty years. At the Bishop's left was Watson S. Moore, President of the New York City Methodist Society. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Millard L. Robinson, General Secretary of the New York City Mission. Another clergyman who took part was the Rev. Dr. Wallace MacMullen, Superintendent of the New York City District of the New York Methodist Conference.

Bishop Wilson dedicated the sign "in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost." An audience from the Longacre Theatre, which is opposite, was just leaving and its members stood during the dedication. Every window in every apartment house in the neighborhood was crowded.

The band opened with "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue." The last hymn was "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Exide
BATTERIES

Where Failure Means Death

If a naval gun fails to go off, the result may be destruction by the enemy. Our guns are fired by the current from storage batteries. Here, as for a dozen other uses, our navy relies on the sure power of Exide Batteries. A majority of the world's submarines, when submerged, are propelled by Exide Batteries. The navies of a number of foreign nations use the Exide.

In the peaceful pursuits of industry Exide Batteries play a vital part. The current that sends your voice over the telephone comes from an Exide; thousands of farm homes are lighted by Exides; the busy little trucks you see around railroad stations and in industrial plants are propelled by Exides; the huge cells that store up reserve power for central stations are Exides.

There is an Exide Battery for every purpose, and into it is built the experience of the oldest and largest manufacturers of storage batteries in the world.

Wherever you see this sign, you can be assured of expert service, no matter what make of battery you have in your car. Your battery will be made to last as long as possible, until you are ready to replace it with an Exide—the long-life battery.

TENANTS TO BENEFIT BY TAX EXEMPTIONS

LaGuardia Wants to Know How Many New Buildings Will Be Built and the Rent.

STORM BREAKS OVER GOSS

Mayor Inquires How Contractor Became Member of Building Combine Inquiry.

HILLY ISSUES WARNING

Advises That Controversies with Landlords Be Taken to Court Only as Last Resort.

Before the city takes advantage of the power conferred on it by the special session of the Legislature, permitting it to exempt from taxation local housing construction for a period of ten years, an attempt will be made to learn how much building there may be in contemplation, in the event the exemption is authorized, according to a statement yesterday by F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. LaGuardia announced that he desired all prospective builders to inform his office immediately, describing the style of building he intends to erect, together with the location, whether for speculation or for the builder's use, and, if an apartment house, the number of apartments therein.

In order to prevent confusion between landlords and tenants as a result of the new laws, Arthur J. W. Hilly, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, advised tenants to resort to the courts only when they can honestly say that the sole consideration leading them to sign their lease was the fact "that they desired to keep a roof over their heads and that they feared, in the event they failed to sign it, that they would be subject to dispossess, and that this fear so overcame them that they felt it was not their own free and voluntary act that led them to sign the agreement."

Clash Over Building Trust Inquiry.

He said the laws were intended to relieve oppression and not to create turmoil, nor was it the intention of the Legislature to bring into question all the rents now being paid in the city.

A difference of opinion between Mayor Hylan and the Subcommittee on Building Materials of the Mayor's Housing Conference Committee, was indicated in a statement made yesterday by Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, who said the Mayor had directed him to investigate the circumstances connected with the presence of Wright D. Goss, President of the Empire Brick Company, on the subcommittee. It was this committee that was asked last week by the Mayor to attempt to learn whether other building material manufacturers would follow the lead set by the lumbermen in cutting prices.

The committee met and announced that the high prices of materials were due to inefficient labor and that prices were regulated by supply and demand, and that no reductions could be expected until labor increased its efficiency.

Mr. Hirshfield said he was convinced that combinations for the fixing of building material prices existed, and he said yesterday that the Mayor, with whom he had conferred on the situation, leaned more toward this opinion than he did toward the conclusions of the Subcommittee on Building Materials, that labor was responsible for the present high prices.

Scoffs at Damage Suits Threat.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, said yesterday that the declaration of the Real Estate Board that tenants could be held responsible for damages sustained by landlords if they refused to pay rent demanded, was "poppycock." He said that in his opinion the rent laws were constitutional.

"All the laws did was to take away the right of summary dispossess in holdover cases," said Mr. Browne. "They in no way interfered with such rights for nonpayment of 'agreed upon rent,' or for 'use and occupancy value,' both after judgment. In this regard the landlord's position is strengthened because no court can grant a stay, which it previously could do.

"No rent law says that an 'agreed upon rent' cannot be recovered by suit, and no rent law stays that a court has the power to reduce 'agreed upon rents.' Any court which renders such a judgment can easily be reversed on appeal, as was the case under the April rent laws.

"Under common law any agreement for rent or otherwise can be set aside if it be proved it was obtained under duress.' The rent laws have neither weakened nor strengthened the defense. I consider that Mr. Hilly is making a mistake, if reported correctly, in telling tenants not to pay rent which had already been agreed upon or paid. Such advice makes for confusion, and will result in tenants being compelled by judgment to pay agreed upon rents, plus costs, and, in holdovers, possibly higher rents than they had been paying."

Police Guard 100 Babies.

Reserves from the Simpson Street Police Station stood guard yesterday afternoon over more than 100 babies in perambulators parked on the sidewalk in front of the London Casino, Third and Claremont Avenues, where a meeting of tenants was in progress. The tenants occupy apartments in houses owned by Kleban Leader, Inc., a large Bronx realty organization, and the tenants formed a protective association to fight the payment of higher rents. Most of them signed leases in August, "under duress," they alleged, calling for increases "from 60 to 90 per cent. in rent." The tenants were addressed by Albert Cohen, Assistant District Attorney in Bronx County.

In his statement Mr. LaGuardia said that he would advise the Board of Aldermen tomorrow not to act on the matter of exemption of construction from local taxation before giving the subject careful consideration. He considered the general power granted the Board of Aldermen carried with it the implied power to impose conditions and restrictions if that is found necessary.

Tomorrow he will ask the board to appoint a special committee to which will be turned over all the applications received from builders who intend taking advantage of the law. He said he felt that where apartment houses were exempted tenants should get the benefit of the tax exemption. He pointed out that it would do the city and tenants no good if builders were permitted to erect apartment houses so that unscrupulous profiteers might get the benefit of the exemptions and keep up the high and exorbitant rents. The quicker accurate information is obtained the sooner the board will be able to act intelligently, he added.

Hilly's Advice to Tenants.

Mr. Hilly pointed out yesterday that if a tenant has entered into a lease "after due deliberation and compromise on the part of tenant and landlord," the tenant should not add to the burden of the courts and try out the issues involved.

If persons who have signed leases desire to have the circumstances under which they signed them reviewed, with the idea of obtaining advice in regard to their attitude as to court action, they may obtain such advice by applying to the Mayor's Committee, he said. "If the tenants feel that they were coerced into signing the agreements they should stand by their rights, no matter what threats may be made against them by their landlords," declared Mr. Hilly.

The presence of Mr. Goss on a subcommittee of the Mayor's Housing Conference Committee came to the ears of Mayor Hylan, who wrote Tenement House Commissioner Frank Mann. The Mayor in his letter said: "There seems to be a feeling that he (Goss) is in sympathy with protecting the building materials combination."

In his reply Commissioner Mann said Mr. Goss's name was suggested for a place on the Housing Conference Committee because it was desired to have every building interest represented. He said he thought when the appointment was made, and still was of the opinion, that Mr. Goss might be of assistance to the committee. As president of a large material concern, he seemed the man to choose to represent the building material group, said Mr. Mann.

In this connection Commissioner Hirshfield announced that he would conduct a vigorous investigation into published assertions concerning Mr. Goss's presence on the committee.

UNIONS IN STRIKE CLASH.

Mann Investigates Charges of 300 Forced Out of Work.

Reasons for calling the strike of all but 300 men at work on the new Gotham Bank building at Fifty-ninth Street and Columbus Circle on last Thursday are demanded of Robert P. Brindell, President of the Building Trades Council, in a letter sent yesterday by Tenement House Commissioner Frank Mann at the request of Mayor Hylan. On Friday a committee representing 300 bricklayers and laborers, members of unions not affiliated with the council, called on Mayor Hylan and charged Brindell and his organization with playing union politics.

The bricklayers' and laborers' unions are not affiliated with the Building Trades Council, which embraces practically every other craft organization engaged in building construction. The 300 bricklayers and laborers employed on the Gotham Bank structure allege that they have been thrown out of work solely for the purpose of forcing them and their organizations into the Building Trades Council.

The Building Trades Council President, it is understood, is spending a vacation at Schroon Lake in the Adirondacks and the letter was addressed to him there and forwarded by registered mail. An immediate reply has been requested.

KNIGHTS OFFER LEGION $5,000,000 BALANCE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Five million dollars, the balance of the Knights of Columbus war relief fund, will be offered to the American Legion for building an American Legion headquarters in Washington. This decision was reached at a meeting of the Knights of Columbus Board of Directors in Chicago tonight.

Having made provision for its general reconstruction work, the organization is able to make this offer. In a formal statement it sets forth that approximately $40,000,000 was raised from members of the organization and the general public for welfare work; that in providing camp buildings, service stations, secretaries, chaplains and free creature comforts for service men during the war, maintaining national employment bureaus and vocational schools and in providing approximately 500 college scholarships for war veterans, it has fulfilled the wishes of the contributors.

The $5,000,000 is offered for the endowment, erection and equipment of a building to be secured to the American Legion, preferably by act of Congress. An auditorium capable of accommodating from 10,000 to 20,000 persons is planned for the building, as well as quarters for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the G. A. R., the Spanish War Veterans and a permanent exhibit of war trophies. The building is to be devoted, so far as is possible, to the public welfare, and to promoting permanent interest in the army and navy. The auditorium and halls are to be free to the public so far as is practicable.

Title to the building would be vested solely in the American Legion, and the building itself governed by a Board of Trustees. The endowment fund of $1,000,000, from the income of which the building would be maintained, would be governed by an entirely separate committee.

The offer is open to the Legion up to July 1, 1921. If the Legion should cease to exist, title to the building and land would revert to the nation, for such purposes as the Senate should determine.

LEAGUE TO AID TRAVEL.

Conference Will Take Up Many Difficulties Now Found in Europe.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The League of Nations is busying itself about one really popular matter for which it is likely to receive far more thanks than for any decision on graver affairs. It is seeking to re-establish traveling on the old easy pre-war lines and to abolish the difficulties and distresses which since the war have been in Europe the cause of a great deal of irritation and delay.

A congress to discuss the situation has been called by the Secretary of the League to meet at Barcelona in January, and a committee in France, as that country is most interested, is busily taking up the matter and preparing remedies for the existing state of things.

Nearly all European countries, whether members of the League or not, are to send delegates to a preliminary conference which will meet here on Oct. 15.

Standardization of passport and visé charges, which at present vary with every country, with America at the head of the list for price, is one of the aims of the conference.

International tickets, modifications of customs troubles, abolition of fantastic differences and difficulties in the obtaining and control of passports will be sought.

REGISTER!

There will be registration all this week in New York City. Personal registration is required here of every voter and if you are not registered you cannot vote. Registration places will be open from 6 P. M. to 10:30 P. M. every day this week, except Saturday, when they will be open from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M.

GARAGE MEN DENY PRICE RISE CHARGE

MORE HELPERS LAID OFF

Revolution in Automobile Storage System Predicted—Workers to Seek Aid.

The reported determination of garage owners to discontinue "service" masks an effort to "hold up" automobile owners for increased storage charges, declared James Walsh, organizer of the Garage Workers' Union, yesterday. This organization has borne the brunt of the lockout by members of the Garage Owners' Association. It was reported last night that all of the larger garages represented in the association had laid off their floor helpers, washers and polishers.

Discharged employes who visited the union headquarters at 619 Ninth Avenue last night reported that in several instances the garage proprietor for whom they worked had paid them a week's wages in advance, telling them that the trouble would "blow over" within a few days. Washers who were laid off at one garage were instructed to leave their rubber boots and other articles of working apparel behind, their foremen reported.

"This just bears out what I have been saying since the first lockout," Walsh declared. "There is a concerted plan to hold up the auto owners by increasing rates on the storage of cars. Then they lay the blame upon the union members before they have given the men a hearing. There is a plan on foot, too, to force the automobile owners to take a year's lease on garage space. Meanwhile the washer and polisher finds himself out of a job.

"The lease they proposed to make will cover the dull season of the year—the Summer months—when most of those who own the big cars are out of the city. Our demands are open to discussion and compromise, and we invite the garage owners to meet us and talk the matter over. In a day or two we will be 100 per cent. organized."

At the union headquarters it was estimated that about 250 men had been thrown out of work by the lockout up to last night. The garage owners' estimate was considerably larger, as the association estimates that there were about 2,500 men, washers, polishers and helpers, working for members of the association.

Union Suspects a Plot

"The plan as we see it is to give the automobile owners a week or ten days of dirty cars," Walsh added, "and when persons who inquire that their cars look spick and span begin to complain it will be explained that the price of labor has gone up to such a figure that it will be necessary to increase the cost of storage, which includes service. And then the service will return, and the much discussed 'auto laundries' we hear talked about will be forgotten."

According to the union officers the payrolls of many of the garages have not increased perceptibly in the last four years. Two men are now forced to do the work of four, they say. In one uptown garage which nightly houses many costly automobiles, Walsh said, 45 cars are lodged on one floor at $80 a month apiece. The washers and polishers who wrestle with these machines each night receive a total of $70 a week.

"Washers are at present receiving $35 per week of seven nights," said a statement issued by the union last night. "Polishers are getting $24.50 per week of seven nights. They work on an average of nine hours a day, but when bad weather are obliged to work twelve or fourteen hours. In most places they have no place in which to change their clothing.

"Under the New York State law we are supposed to work only six days, but the garage owner ignores this law entirely.

"The day men in the garages work twelve hours each day, or eighty-four hours per week of seven days, for which they receive pay varying from $25 to $28 per week. There are about 2,000 garage workers in New York City and 1,500 have joined this organization."

Although the garage workers' union had listed only fifteen garages yesterday, it was admitted that many others had laid off their helpers. Those on the union's list included the Majestic, 213 West Eighty-fourth Street; the Bretton Hall Garage; the Belnord Garage, 266 West Eighty-seventh Street; the Astor, 267 West Eighty-seventh Street; the Marseilles, Broadway and 101st Street; Cimmiotti's, at Broadway and 113th Street; the Buena Vista, at Broadway and 109th Street; the Ninety-sixth Street Garage, at Ninety-sixth Street and Riverside Drive; the Aeon, Broad at Seventy-sixth Street; the East Side Garage, 187 East Eighty-fourth Street; Berwick Garage, in East Sixty-seventh Street; Dependable Garage, 418 East Fifty-fifth Street, the Bitwell Garage, 340 East Forty-eighth Street, and the Modern Garage in West Sixty-eighth Street.

Owners Deny Charges.

The garage owners have no plan further to increase storage charges, asserted Gustave Cimmiotti, head of Cimmiotti's Garage and a member of the Executive Committee of the Manhattan Garage Owners' Association, last night. Should the service be discontinued permanently, he said, an adjustment with the automobile owners as to the storage charge would inevitably follow.

"This labor trouble may revolutionize the automobile storage business, however," he said. "I can deny absolutely that the matter of storage charges, year-around leases or the like were discussed at the meetings. And I have not heard that any of the men who were laid off were paid in advance. I know, however, that many of the owners determined to retain some of their old employes and probably told them to remain around the garage until some other work could be found for them.

"But the car owners will find, I think, when the situation has been ironed out, that their interests have been protected and that what the four associations have done was for the benefit of those who pay the bills.

"Mr. Walsh's information as to 'concerted plans' and the like can come only from hearsay or from conclusions he has drawn, and I would say that he was badly informed. The association has not really evolved a plan. We voted to discontinue service 'until further notice.'

"Although I am not speaking officially for the Manhattan Garage Owners' Association I can say that it is our policy to keep prices down. We do not know whether the 'car laundries' will be employed generally in this city. But it would seem that the automobile storage business is about to be revolutionized, at least to a very great extent."

A general meeting of Local 1734 of the Garage Workers Union will be held at the union headquarters, 619 Ninth Avenue, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when the question of sympathetic action by other unions will be discussed.

Kidnap Two British Officials.

75,000,000,000 Mark Swindle Plot Revealed by Accident to German Yacht

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—An extraordinary case of an attempted swindle on a scale involving many millions of marks and necessitating great organization has just been brought to light by the port authorities of Stralsund and Warnemünde.

The officials had their attention directed to a motor yacht which, having come from Hamburg, had put into Warnemünde on account of an accident to her machinery. On first inspection the yacht appeared to be carrying boxes of medicaments, but it occurred to one official to examine the underlying cases the hold. He discovered that most of the cases were full of "Bermont paper money" to a value of at least 75,000,000,000 marks.

It will be remembered that when the adventurer, General Bermont, was at the head of the German troops in the Baltic Provinces, fighting against the Bolsheviki, he had special money printed for the use of his army, it being arranged that the German Government should recognize and redeem it. Large amounts were printed, but owing to the failure of the Bermont expedition the money was not issued. What was found aboard the motor yacht was part of those unissued notes.

The people aboard admitted that the money was being sent to the Baltic Provinces with the view of putting it in circulation and raising exchange. More would therefore be obtained for it and for large sums still in Germany as well. They also admitted that the chief plotters were a certain Dr. Schreiber and his nephew in Hamburg.

They were arrested on the following day, when they were identified as Dr. Ba[illegible]mann, an Iron Division army doctor, and another Baltic Provinces warrior named Willy Berens. They had Browning pistols, plenty of ammunition and false passports for abroad in their possession. A large quantity of Bermont money was also found at their house.

Telegrams and letters have been seized which it is reported show that numerous high officials were Baumann's accomplices.

POWERS MAY SHIFT PARLEY FROM HERE

Washington Hears of Plan to Make Communications Conference a League Matter.

MAIN SESSIONS IN PARIS

In That Case the United States Might Have Only Unofficial Representation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Main sessions of the International Communications Conference, preliminary sittings of which are scheduled to begin here Oct. 8, may be transferred to Paris and held under the auspices of the League of Nations.

According to official advices received here today, the transfer of the main conference may be requested by the attending powers because of the desire of some members of the League of Nations to preserve for the League general questions affecting international communications.

At the preliminary conference of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, only matters relating to international communications arising from the war are expected to be considered. Chief of these is the allocation among the powers of the seized German cables, in which the United States claims the right of participation as an associated power with the Allies in the war. At the preliminary conference the program and place and date of meeting of the main conference are to be agreed on.

While official advices have reported no disposition on the part of the Allies to question the right of the United States to participate in the preliminary sessions, there is said to be a desire on the part of those powers belonging to the League of Nations to have it assume direction of the main conference at which general questions affecting international communications are to be discussed.

Should the main sessions be transferred to Paris and placed under the League of Nations, some officials said that the United States might then be represented only unofficially.

FRANCO-GERMAN EXCHANGES

Said to be in Progress Regarding Financial Proposals.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—Without exception German newspapers continue to express themselves pessimistically about the Brussels financial conference. But I learn from a most trustworthy source here that officially all hope of practical steps being taken, if not at the conference immediately after it, have not by any means been abandoned.

Recently Dr. Simons, the German Foreign Minister, had several prolonged conversations with the French Ambassador here, and it is hinted that in Wilhelmstrasse a distinctly better feeling prevails regarding the whole position. I believe I am correct in saying that the German Foreign Office has received an intimation that there is a probability of direct Franco-German negotiations on the most important points at issue, the result of which would be submitted to other powers.

There has been an exchange of certain written proposals as the result of the above-mentioned conversations, and this led up to the German Government's handing to the French Ambassador a summing up of these suggestions and a statement of the German Government's point of view, together with some additional important proposals.

The French Ambassador is now in Paris, and I am informed that he will place the whole matter before the French Cabinet.

CONSECRATED AS BISHOP.

The Rev. T. E. Malloy Now Auxiliary of Long Island Diocese.

In the presence of a congregation of 3,000 at St. James Pro-Cathedral, Brooklyn, yesterday, the Rev. Thomas Edmund Malloy, recently attached to the church of the Queen of All Saints, was consecrated to the episcopate. His titular see will be Loris, which diocese is extinct, and his duties will be those of Auxiliary Bishop to the Right Rev. Charles E. McDonnell, Bishop of the Diocese of Long Island. He was appointed by Pope Benedict XV. last June.

Thousands of persons were turned away, as the church was filled. The officiating prelate was Bishop McDonnell, and other bishops present were the Right Revs. Edmund F. Gibbons, of Albany, and Thomas J. Walsh, of Trenton. In the sanctuary were more than 200 priests representing all parts of the country. The preacher was the Rev. John L. Belford, pastor of the Church of the Nativity. The Rev. Francis X. Drikoll was notary.

So great was the crowd that the police were forced to make a lane for the procession of bishops, parish priests and monks which came from the parochial school across the street.

FATHER OF ADOPTED GIRL SEEKS LEGACY

Garage Worker's Daughter Inherited a Million and He Wants Share.

GAVE HER AWAY AS CHILD

Hazel Myers's Second Adoption by Aunt Held by Father to be Void.

David W. Myers, a garage worker of 101 Troy Avenue, Brooklyn, has filed notice of his intention to seek a share of the fortune of approximately $1,000,000 inherited by his daughter, who was given away by him for adoption when she was 1 year old.

The girl was legally adopted by her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Hyde Myers. David Myers at the time had just lost his wife. He had two older boys and an older girl. Finding it difficult to take care of the family, he willingly consented to have the baby, whose name was Hazel, adopted by his mother.

Later events complicated the family situation greatly and make the threatened suit one involving intricate questions of fact and law. Mrs. Mary Hyde Myers, the grandmother of the infant and her legal mother, agreed several years ago to the adoption of the child by her daughter and the child's aunt, Mrs. Mary Myers Shepard.

This aunt had been the housekeeper of Dr. A. Warner Shepard, a Brooklyn physician, who died in 1907 from an overdose of morphine. At his death it became known that the doctor had married her and she had inherited practically his whole fortune. Having no child of her own, she adopted Hazel Myers, now known as Hazel Myers Shepard.

The foster mother, who had married again and became Mrs. Mary Shepard Morris, died on Sept. 8 at Allenhurst, N. J. By will she left practically the entire estate to her adopted child, making a direct gift of $400,000 and giving her the residue of the estate for life.

Mrs. Morris has two sisters and two brothers, among them being David, the father of the adopted girl. She made small bequests to most of the relatives, but overlooked the father entirely.

The father's purpose, as disclosed yesterday, is to break the will under which the million dollar estate goes to the child he gave away, in order that he may claim his share among the next of kin. Adolph Ruger, lawyer for the father, said yesterday that the first move would probably be made against Frank B. York, the executor of the estate and guardian of the girl. The claim, it was said, would be made that David Myers, the father, was once again the girl's legal guardian; that, while the grandmother's adoption of the child was legal, the transfer of the adoption to the second foster mother was void, so that custody of the girl and her million natu, would be made that David Myers, the father, was once again the girl's legal guardian; that, while the grandmother's adoption of the child was legal, the transfer of the adoption to the second foster mother was void, so that custody of the girl and her million natu, would be returned to the old garage employe.

Mr. York, the guardian, said last night that the girl was now in a convent, and that her whereabouts would be kept secret. The girl has two older brothers and one older sister living. One of the brothers said yesterday that he had sought recently to see the unexpectedly enriched sister, but had been repulsed. Notice of the contest of the will was filed with Surrogate Foley.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—The charitable actions of the American Red Cross in Vienna are eliciting renewed general recognition by the Vienna press and public.

The latest gift consists of large quantities of knitting wool for all public schols, furnished by Red Cross officers, Majors Lyon and Beckmann, in compliance with the special request of Burgomaster Peumann.

The American Red Cross has for weeks also supplied Vienna hospitals with drugs, food and bandages worth many millions, thus largely contributing to ease the heavy burden of the municipality.

VIENNA, Oct. 2.—I learn that former Hungarian Minister Benitzky, in the course of last week, repeatedly conferred with ex-Emperor Charles in Pragins, Switzerland, on the question of the Emperor's return to Hungary.

Benitsky's mission was to induce the Emperor to make a declaration that in case he was called to occupy the throne he would accept the principle of national Kingship as enacted by the Hungarian Parliament.

So far Charles has refused to issue such a declaration.

SEES CITY BANKRUPT UNDER HYLAN'S RULE

Leonard M. Wallstein Declares New Budget Creates a "Staggering" Tax Burden.

TELLS OF LONG TERM BONDS

Citizens' Union Counsel Accuses Mayor's Administration of Nullifying Pay-as-You-Go Law.

Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel for the Citizens' Union, declared yesterday that New York City was threatened with bankruptcy, and for years the people would be compelled to carry a heavy tax burden, as a result of next year's enormous budget, now being prepared by the Board of Estimate. The abandonment of the pay-as-you-go policy established during the Mitchel administration, he added, was partly responsible for the city's present financial situation.

"The amazing total of the estimates for next year's budget is a staggering revelation of the calamity which the city has brought upon itself in the election of the Hylan administration," said Mr. Wallstein.

Mr. Wallstein explained that the Mitchel administration in September, 1914, adopted a resolution embodying the pay-as-you-go policy of paying for public improvements out of current funds instead of out of long-term loans. This, he said, was necessary, to compel economy and to preserve the city's credit, and told of the passage of the pay-as-you-go law, the fixing of the borrowing capacity of the city at $50,000,000, and the amendment of the city charter to include the new act.

Suspends Pay-as-You-Go Act.

"But the present administration had hardly been in office when it began the process of undermining and overturning the act," continued Mr. Wallstein. "On the plea that needed new school buildings could not otherwise be provided, the present administration procured the enactment of Chapter 658 of the Laws of 1919.

"This suspends the pay-as-you-go act so as to permit the city each year to issue $15,000,000 of long-term securities, and remains effective till one year after the President by proclamation fixes the end of the war.

"At the special session just past the administration procured a law permitting it to issue long-term bonds absolutely without limit as to total amount for new buildings and sites. This bill was enacted at the Mayor's urgent plea. The result is twofold—first, the $15,000,000 annual exemption from the pay-as-you-go act obtained in 1918 being unrestricted as to purposes, is now available for any purpose to which the Hylan administrations may desire to apply it. Secondly, the present board may appropriate $50,000,000 or more for new schools this year, despite the fact that it could not possibly expend that sum economically for that purpose in a single year, and the further fact that $6,000,000 remains still unexpended out of this year's appropriation of $15,000,000 for that purpose.

Costly Brooklyn Building.

"Finally, at the last regular session of the Legislature, by Chapter 589 of the Laws of 1920, the Hylan administration obtained an exemption from the pay-as-you-go act so as to permit it to issue $6,000,000 of city bonds for a municipal building in Brooklyn. The pretext for this, with its huge contract possibilities, was the desire to economize on the rentals now paid for municipal offices in Brooklyn. It has been found, however, that the annual carrying charges of the proposed building will be more than $200,000 per annum in excess of present rentals, even if the latter were doubled.

"What, then, is the prospect? The administration will eliminate from the budget a great many millions of dollars now included in the estimates for capital improvements. Thereupon it will preen itself for its economy. Then it will issue city bonds for most of the matters thus eliminated from the budget and pile an enormous addition to the city debt, the cost of which for annual interest and redepmtion will have to be carried in future budgets.

"Even worse, on July 31 last the Controller reported that the city's free and unencumbered borrowing capacity was about $25,000,000. From that date to this substantially all of that amount has been authorized for expenditure in new capital improvements."

PEACE PARLEY AT RIGA TO BE RESUMED TODAY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Oct. 3.—The second session of the main commission of the Polish-Russian Peace Conference is expected tomorrow. Nearly a week has elapsed since the delegates met last, despite mutual assurances given at the opening that both sides wished to conclude at least an armistice and preliminary peace so as to put an end to the bloodshed. The interval has been spent in bickerings and the exchange of frigidly polite letters, recalling the futile proceedings at Minsk.

Having presented a draft of the proposed treaty, the Bolsheviki demand concrete counterproposals from the Poles, and have hinted that they do not attach paramount importance to territorial questions. At the same time, however, what practical concessions they are prepared to make are an unknown quantity. It is safe to assume that the military operations, with those who direct them, really dominate the situation, and it is significant that the Polish armies have certain points already gone beyond the so-called "German line."

This line is constituted by the splendid trench system where the Germans established themselves during the war. Certain influential Polish statesmen have always maintained that permanent possession of this line was necessary to Poland as a strategic frontier. It is a long way east not only of the frontier suggested by the Supreme Council but also of the frontier offered by the Bolsheviki.

H. G. WELLS IN PETROGRAD.

Novelist Welcomed by a Delegation of Authors Headed by Gorky.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—H. G. Wells, the English novelist, has arrived in Petrograd, and, according to a Moscow wireless message, was greeted by a delegation of Russian authors headed by Maxim Gorky.

Replying to speeches of welcome, Mr. Wells declared that he did not doubt that Russia was on the eve of a noble future, but said that the Russian and British characters were very different and that the two peoples could not achieve their purposes by the same methods.

"Your road," the Moscow dispatch reports him as saying, "is toward communism; ours is toward collectivism."

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, October 2nd, on shipments sold out ranged from 12 cents to 24 cents per pound and averaged 17.73 cents per pound. —Advt.

Says German Industries Seek to Buy Coal Here

THE HAGUE, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Handelsblad from Düsseldorf says some of the big metal industries in the Ruhr district have been unable to get local coal owing to the enforcement of the allied rule for coal deliveries under the Peace Treaty.

As a result, says the newspaper, these concerns are negotiating for the purchase of American coal, imported through Rotterdam at a cost seven times greater than the coal produced in the Ruhr region.

$45,000,000 STATE BONUS UP TO VOTERS

Proposition to Pay Ex-Service Men $10 for Each Month of Service Submitted.

NEW FIDUCIARY POLICY

Proposed Constitutional Amendment Gives Right to Issue Short-Term Notes.

One proposed constitutional amendment and a proposal for a State bond issue of not more than $45,000,000 to pay bonuses to ex-service men will be voted upon at the general election on Nov. 2, and information concerning them has been compiled by the Secretary of State which will be distributed in pamphlet form by the Board of Elections at the registration places in this city, beginning today.

The proposed amendment changes Sections 2, 4, 5, 11 and 12 of Article VII. of the State Constitution, and is designed primarily to facilitate the borrowing of money by the State on short-term notes to meet its obligations in anticipation of the receipt of taxes. The change in Section 2 prescribes the method of contracting such State debts, the issuance of bonds and obligations for them and the payment of interest.

The change in Section 4 limits the creation of certain debts and the payment of interest to those authorized by a vote of the people and provides for the time and manner of submission and the time and manner of payment. Section 5 provides for the continuation of sinking funds to pay interest and principal of debts heretofore contracted and directs the State Controller to appraise securities held by the respective sinking funds at their fair market value and to report to the Legislature each year.

Section 11 directs the Legislature to provide appropriations for sinking funds to care for all State debts, except the short-term securities, and authorizes the Controller, in the event of the Legislature's failure to do so, to set aside the necessary amounts out of the first revenues received, and requires him to do so on the suit of any interested bondholder.

Section 12 provides that debts hereafter authorized for the improvement of highways shall be created only after a favorable vote of the people.

The proposal, or "proposition No. 1," as it will appear on the ballot, is whether the State shall issue bonds to the amount of not more than $45,000,000 to pay a bonus to each residents of the State who served in the army or navy during the war. The proposal provides for a payment of a bonus of $10 for each month or major fraction thereof of service, with a provision that no single payment shall exceed $250, and that officers above the grade of Captain in the army or Lieutenant, senior grade, in the navy, shall not be entitled to any bonus. Provision is made for a commission to distribute the money and for the establishment of a disability fund.

GARY BACK FROM EUROPE.

Returns on the France; Says Steel Industry Is in Healthy Condition.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, returned from a two and a half months' trip to Europe yesterday on the French liner France. The vessel would have arrived here on Saturday if the stokers had not struck at Havre on the eve of sailing and held her twelve hours until they got a pay increase of 50 francs a month.

Judge Gary appeared to be optimistic regarding the steel industry and said: "From my information I consider the steel industry in a healthy condition, although there has been a noticeable diminution in volume and also a decrease in prices. So far as our corporation is concerned conditions are perfectly satisfactory."

He said he hoped the prices of steel rails would not be affected to any great extent by the advance in freight rates, and added: "Our policy is to keep prices from going too high or too low."

Asked about the rehabilitation of France, Judge Gary replied: "My facts and figures are not thoroughly digested and I intend to reserve making any statement in regard to that until the semi-annual meeting of the Steel Corporation this month."

He declined to give any opinion regarding the steel situation in Germany or England and would not discuss the labor situation abroad. "I expect to speak on the general situation in France and Belgium especially at the next meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute," he said.

On the France was a commission which included General Gustave Ferrie, who had been sent by the Government to attend the international radio conference to be held at Washington next week.

General Ferrie said that the new high-powered radio station at Bordeaux, erected by the United States Government and now known as the Lafayette station, was the most powerful in the world and its spark encircled the earth. He said the American instruments worked perfectly, but the French officials expected to install some French apparatus from which they hope to have good results.

R. M. Haan, proprietor of the St. Regis Hotel, returned with his wife and daughter Hortense from a visit to Hungary and Austria. He said he had wound up the affairs of the American-Hungarian Children Relief Fund and that nearly a million dollars had been disbursed in Budapest as the centre of the district where help was needed.

Among others who arrived on the France were E. F. B. Baruch, brother of Bernard Baruch; Percy Chapman, assistant professor of modern languages at Princeton University; P. Cunlesett-Carnot, grandson of Sadi Carnot, former President of France; Mrs. C. N. Sartoris, a granddaughter of the late President Grant; Mrs. Casimir Rham, whose husband was killed in the war; Mrs. William Greenough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Warren, and Miss Greenough; Mrs. Herbert L. Griggs, who was decorated by France with the Legion of Honor and who is the wife of the President of the Bank of New York; A. K. Macomber, the New York turfman who recently bought the stable of the late William K. Vanderbilt in France, and seventy-six members of the Knights of Columbus, the last of the returning members who made the pilgrimage to Rome and to Metz for the unveiling of the statue of Lafayette.

The France carried 500 first cabin, 670 second and 817 steerage passengers.

CORK, Oct. 3.—A series of skirmishes occurred in Cork last night and resulted in the death of one policeman and the wounding or injury of four others. Official reports show that the attack was of the nature of guerrilla fighting by bands of armed men, who operated under the cover of the darkness.

The constabulary report says the police were fired upon in Patrick Street at 5 P. M., and reinforcements, on arriving, were also attacked. The police returned the fire. One officer was injured, but not seriously.

Another patrol of police was attacked just before 10 P. M. in the same neighborhood, and one officer was shot in the thigh and two others badly beaten.

Further firing on the police took place soon after midnight, and a constable named Chave was mortally wounded. The military report adds to this information that in the midnight attack a patrol of troops was sent to the scene and found Chave in a dying condition. The fire of the attacker was returned by the police and two trails of blood and two civilian caps were found, together with a bomb.

Chave was in company with two other policemen in Academy Street when they were attacked by a band of unknown men. After being beaten Chave was fired on, but his comrades escaped. Soon afterward a military patrol made determined efforts to track down the murderers, and a bloodhound was requisitioned. He took the troops around all the streets in the locality, and the men, aided by a searchlight and hand lamps, made a thorough inspection of many buildings. They did not relinquish the hunt until after 4 o'clock.

Meanwhile it was reported that some rifle and machine gun firing was heard, and later bombs were exploded near to a well-known business establishment in Blackthorne Avenue. A great deal of damage was done to the premises.

IRISH TOWN RUINED, FEARS FURTHER RAID

Inhabitants and Police of Tubbercurry Are Both Dreading the Future.

TUBBERCURRY, Ireland, Oct. 2 (Associated Press).—A town half in ruins and its remnant of inhabitants living in dread of a return of the raid of last week, and a handful of seemingly nervous police, who had shut themselves inside barracks with the body of the slain District Inspector Potter, were what the correspondent found when he reached this remote place in Ireland late today.

The correspondent was told how Acting County Commissioner Russell tried to prevent the destruction of the tents from the managers of the two fire-swept creameries he received their accounts of a heroic struggle in the darkness and a thick fog to save the institutions with which the fortunes of almost the entire community were bound up, and from the wife of one of the managers of the creameries he heard a story of how she and her three children escaped from bullets, and also how she, while facing four rifles pointed at her head, contrived a ruse to safeguard her husband.

Favorable Outlook For Railroad and Hydro-Electric Bonds

The outlook for bonds of the above types appears particularly bright. The railroads, through the recent advance in freight and passenger rates, should ultimately increase their net revenues materially. Hydro-electric companies, because of their independence from coal, and their low operating costs, should become more and more essential to industries dependent upon cheap power, and their bonds should show a corresponding increase in intrinsic value. In our circular, "Conservative Investments," we mention a number of attractive railroad and hydro-electric bonds to yield from about 6% to 7½%.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Rise of Railroad Stocks Discloses Effort to Discount Future Business Activity.

As it is impossible to think of a prosperous condition of the railroads without activity of industry, last week's steady advance of railway stocks seemingly reflected a forward-looking tendency of the markets, extending into the period when business will be completely readjusted to new influences. The factors having immediate application to manufacturing company shares have now become so well-defined, that their products in quotations stand fully explained. The speculators who were unwilling to accept the signs supplied in the credit market last November and in the merchandise market last May are witnessing the fulfillment of indications then made apparent. Industry has merely made more speed during the last fortnight toward a normal situation of turnover and profits than in the preceding five months. The price-cutting movement, the reports of slackened output in various directions, while exciting a greater popular attention now than earlier in the year, are, nevertheless, only a phase of a broad development instituted long ago by overburdened consumers. While the shrinkage of business and of prices has apparently much of its course still to run, yet it is primarily of importance in terms of the past. At least, that is the way the security markets label it. The quotations of many stocks have gone far in their declines of 20, 30, 70 points or more from last year's maximum figures in carrying market appraisals of property to or below the intrinsic value of the property involved. While the business outlook remains uncertain, it is difficult to see how securities directly representing business profits can appeal to purchasers other than those who reckon profits and a substantial income return in terms of years. Speculation of the day-to-day and week-to-week variety has received a hard blow in the decline of the last six months, and the history of other markets has been that sentiment, thus smitten, is slow of recovery. But the railroad securities, although closely related to the industrials, stand placed in a setting quite different. Beside containing potential powers of discounting improvement of income, which means an improvement of business and the traffic it supplies, the market has long been referring to liquidation which carried these issues during the war and later to low levels unknown in many years. Also, it has become evident that railroad managements have produced greater efficiency in handling their properties since March 1 last. The statement a few days ago by the Association of Railway Executives that improved car loading, more rapid car movement and a general installation of "pep" in railroad operation had brought results equal to the addition of 200,000 new cars since Government control ended told a story of betterment which should be translated sooner or later in economies of manufacturing and distributing goods. The reawakened buying of railroad stocks may be considered as a harbinger of improved business by and by. No one may attempt to predict that a new "bull" market has been set going. The roads have yet to prove that greater efficiency, higher freight and passenger rates and a broadened market for their securities means profits applicable to substantial dividend payments, or a period of new dividends for those stocks that have long returned nothing. The market has yet to decide what appraisal to put upon railroad stocks as reflective of prospective earnings and speculative effort to "discount" events a year or two years ahead seems likely to run afoul of a credit situation that is not partial to speculation.

What are "fair" prices? The public decided some time ago that the going prices for textiles, leather, certain food products, and, more recently, automobiles, were too high and the result has been seen in sweeping declines. But the reductions made have not set the market going forward again and others may be made without bringing a genuine revival of buying. Comment in the steel trade shows that the majority opinion of producers favors a gradual shading of prices for the reason that substantial declines are not believed the thing to promote increased purchases. The public is less interested in costs of production than in the need for goods. It is human to believe when prices recede that they will recede further, that buying may profitably be put off a little longer. This attitude is a factor in making uncertain the time when those merchandise lines which have been offered down will reach a point of stability.

"A period of transition to lower prices like that which we are now experiencing," says the Federal Reserve Agent at New York, "is one which requires, temporarily at least, additional credit." Increasing inventories, resulting from slowly moving stocks, cancelled orders and poor collections in a time like the present, it is stated, produce a demand for credit comparable to the "frozen credit" period of last Spring, when railway and ocean freight movements were congested. The implication is hardly to be taken from this, however, that the longer the delay in reducing stocks of goods and in bringing collections up to date the greater will be the load upon the banks. The banking attitude toward deflation of credit wherever practicable militates against a persistent accretion to the bank credit load. The banker will seek to transfer the burden elsewhere as rapidly as opportunity offers and the flotation, or plans for the flotation, of nearly $100,000,000 bonds and notes last week disclosed a movement to let the investing public assume part of the task of providing corporate working capital in a dull season.

The Bureau of Commerce reports that in the eight months ended Aug. 31 imports of crude material for use in manufacturing were valued at a total $400,800,000 more than in the same period last year. As calculations of values by the customs service dealt with foreign moneys at depreciated rates established by the exchanges during most of this period, instead of the par of normal times, it is clear that this sum covered an immense amount of goods. In the increase is seen one reason why rubber, which used to sell upward of 50 cents a pound, has slipped down to the neighborhood of 25 cents, and why silk, hides and other imported raw material have increased in stock in a fashion to press market quotations down sharply. On the other side of the picture is spot cotton at 24.25 cents at New York, a decline of about 45 per cent. from the July maximum, and the December wheat option stood at the end of last week more than 50 cents lower than the year's highest quotation. To cite these two forms of important exports alone, it is clear that the way has been paved for imports to be continued to be offset by exports through the drastic decline of prices, provided that countries with heavily depreciated exchanges need the goods.

On The New York Stock Exchange

Big Investors

The insurance companies, next to the banks, are perhaps the largest purchasers of stocks and bonds. A late compilation of their resources showed that 62% was invested in stocks and bonds which were purchased outright; about 35% was loaned on bond and mortgage; about ¾ of 1% was loaned against collateral and about 4% was held in cash. A fair proportion of the stock and bond holdings of the various insurance companies consists of securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange, a market where they are readily convertible into cash at any time.

Will Crude Oil Decline?

A buyers' market for commodities in general will likely continue for a period of months, but there is little likelihood of a sustained decline in crude oil prices. Kentucky crude has just advanced twenty-five cents per barrel and the extensive curtailment of credits throughout the oil country, particularly affecting small producers, will no doubt show its effect in production figures this winter. The amount of storage oil is at a low ebb and the effect of Mexican importations, while on a larger scale than heretofore known, is negligible as a controlling factor. We expect to see crude oil by next Spring selling at higher figures than any yet recorded and are basing this prediction on a revival of business by that time.

DOWNWARD TREND IN STEEL PRICES

All Eyes Set for Market Changes That May Bear on Impending Readjustments.

AUTO CUT INAPPRECIABLE

Ton of Rolled Steel in Each Car Counts for Little in Volume of Business.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 2.—The impending readjustment in iron and steel prices is attracting more attention than formerly. Possibly the reduction in automobile prices have helped to direct attention that way, but there is practically no connection. The best estimate is that this year the automobile, truck and tractor industries combined are consuming only between 4 and 5 per cent. of the steel output. This is not enough to swing the market downward, while furthermore there is the fact that they have fairly heavy engagements under existing contracts. One large automobile interest is understood to have a favorable contract for steel running through to next June.

Unless very fancy prices are paid the cost of steel does not materially affect the cost of building an automobile. For illustration, such automobiles as have been selling in the last few months at $2,000 to $5,000 involve the consumption of less than a ton of rolled steel apiece, while a dollar a ton on the Steel Corporation's output, figuring it at 14,500,000 tons a year, is equivalent to 3 per cent. of the common stock outstanding. Thus a change in the general level of steel prices is equal to a 3 per cent. dividend on steel common, but means less than $1 on the steel that eventually finds its way into a $2,000 or $3,000 automobile. Part of the extra cost of steel to auto manufacturers is due to finishing operations conducted outside the steel producing mill. Thus the automobile industry consumes a large tonnage of cold finished steel bars, made in shops that buy hot rolled steel bars from the steel mills.

In nearly all districts pig iron is now recognized as marked for declines that are being delayed chiefly by absence of inquiry sufficiently important to invite price concessions. In the case of Valley and Cleveland foundry iron the break is already recorded, $47 as furnace being now quoted as the market that had advanced to $50 late in August. In the East the furnaces do not seem to have made concessions as yet, but resale iron is offered at $2 under furnace quotations. The Birmingham market remains firm at $43. Various rumors are in circulation as to cut prices quoted on billets, but it seems certain that the former $60 quotation could easily be shaded on a firm bid. Sheet bars are in similar position, being practically nominal at $65.

In the finished steel markets the chief change is the disappearance of premiums for prompt deliveries. Roughly speaking, the independent market is above that of the Steel Corporation schedule by $7 a ton on pipe, $12 on plates, $13 a ton on bars and shapes, $20 on nails, $40 to $60 on sheets and $40 on tin plate. Despite rumors the independents are really showing little inclination to reduce their prices; they appear to be filled in most cases through the present year, and in some into the new year. The Steel Corporation is filled for an average of eight or nine months at least.

In occasional instances mills have slightly curtailed their operations in the past week or two, but the great majority are so well filled that they are still pushing for maximum production. With improved railroad conditions and better weather the output has been tending to increase over the rate shown for August, about 42,700,000 gross tons a year.

The local pig iron market continues stagnant. Consumers in the main are well covered, and particularly so since they are getting better deliveries than formerly on old contracts at lower prices than those ruling of late. The outlook for cheaper coke has receded into the dim future and the quotations are unchanged. The scrap market has become absolutely dead. While prices are unchanged, they are largely nominal.

Dealers find that the steel mills in general are covered by ferromanganese contracts to the end of the year and that by reason of slacker operations the supplies will last into the new year. The contract market remains quotable at the asking price of $170, seaboard, for domestic or English. For prompt deliveries there is almost as inactive a market. Such business as has gone through lately has been chiefly in resale material. One lot of several hundred tons went at between $165 and $170, delivered.

Various rumors are in circulation as to there being offerings of billets at prices little, if any, above $50, Pittsburgh. While resale billets might be held accountable for rumors of this sort there is reason to believe that some mills are desirous of marketing a round lot of billets, by reason of having discovered surplus capacity. There is a disposition to work off surplus steel in billet form; a cut-price sale in billets could not be held against the mill by a customer in finished products. Of late the effort has been made to sell sheet bars rather than billets, but sheet bars have become practically unsalable now.

Pressure for deliveries of merchant steel bars is easing off, the mills are not being importuned for deliveries to the extent that prevailed even quite recently. As to new demand, this is distinctly light, which means a decided change in the situation, since until very lately there have been eager buyers in the market for the smaller sizes.

Prices on small bars for prompt shipment have eased off to approximately the level for more extended deliveries. As to the latter, they still hold at about 3c. One producer who made a nominal advance to 3.25c. recently is understood to be willing to book from any good buyer at 3c. if the specification is attractive.

Agricultural implement negotiations are not at all vigorous, since the independents have not thus far shown any disposition to meet the 2.35c. price the Steel Corporation has maintained right along, and the implement makers will not seriously consider higher prices on contracts to run to the middle of next year. Their view evidently is that the market decline to the Steel Corporation level must come long before nine months have passed.

The plate market continues stagnant, with scarcely an inquiry. Another mill has dropped from 3.50c. to 3.25c. as its quotation. Higher prices are still quoted by some interests, however, a recent inquirer getting quotations of 2.25c., 3.35c. and 3.40c. All sellers are watching the market closely for signs of any prices below 3.25c., generally regarded as the sticking point. That the Steel Corporation, which has maintained throughout a plate price of 2.65c., seems to be in position to accept orders from a larger number of buyers than formerly, may partly account for the extreme stagnation observed in the open market.

There is practically no inquiry for sheet bars just now, and the market is quotable only on the basis of recent sales—$65, Pittsburgh. Prospects are that this price could be shaded on an interesting inquiry. The mills that buy sheet bars seem to be covered for a while, and are not disposed to make further purchases.

Sheet mill operations show a slight tendency to increase from week to week, although there is not room for a great deal of improvement, since for two or three weeks past an average of about 85 per cent. of the sheet mills have been in operation, not far from the best that can be expected. Tonnage outputs per mill are reported to be considerable better, there being the combined influence of milder weather conditions and of more disposition on the part of the men to earn money against the "rainy day." Operations among the independent mills are running at fully 85 per cent., while the leading interest operated this week at 88 per cent. of capacity.

The sheet market is very quiet, the demand being for but small tonnages in the aggregate. What demand develops is only for relatively early shipment. The lightness of demand, coupled with the cancellations and suspensions that have lately occurred, seem destined to have a marked influence upon prices, which are likely to decline, say, half a cent a pound within the next thirty days. The market is quoted for prompt deliveries at 7 cents to 7.50 cents, base, fork lack, about 8.75 cents for galvanized, 5.25 cents to 5.50 cents for the heavier guages of blue annealed, and possible 5.75 cents to 6 cents, base, for 14 and 16 gauges. As a matter of fact there is scarcely any demand for these lighter gauges of blue annealed.

THE NATIONAL CITY BANK OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

Solvay & Cie. (a Belgian trading association founded in 1863) through its ownership of stock of American and English companies operating under the Solvay Process, and through direct ownership of plants in Belgium, France, Spain and Italy, is today the largest manufacturer in the world of soda ash (carbonate of soda) and its derivatives. Soda ash enters basically into almost every industry and its derivatives are used in one form or another in practically every household. Solvay & Cie. also has very extensive interests in the by-product coke industry of America and Europe.

These Bonds will be secured by specified pledge of stocks of American companies, viz: The Solvay Process Company Common Stock, 93,823 shares, Semet-Solvay Company Common Stock, 20,707 shares.

Present quoted prices in the American market indicate a value for this collateral of over $21,000,000. Under a proposed plan for the consolidation of these two companies with the General Chemical Company, The Barrett Company and National Aniline & Chemical Company, Inc., the above collateral is expected to be exchanged for 351,594 shares of a new corporation (Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation), which will be one of the largest chemical companies in the world, and the most comprehensive, in America, as to its products.

Solvay & Cie. will agree that none of the foregoing collateral can be withdrawn while any of these Bonds are outstanding, and that they will pledge additional collateral, if as and when necessary, to the end that at all times the market value of the aggregate collateral shall be not less than 150% of the outstanding amount of this issue.

The net assets of Solvay & Cie., (after deducting all other liabilities) figured on a basis which we believe to be most conservative, and with no consideration for intangible items such as good will, exceeds $70,000,000, or over 7 times the amount of this issue. The net income of the issuing company for the past four calendar years (figured even at the extraordinarily low exchange rate now prevailing) averaged about 4 times the interest charges on this issue.

For the three years ended December 31, 1919, the proportionate net income of The Solvay Process Company and Semet-Solvay Company, available for dividends on the stock to be pledged under this issue, averaged more than 2¾ times the annual interest charges upon these Bonds. It has recently been officially stated that the combined net income for the six months ended June 30, 1920, of the five companies consolidating into the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation was at the annual rate of about $10.80 per share upon the common stock of the new Company, indicating that the ratable amount of current income applicable to the 351,594 shares of such stock to be pledged under this issue is at the rate of over 4¾ times interest charges on this issue.

We offer these Bonds, if, as and when issued and received by us, subject to approval by counsel at

100 and interest, to yield 8%

It is expected that delivery in temporary form will be made on or about October 15, 1920, against confirmed sales.

All legal matters in connection with these Bonds will be subject to approval of our counsel, Messrs. Shearman & Sterling, New York, N. Y.

TO OFFER $10,000,000 IN BELGIAN BONDS

Solvay & Cie. Place 7-Year 8 Per Cent. Gold Issue on Sale Today.

ARE FREE OF ALL TAXES

To be Secured by Stock Valued at $21,000,000 and by $70,000,000 in Assets.

An offering of $10,000,000 seven-year 8 per cent. secured gold bonds of Solvay & Cie., the Belgian company which controls the Solvay Process Company and the Semet-Solvay Company, is being made today at par and interest. The banking syndicate which is handling the offering is headed by the National City Company and includes the Guaranty Company, Harris, Forbes & Co., and Kidder, Peabody & Co. The bonds, which are free from all Belgian taxes, are redeemable at the option of the company as a whole or in part on any interest date after Oct. 1, 1923, on thirty days' notice, at a premium of 1 per cent. for each year or portion of year between the date of redemption and that of maturity.

These bonds will be secured by specified pledge of 93,823 shares of the Solvay Process Company common stock, and 29,707 shares of the common stock of the Semet-Solvay Company. These shares, it is said, have a present market value of approximately $21,000,000. Under the proposed plan for the consolidation of these two companies with the General Chemical Company, the Barrett Company and the National Aniline and Chemical Company, the above collateral is expected to be exchanged for 351,594 shares of stock of the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation, a new corporation, which will be one of the largest chemical companies in the world.

Solvay & Cie. will agree that none of the foregoing collateral can be withdrawn while any of these bonds are outstanding, and that they will pledge additional collateral, when necessary, to the end that at all times the market value of the aggregate collateral shall be not less than 150 per cent. of the outstanding amount of this issue.

The net assets of Solvay & Cie. (after deducting all other liabilities) figured on a basis which they believe to be most conservative, and with no consideration for intangible items such as goodwill, exceeds $70,000,000, or over seven times the amount of this issue. The net income of the issuing company for the past four calendar years (figured even at the extraordinarily low exchange rate now prevailing) averaged about four times the interest charges on this issue.

For the three years ended Dec. 31, 1919, the proportionate net income of the Solvay Process Company and Semet-Solvay Company, available for dividends on the stock to be pledged under this issue, averaged more than two and three-quarter times the annual interest charges upon these bonds. It has recently been officially stated that the combined net income for the six months ended June 30, 1920, of the five companies consolidating into the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation was at the annual rate of about $10.60 per share upon the common stock of the new company, indicating that the ratable amount of current income applicable to the 351,594 shares of such stock to be pledged under this issue is at the rate of over four and three-quarters times interest charges on this issue.

Canadian Corporation Bonds

are selling cheaper to-day than for many years past, largely owing to recent reductions in Canadian Victory Bond prices.

This, coupled with the premium on United States funds, makes it possible for the American investor to buy gilt-edged Canadian securities, at prices to yield 8% to 10%. Principal and interest on many of them are payable in American funds.

If you have money to invest, you cannot do better than place it in Canada to-day. If you will write us we will send you a list of most attractive offerings. Address:

"THE history of bequests for educational, charitable and benevolent purposes has demonstrated that the welfare of mankind would have been promoted and greater good accomplished if the terms of such trusts had permitted of change in the particular objects originally chosen or in the channels selected for the application of the funds, for the reason that the passage of time, the progress of civilization and the increasing concern of the State or governmental authorities in matters affecting public welfare are constantly rendering trusts created for specific objects superfluous and literal compliance with their terms unwise, impracticable or impossible."

PRESIDENT REA ASKS EMPLOYES TO AID

Pennsylvania Railroad Head Calls for Co-operative Effort to Serve Public Well.

A POLICY OF COURTESY

Railroad Wages Paid by Those Who Use Railroads — Plea for High Standards.

A call to every employe of the Pennsylvania System to co-operate to solve the problems facing the road, completely emancipated this month from Government control, has been issued by Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania. A similar call for better and more service has been issued by the officials of the Long Island Railroad.

"The present month," said Mr. Rea, "marking as it does the complete restoration of the railroads to their own management, brings us face to face with problems which are without doubt the most important in the history of this railroad system. Our reputation and standing as individuals and as an organization are staked upon our ability to solve these problems successfully.

"We are intrusted with the task of maintaining and operating efficiently and economically the largest traffic carrying railroad system in the country, and one which, owing to its situation with respect to our indispensable industries and mines and our greatest centres of population, is in a peculiar sense vital to the life of the nation. Every man and woman in the service of this railroad has a distinct, individual share of this great responsibility, which cannot by any possibility be honorably evaded or shifted to the shoulders of another.

"It is perfectly natural, under these conditions, for the public, which pays our wages, to expect a fair return, both in the form of much better transportation service than we have been able to render in the last two or three years and in a full measure of courteous consideration on the part of every individual officer and employe toward the patrons whom we serve, such as will restore the old Pennsylvania Railroad standards, of which we were once so justly proud.

"We should never forget that railroad wages are paid by the people who use the railroads; there is no other source from which they can come. Satisfied patrons, receiving good service and courteous treatment, are far more likely to continue willing to pay the rates necessary to maintain generous wage levels than our patrons who are poorly served or discourteously treated."

HARRIMAN ON SHIP DEAL.

Promises Explanation of Agreement with Hamburg-American Line.

W. A. Harriman, President of the American Ship and Commerce Corporation, yesterday issued a statement concerning the agreement between his company and the Hamburg-American Line. Accompanying his statement, Mr. Harriman gave out a copy of a letter he had addressed to Admiral W. S. Benson, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, on July 7, last, previewing the history of the American Ship and Commerce Corporation, its acquisition of the Kerr Navigation Corporation and other properties, its relations with H. F. Kerr and A. E. Clegg, and the proposal to form a new operating company, which is to be known as United American Lines, Inc., which will operate the entire fleet of the American Ship and Commerce Corporation. In Mr. Harriman's statement, he said:

"Many questions have been asked concerning the agreement arrived at between the American Ship and Commerce Corporation and the Hamburg-American Line. The American Ship and Commerce Corporation will shortly, when details have been fully arranged, make public the actual text of that agreement. Our company will keep the United States Shipping Board advised of every step taken in the negotiations, and we are convinced that when the full details are made known they will appeal to the American people as constituting a step of great value and importance in the development of the American merchant marine. It is the policy of this company to give full publicity to all of its policies and activities having a public bearing."

DAIRYMEN NOW RUN 14 MILK PLANTS

League Meets Problem by Starting System of Farmer-Owned Stations.

PROCEEDS WILL BE POOLED

Forced to Co-operate by Manufacturers Who Stocked Up with Condensed Product.

The Dairymen's League, which represents virtually all the milk producers in the New York territory, is meeting with success in its plan to utilize the large amount of milk thrown back on the producers since Oct. 1 by the manufacturers who refuse to buy any more milk until they have disposed of a considerable portion of their large stocks made with high-priced sugar, according to a statement issued yesterday by R. D. Cooper, President of the league. One-fourth of the milk produced in this territory has heretofore gone into manufactured products.

Mr. Cooper said that the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association was operating fourteen farmer-owned milk plants and pointed out that the present situation shows that the dairymen should own more and more milk stations.

The plan of the league directors for the pooling of the proceeds of all the milk sold by its members through the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, Mr. Cooper said, has received the approval of the great bulk of the league members.

"Consumers," he said, "are concerned equally with producers in the successful operation of this plan, because its success means assurance of a permanent and undisturbed market and fair prices for the producer, and an adequate supply and fair prices for the consumer."

"The farmer faces the alternative of slaughtering his cows to reduce milk production, or finding other markets for his milk," Mr. Cooper said. He added that the present situation does not mean that there is a surplus of milk. "The fluid market," he said, "is demanding more milk than ever before at this season of the year. Prohibition and a better understanding by the people as to the food values of milk are responsible in part for a large increase in the consumptive demand."

When Europe was demanding American milk products, Mr. Cooper said, the manufacturers reached out and took over condenseries, creameries and cheese factories and other milk plants, and by dismantling butter and cheese plants they reduced the opportunities for converting milk into butter and cheese, thus shutting off more of the farmer's market.

"Today," Mr. Cooper continues, "storehouses are filled with manufactured milk products, and the manufacturer tells us that he has enough stocks on hand to last for six months. The condensed milk was made with high-priced sugar. Sugar has dropped 9 to 10 cents a pound in the last two months. The manufacturer now proposes to get rid of a part or all of his high-priced supplies before he makes up a new lot of condensed milk with low-priced sugar. It takes twenty pounds of sugar to make a case of condensed milk. Therefore, the manufacturing cost of a case of forty-eight cans is from $1.60 to $2 less than it was two months ago. And sugar is still going down.

"If condensed milk were sold in an unrestricted market, the retail price to the consumer would be greatly reduced."

According to the Federal Bureau of Markets, prices of manufactured milk have declined with the decrease of exports. "During the past two months," says a statement from the bureau, "the condensed and evaporated milk market has steadily become more demoralized and has now reached a critical stage with many manufacturers.

"Export business which stimulated increased production and consequently the building of many new factories during the war is now at a standstill. The domestic market has been flooded with goods offered at cut-rate prices by companies which have been exporting. Foreign demand has decreased partly on account of the increased production of Holland, Norway and Denmark, which is being offered in this and other countries at prices below our own.

"It is reported that jobbers and wholesale grocers, in expectation of still lower prices, are not taking large stocks and are buying largely for immediate sale to retail trade. The 'tight money' condition is said to be a factor with many manufacturers and jobbers, causing them to unload at least a portion of their stock previously made of high-priced sugar, at prices near or below actual cost.

"Stocks in the hands of manufacturers on Sept. 1 showed an increase, while unfilled orders had become practically 'nil' on bulk goods and less than those of Aug. 1 on case goods. Some firms reported that their stocks were larger than ever before and that the bottom had practically dropped out of the market."

Opens Office in Constantinople.

The Guaranty Trust Company today opens its new office in Constantinople, which has been established to meet the growing needs of American business interests in the development of commercial relations with the Near East. Like the company's other European offices, this one will be conducted as an independent banking unit.

What not to do in October

Mark Twain's advice applied to those who inherit money:

"OCTOBER. This is one of the peculiarly dangerous months to speculate in. The others are July, January, September, April, November, May, March, June, December, August and February."

INSURANCE authorities estimate that the average estate is dissipated within seven years.

Money suddenly received proverbially takes wings—in "Blue-sky" speculations—in extravagant flights. It often wastes away through lack of knowledge on how to invest.

Heirs who receive large bequests often need to be "saved from their own money."

We do not presume to tell you how to leave your money. We are prepared, however, to explain the modern safeguards which men of far-sighted kindness put about the money they leave.

Should you care to talk with us informally and confidentially we would be glad to take up with you step by step the advantage in naming

THE COLUMBIA TRUST COMPANY to settle your estate

As executor of your will and as trustee of your estate, what duties would we assume? Here are a few of them:

1. Take possession of all property and become familiar with the affairs of the estate. This requires an experience not to be justly expected of an untrained individual.
2. List all property in a complete inventory. This demands a knowledge of accounting.
3. File returns for payment of Federal and State Taxes. Also, promptly pay the State tax to secure benefit of 5% discount as provided by law. This demands constant watchfulness and intimate tax knowledge.
4. Pay debts proved against the estate. This may mean advertising for debts. One of the apparently minor but really important steps.
5. Pay legacies as directed by the will. Columbia Trust Company handling assures promptness and thorough responsibility.

If you now feel that the administration of your estate deserves searching consideration, wouldn't it be a wise step at least to talk it over with the Columbia Trust Company?

The following officers will gladly give you further details. At our downtown office, Mr. Warren, Vice-President, or Mr. Judd, Trust Officer. At our Fifth Avenue office, Mr. Dunn, Vice-President. At our Harlem office, Mr. Baker, Manager. At our Bronx office, Mr. Berry, Manager.
